U. S. Bankers Offer to Put $100,000,000 Into Mexico

Program to Develop Country Is Believed Contingent on Action To Protect Profits

By Jack O'Brine.
By the Associated Press

Mexico City, Dec. 10.—A plan for the industrial development of Mexico calling for an initial capital investment of $100,000,000 has been placed before President Manuel Avila Camacho by a group of 20 United States bankers and promoters, it was learned today.

The plan is believed to be contingent on action by Avila Camacho to protect profits against any attempts to continue the Mexican revolution.

The United States banking group, which has been examining the Mexican situation for almost three years, has notified the new president that it believes private American capital would find opportunity for almost unlimited business expansion in Mexico without the penalties of excessive taxes on profits.

At the same time, it has submitted detailed plans to revitalize such industries as agriculture, mining, manufacturing, hydraulic power, natural gas and a dozen others.

Not Much Overlooked

Carbon copies of the American proposal, now under study by the nine-day-old Camacho administration, were exhibited privately at the Hotel Reforma today, and it became evident that hardly an item of production or possible profit had been overlooked. The combine even proposed to develop the Mexican tourist business, manufacture book matches, promote amusements and drum up defense orders.

At the head of the American group are George Houston, former president of the Baldwin Locomotive Works, who is now senior partner in the firm of Houston & Jolles, 52 Wall Street, New York City; Frank R. Fageol, of Detroit, bus and truck manufacturer; former Senator William Gibbs McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury in the Wilson administration; George Creel, California publicist, and John A. Hastings, former New York State Senator.

Conservatism Expected

While the identity of the bankers and other financiers of the huge business expansion project was not made known, it was reported that McAdoo alone represented interests that were ready to send at least $5,000,000 into Mexico. His 19 associates were each understood

$31-a-Week Man Hire a Valet? No, Judge Says

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

New York, Dec. 10.—An assertion that a man who made $31 a week as a laborer hired a valet at $25 a week was found impossible of belief today by Surrogate James A. Foley. The assertion was made in all seriousness by Demitry Chaorban.

The laborer, Justino Oltson, died on December 16, 1938, leaving about $6,000 in a savings bank. He had employed by the United States postoffice. Chaorban sued to recover $800, saying he had been hired as "valet, chef and companion" at the $25 salary.

Foley wrote: "The surrogate rejects the testimony offered in support of the claim as unworthy of belief. The circumstances are fantastic. The belated assertion of the present claim was clearly motivated by the fact that no relative of the decedent has been discovered who might answer to the description of next of kin. It is apparent that the parties were close friends."

Her Jaw Worse Than Expected, Wallis Rallies After Surgery

Miami Beach, Fla., Dec. 10.—The fragile Duchess of Windsor, still in a coma from the effects of a major dental operation considerably more serious than was expected, slept quietly tonight while her anxious husband kept watch in an adjoining room in St. Francis Hospital.

The operation, performed early this afternoon, only a few hours after the duchess' arrival in Miami Beach, will keep her in the hospital at least twice as long as previously planned.

Although Dr. Horace L. Cartee, who performed the operation, announced that his patient's condition was "most satisfactory," his official bulletin stated that the "condition of the jaw bone was more serious than anticipated" on removal of an

New British Press Chief Here Is 'Blonde and Charming'

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

London, Dec. 10.—The appointment of Miss Craig McGeachy, a Canadian, formerly with the League of Nations, as special attache to the British Embassy in Washington, where she will handle the press and public relations interests of the ministry of economic warfare, was made known today.

Her appointment emphasized the importance which the ministry and the British government attached to having the work and effects of the British blockade of the Continent clearly understood in the United States.

Miss McGeachy is one of the few women who has been appointed an attache to a British diplomatic mission anywhere. She is a native of London, Ontario, and since August has been in the press section of the ministry of economic warfare at London. The Daily Telegraph calls her "an intelligent and attractive blonde in her thirties" and tonight's Star says in the headlines that she is "blonde and charming."

While on the staff of the League of Nations at Geneva, Miss McGeachy was concerned with liaison between the League and the British dominions. She has also had experience in international matters touching women's interests and the Red Cross. After the fall of France she got out of Geneva with difficulty and arrived here in August by way of Lisbon.

Montgomery to Use Religion To Build Pupil's Character

A program to make religious instruction "more significant" to the pupils as part of a character-building national defense move, was adopted yesterday by the Montgomery County Board of Education.

Under this program, dramatizations, pageants, pantomime, sacred songs and sacred art would have a place in the school curriculum "in the effort to build the importance and significance of spiritual values."

In place of a routine reading of the Scriptures by the teachers, the Scriptures would be read by students as part of the school activities, such as the opening of exercises and assemblies. Repeating of the Lord's Prayer by all children either in general assembly or in home room exercises at least a few times a week is also recommended.

Choral reading of the Psalms, relating of Biblical stories, and Christmas interpretation, are offered as other methods of presenting religious instruction in a more impressive manner.

The school board adopted the policy at the suggestion of the Montgomery County Teachers Association Committee on National Defense, created to promote measures tending to strengthen national defense through educational means.

Mrs. Roosevelt Wins Inquiry Into Migrant's Union Trouble

By James D. Secrest

The House Interatate Migration Committee, acting on a suggestion of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, decided last night to conduct an inquiry into charges that a migrant electrician was refused a job with a national defense project here because he could not pay a $300 union fee.

Chairman Tolan (Democrat), of California, announced last night that David William Thomas, the electrician, and officers of Local No. 25, International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers, would appear at today's committee hearing.

The First Lady's discussion of the case arose from her testimony yesterday on visits to migrant camps.

Mrs. Thomas, who preceded Mrs. Roosevelt on the stand, told the committee that her husband, though an experienced electrician, was denied work at Fort George G. Meade because he could not afford to pay the union fee.

Thomas, who lives in a trailer, with his wife and six children, on the outskirts of Alexandria, told The Post that he had first applied for a job at Fort Belvoir, Va., and had been told that he must have a permit from the union.

Returning to Washington, he called the Electrical Workers Union (A. F. L.), at 912 G Street Northwest, and asked how much it would cost him to join the union. He said the party at the other end of the line told him it would be $300.

British Close In on 2 Italian Divisions Trapped in Egypt; 'We'll Defeat World'—Hitler

Fuehrer Predicts German Labor Will Defeat Gold Of 'Plutocracies'

By C. Brooks Peters.
Copyright by New York Times

Berlin, Dec. 9.—For 90 minutes this morning Fuehrer Hitler addressed the workers of Germany who gathered before radios in their places of work throughout the Reich.

And when the Fuehrer had finished, the inescapeable conclusion was that in his opinion the only possible terminus to the present conflict between democratic capitalism and totalitarian "socialism" could from the very nature of the struggle, be found in the vanquishment of one of the contending systems.

Hitler spoke over a national hookup from the Rheinmetall Borsig munitions plant in a Berlin suburb.

The Fuehrer spoke in moderate tones and avoided any reference to whatever political or military plans his government may have in preparation.

Throughout his speech Chancellor Hitler emphasized his convictions that Germany will be victorious. There was no indication as to how long he expects this war to last. At the same time there was no indication that he expects it to be concluded in the immediate future.

For Home Consumption

His remarks seem to have been chiefly designed for home consumption.

He placed his greatest emphasis upon the benefit which he said accrue to workers under the system of government of which he is champion, while at the same time attacking the faults which he asserted were inherent in the system represented and practiced by the western democracies.

Democracy, as outlined by the Fuehrer, is synonomous with oligarchy. In England and America, Hitler declared, "the people are not a focal point of consideration. Decision lies exclusively with a few hundred gigantic capitalists who are in possession of their factories and their stocks, and who, in the final analysis, steer the people. The broad masses . . . interest them . . . only in time of election.

Defeat Means the End

On the other hand, Hitler asserted, the National Socialist state labors for the best interest of all classes; birth is no longer of any importance in ascending to the highest positions in the Reich.

"We know exactly," Chancellor Hitler declared, "if we are defeated in this battle that it is the end. Not just of our socialistic work of con-

Roosevelt Extends Iron Exports Curb; Blow to Japan

By George Bookman
Post Staff Writer

By order of President Roosevelt, iron ore, pig iron, ferro alloys and "certain iron and steel manufactures and semi-manufactures" last night were put under an export license control system that strikes hard at Japanese sinews of war.

In another move, topmost defense and financial officials spent two hours in Secretary Morgenthau's office examining the "balance sheet" of British financial needs presented to Morgenthau in a meeting at his home Monday night by Sir Frederick Phillips, undersecretary of the British treasury.

Thus, United States officials gave striking new evidence that they will continue to fight dictator nations with America's strongest weapon—economic and financial power.

Aimed at Tokyo

The dual action, designed to support China in the Far East and Great Britain on America's Atlantic side, came as Adolf Hitler was telling German workmen, "We will defeat the entire world," and 24 hours after the statement of Japanese Foreign Minister Matsuoka that Japan and the United States could avoid war if each nation keeps cool and minds its own business.

The proclamation imposing new export controls, announced by the White House, was plainly aimed at Japan, which has been the biggest customer for the materials listed since an embargo on steel scrap and iron scrap shipments was placed in effect.

Friendly Nations Favored

The new licensing requirement becomes effective December 30. President Roosevelt authorized the move by wireless from his cruiser Tuscaloosa in the Caribbean.

A White House statement explaining the new controls emphasized that friendly nations will still be able to obtain the iron and steel products with a minimum of restriction, adding:

"License will be granted for exports to the British Empire and Western Hemisphere; and for the present, so far as the interests of national defense permit, for exports to other destinations in quantities approximating usual or prewar exports."

This means that Japan, which is not self-sufficient in vital war metals, will be forced back to the much smaller amounts she bought here before the Nanking incident touched off the Far Eastern conflict more than three years ago.

British Reject Plan to Feed Europeans

Hoover's Proposal Would Result in Aid To Nazis, Lothian Says

Great Britain last night rejected Former President Hoover's proposal to send food through the British blockade to civil populations in German-occupied countries.

It held that any food which was allowed to pass the blockade "would merely permit the diversion of yet more of the indigenous stocks to Germany or for the use of the German troops of occupation."

Though Hoover and his associates in the undertaking proposed that distribution of such supplies should be in the hands of neutrals, the British government, in a statement issued by the Marquess of Lothian, British Ambassador, said:

"His Majesty's government have been unable to discover any scheme of distribution by neutral authorities in these countries which, in the light of the Nazi record, could provide guarantees against the strengthening of the German war potential by the importation of foodstuffs."

The British government did, however, say it was prepared "to facilitate the passage through their blockade of medical supplies destined for distribution in territories occupied by Germany and in unoccupied France by approved bodies."

Responsibility for any food shortage in the occupied lands was placed squarely upon Germany by the statement, which, however, said British information indicated "the risk of starvation has been greatly exaggerated."

Of the conquered countries, the Ambassador said:

"Until they were conquered by Germany they had ample food for their own needs. In conquering them and installing German control, Germany has assumed responsibility for their welfare."

Italians, Greeks Lock in Battle For Tepelini

Fight for Mountain 'Gateway' to Village; Athens Claims Gains

By Ben Ames
United Press Staff Writer

Athens (Wednesday), Dec. 11.—Italian forces today were reported evacuating their second southern Albanian defense point at Tepelini as Greek and Fascist forces were locked in battle on a strategic mountain known as the "gateway" to the village.

Tepelini is 18 miles northwest of the newly captured Italian base at Argirocastro and the next important objective in the Epirus sector.

Reports from the fighting front said Greek warriors were advancing beyond both Argirocastro and Premet, to the northeast, in a two-pronged drive toward Valona.

Earlier reports had said that the Italians were installing artillery and machine-gun nests on the 6,000-foot height dominating Tepelini, where

The cruiser Tuscaloosa, which he is aboard, and the accompanying destroyers Mayrant and Trippe were back in formation after the destroyers had put in at San Juan for refueling.

Mr. Roosevelt will hold a press conference tomorrow or Thursday, when he may discuss his observations of United States defense measures taken in the Caribbean.

Neediest Families

Girl, 5, Expects Christmas Surprises for 'Mommy and Me'

Alice is only 5 years old, but worry has clouded her face. At a time when fortunate 5-year-olds are shining-eyed with expectation of Christmas surprises, Alice's eyes ask one question, "Will mommy and I have a place to stay and enough to eat?"

For Alice belongs to one of the 50 neediest families in Washington this Christmas.

For children such as she, and for their overburdened parents, The Washington Post's Neediest Families Fund must have generous contributions promptly—if no one is to be left out. Yesterday the fund had risen to $1,853.09, but much more is needed immediately, if the help is to be most effective.

Through this fund, readers may give Christmas cheer in the form of security for the next month or two, while each family is regaining its independence.

Care of Men Comes First

Army Admits Inability to Meet Schedule for Draft Induction

By John G. Norris

Army officials admitted last night that the published schedule for induction of selectees and the National Guard cannot be met and said that a revised time-table will be issued in the near future.

To date the War Department has refused to comment on reports from several sections that new camps will not be ready for the next increment of guardsmen and inductees, and it was said that this official silence will be continued pending completion of a survey now underway.

The survey of the situation was ordered by the high command and covers all questions affecting the matter — construction, equipment, transportation, etc. Before issuing another revised schedule, the department wants to make sure that it will not have to be changed again.

The stand taken by the War Department, it is understood, is that officials would rather accept criticism for delays in induction dates than to bring in the men before facilities for their proper care are complete. A strict rule has been laid down that no men are to be called until adequate sanitary equipment, heating, warm clothes, blankets, etc., are on hand.

Meanwhile, the War Department stated that an additional 20,000 Reserve officers probably will be ordered to active duty before next June 30, to help command the 1,400,000-man Army to be in uni-

African Blitzkrieg

By the Associated Press

London, Dec. 10.—Strong forces of the British Army of the Nile have thrown a line of troops between two major Italian invasion bases in Egypt in a continuing offensive over an area stretching far into the desert from the Mediterranean coast, it was declared officially today.

This new and "considerable" operation, which required the British to advance northward 75 miles from their interior Egyptian positions to engage the Italians, was described to a shouting House of Commons today by Prime Minister Churchill with the concluding observation:

"We shall no doubt receive further news shortly."

Applying in the desert wastes the very tactics of extraordinary speed and shock used by the Germans in the blitzkrieg of the west, the British broke through the Italian positions protecting the important Mediterrean base of Sidi Barrani—a main springboard of the Fascist invasion of Egypt begun weeks ago—and pushed on to the coast between there and Buqbuq.

The British news agency, Reuters, reported armored units operating in the rear of Sidi Barrani were believed to have cut off parts of two Italian divisions.

A wide British encircling movement already had engulfed a number of small camps outside of Sidi Barrani itself, it was said in Cairo, and in cleaning up the pockets the British were declared to be adding more prisoners to the 4,000-odd already reported held. A number of tanks and motor trucks were reported seized.

The British advance was in charging columns of tanks and armored cars supported by planes which machine-gunned Fascist columns just

British Hang 2, 1st Executions For Espionage

Pair Entered Country As Refugees With Portable Radio Set

By Robert P. Post

Copyright by New York Times

London, Dec. 10.—Curt notices pinned on the door of Pentonville Prison this morning ended the first espionage story brought to light in this war. They told of the hanging of Jose Waldberg, 25-year-old German, and Karl Meier, a Netherlander of German origin, 24.

Behind these notices was the story of how these two had slipped over to this country with instructions to pose as refugees. They had a tiny radio, which could be carried in two leather containers like camera cases. On their arrest, apparently soon after they landed in this country, they confessed that they had been told to mingle with people and report on possible targets, such as airfields, troops concentrations, ammunition dumps and factories engaged in the war effort.

According to an officer of the counter-espionage service, the two men had been told in September that the German army would be over to relieve them.

Came as Refugees

The British gave much publicity to the case, obviously using it as the text for a sermon on the danger of careless talk.

The two spies lost themselves among the tens of thousands of refugees who have received asylum here. There is a steady stream of them arriving weekly in many ways from neutral countries. A British accent in Germany would attract immediate attention, but a German accent here, even German itself, does not arouse any comment. You can hear it everywhere.

Thus conditions are ideal for spying and the Germans are known to be using them. They used them in France and they undoubtedly are using them again. There is not much wonder that the British start such things as a "silent column" and have been fairly strict with refugees.

Despite the fact that the men were confessed spies in wartime, they received full benefit of British justice, including a jury trial. They were not tried by the military and therefore were hanged instead of being shot.

The two men, according to their confession, planned to spend their nights hiding in woods, quarries and abandoned houses, whence they could use their tiny transmitter.

The wireless set was a masterpiece of German ingenuity. One case, which was 8 by 8 inches, weighed a pound when filled, also held a key and two aerials. The other case was about the size of a big camera case and held five batteries, three of 90 volts and two of 45 volts. They weighed about 3 pounds each.

Jailings Defended

Meanwhile, a slight storm blew up in the House of Commons today over the cases of British Communists and Fascists who are being detained in jail without facing a court of law.

Minister of Home Security Herbert Morrison defended the procedure, reminding the House that many of these people were avowed friends of the Nazi regime. The Germans had used Fifth Columnists as agents in other countries and some of these people might well take up arms if an invasion came, Morrison continued.

"The security of the state comes before anything else in time of war," he said, adding he was getting "fed up" when members of Parliament forgot the stern necessity of these regulations.

a week. The first one took place last Wednesday, just before Sir Frederick arrived.

None of the officials who attended would comment, but Secretary Morgenthau told the press:

"The purpose of the meeting today was to bring this group of United States officials up to date on the information which we have obtained from Sir Frederick Phillips, undersecretary of the British treasury."

Attending the meeting with Morgenthau were Daniel Bell, Undersecretary of the United States Treasury; Secretary of War Stimson, Secretary of Commerce Jones, Navy Undersecretary Forrestal, Assistant War Secretary Patterson, Chief of Staff Gen. Marshall, Undersecretary of State Welles, Herbert Feis, State Department economic adviser; Defense Commissioner William S. Knudsen, Merle Cochran, who is in charge of the Stabilization Fund; Philip Young, Treasury coordinator of war and defense purchases, and Harry D. White, chief of the Treasury's Division of Monetary Research.

It was believed that the conference also discussed Britain's need for merchant ships and additional warships, as well as the state of the British cash box.

Col. R. L. Maxwell, export control director, who will have actual charge of the expanded requirements, said they will cover almost all new iron and steel production in the fabricated and pre-fabricated stages.

The proclamation listed the following products:

Iron ore and pig iron.

Ferro-alloys—Ferro-manganese, spiegeleisen, ferro-silicon, ferro-chrom, ferro-tungsten, ferro-vanadium, ferro-columbium, ferro-carbontitanium, ferro-phosphorus, ferro-molybdenum.

Semi-finished products—Ingots, billets, blooms, slabs, sheet bars, skelp and wire rods.

Finished products—Structural shapes, steel piling, plates, skelps, rails, spice bars and tie plates, bars, hoops and baling bands, pipe and tube, drawn wire, nails and staples, barbed and twisted wire, woven wire fence, bale ties, fence posts, black plate, tin plate, sheets, strip, wheels, axles, track spikes, castings and forgings.

Schiaparelli Returning to Paris To Resume Dressmaking

Fabrics Available, All Smart Shops Busy, Says Modiste in N. Y.

Copyright by New York Tribune Inc.

New York, Dec. 10.—Mme. Elsa Schiaparelli will return to Paris by transatlantic Clipper about December 15, to resume her fashionable dressmaking business at 21 Place Vendome, she announced today following a lecture.

Mme. Schiaparelli, who fled Paris the day before the Germans entered, has been in this country since July 20. Her lecture today was the last of a series of 40 for which she had signed a contract before the German invasion. Now, the lectures are finished, she feels it her duty to return to her adopted land, she said. (She is an Italian by birth.)

"I go back to Paris," she said, "because I have lived among the French people there for many years as one of them, and have had great honor and much good at their hands—not only from the government, but the businessmen . . . now I have a duty to go back and be with them.

"I have had many offers to stay in the United States, and it would be very pleasant to do so. Perhaps I shall even lose some of my new friends if I go back, but so it must be. I have a firm conviction that France in the near future will come back to the place that belongs to her."

Questions were flung at her from the audience, chiefly women.

"Are the Germans buying as much in Paris?"

"The French are buying. They are still there," retorted Mme. Schiaparelli.

"Are the dress houses open?"

"Yes, all of them.

"Are the mills turning out fabrics?"

"Only four days ago I had word from one of the mills that they had found some new fabrics which they were keeping for me."

"If you make dresses in Paris, can you get them over here to sell?"

"We hope so."

She said all the famous dressmaking establishments, including her own, are now doing business. There are no wealthy foreigners in Paris, she admitted, and her sales must necessarily be limited to the French, but those who remained in Paris still have money, she said.

Sales might be smaller than before, she said, but at least she would be helping to keep up the morale of her employes, and to keep the business alive for better days.

as the Nazi dive-bombers operated ahead of ground troops in France and Belgium.

The British Mediterranean fleet and the R. A. F., Churchill told the House, are cooperating closely, and warships have bombarded the Fascists' coastal positions.

The activity of the air arm was illustrated by the announcement of the air ministry here that 22 Italian planes had been destroyed yesterday over the western desert, against the loss of three British planes.

As reported by the prime minister, the spearhead arrived at the coast between Sidi Barrani and Buqbuq, roughly 70 miles and 35 miles, respectively, within Egypt from the frontier of Italian Libya, from which the Fascists launched their invasion. Churchill would not say whether Sidi Barrani was wholly cut off.

Italian positions to the southward of Sidi Barrani had fallen to the British, with 500 prisoners taken in that single engagement, and the Italian commanding general killed; a second and more important position nearer the coast had been occupied by the British.

During the night the British brought up supplies and strengthened their positions; at dawn today they resumed the offensive.

Yesterday, British bombers smashed all during the day at Marshal Graziani's rear forces, assaulting every airdrome in the western desert and in Italian Libya, and in these raids "immense damage" was claimed officially.

The authorized description of air action made it clear that it was in three sections: Attacks upon Fascist troops, upon the bases of Italian air power and over the whole fighting area with especial attention to Italian troop transport along the coastal sector.

The road from Sidi Barrani to Bardia, Italian Libya, which Graziani must keep open if material reinforcements are to come up, was reported under attack.

The British were said to have run into fighter plane opposition chiefly in the forward areas. The Italians used three-engined Savoia bombers for dive-bombing the advancing British.

To begin this campaign, said Churchill, the British, supported by imperial troops and a detachment of the "Free French" forces, crossed 75 miles of desert "almost in a single bound."

By late October, he explained, the British in the Middle East had been in position to take the offensive, but the Italian invasion of Greece intervened and forced the dispatch of "a considerable part" of the British air force to aid the Greeks.

But at last, he said, the plan "had been matured;" the necessary planes were at hand.

Thus, he said, the men of the "Army on the Nile" began on the night of December 7 the long, hurried march toward the coast; yesterday, they fell upon the Italians "at various points over a wide front stretching from the coast, into the desert."

"It is too soon," he went on, "to attempt to forecast either the scope or the result of the considerable operations which are in progress but we can, at any rate, say that the preliminary phase has been successful."

they had established an advance outpost of the central defense line they sought to form.

The Greeks were said to be driving on unremittingly in hope of totally disrupting the Italian detachments before the expected arrival of 80,000 Fascist reinforcements.

According to front dispatches, it was believed the force of the Greek advance will make improbable the organization of a new Italian defense line since many of the Fascist troops reportedly are retreating in panic.

New Gains in North

Athens, Dec. 10 (AP).—The retreating Italians suffered "heavy blows" along the northern front today, a Greek government spokesman said tonight, and left more prisoners in Greek hands.

Over the entire front, the spokesman declared, it was a familiar story: A continued Fascist retreat, with rear guard fighting by the Italians "overthrown" as it developed.

At Delvino, he said, "large quantities of all kinds of materials" abandoned by the Italians were collected by Greek troops.

The Italian retirement north of Argirocastro was pictured as hasty. Units of the Ninth Italian Division were said to have suffered severe casualties in fighting at close quarters, apparently on the Italian left wing.

Rome, Dec. 10.—The Italian war bulletin today does not mention the British offensive in Egypt. It merely states "more enemy planes were shot down in northern Africa."

Enemy attacks in Albania on the Italian left wing and in the sector of the Osun River, according to the communique, were thrown back with heavy losses. "On the rest of the front the troops have consolidated their newly occupied positions," the statement continues.

Roberto Farinacci once again today attacks the general staff and, by inference, Marshal Pietro Badoglio, for what has happened in Greece.

On November 23, in his Regime Fascista, he accused the general staff of "lack of foresight and untimeliness" in an editorial which had great repercussions in Italy. Now he adds dire threats against the Greeks.

"If Italy's first intention had been temporarily to occupy Greece, so as to prevent her from furnishing aerial and naval bases to Britain," he writes, "today . . . our goal is very different. The Italian soldiers offended in their pride and in their heroism, have but one desire—that of inexorably striking the enemy."

An editorial of a different type in today's Popolo di Roma is equally enlightening in the present situation. It is a sharp attack on the "scoundrels" who read the French-Swiss press to get information from British sources.

"These are the ones who, on reading the communiques of our general headquarters, always have something to add," says the Popolo di Roma. "These are the prophets of disaster, the professional alarmists, the convinced pessimists, the empty brains and the sour stomachs who still exist among us here and there."

This element, continues the writer, should not be left unpunished. "That is the reason why it seems to us that the time has come for some beatings."

The first casualty lists covering the Greek campaign came out today. The total for November was 3,428, which included 770 killed, 731 missing and 1,917 wounded. Of these totals, 7 Albanians were killed, 20 are missing and 43 were wounded.

Mexico Offered $100,000,000 Plan to have that much or more at his fingertips.

A spokesman for the group said the offer was made in the belief that the Avila Camacho administration would ban experiments in collectivism and follow a much more conservative course than preceding governments of Mexico.

The combine's outline emphasized that prospects for safe investments under the new Mexican government appeared more favorable than in the United States, where economic experimentations still were said to be in progress.

Before the offer was submitted to Avila Camacho, several of the group had long talks with the President. The final blueprint, consisting of a seven-page summary, supplemented by two import folios of statistical data, was delivered personally to the President by Creel and Hastings.

It was indicated that Avila Camacho was disposed favorably toward the plan, viewing it as the solution to most of Mexico's economic ills. A spokesman for the Americans said today: "I am confident that we will have the support of the new Mexican government, as our proposal will be of great benefit to Mexico."

Hard pressed for funds, the administration is known to have been negotiating for a loan from the United States of at least $50,000,000 to initiate preparedness projects in line with continental defense and to give Mexican industry a shot in the arm. With twice that much now available, it was thought possible that the government might drop its other financial deals.

According to their own statements to the President, the American financiers are "ready and willing to begin immediate operations under a sympathetic Mexican government, under Mexican laws and with no specific guarantees and no demands on the United States to protect the investments." These investors expressed confidence that they can bring about the rehabilitation of Mexico at a profit to themselves and to Mexico.

An important part of the plan, it was learned, will be to "spread the capital around thin" on many projects, so that if losses are sustained on one enterprise it may be "balanced off" by profits in another venture.

The American group feels that six-year term of Avila Camacho will be sufficient time to get back the investment, plus interest. In their favor is the fact that many conservative investments pay as high as 25 per cent per year in Mexico, while against them is the precedent set by the Cardenas administration in government expropriations of private properties.

Projects Suggested

The following are a few of the "profitable undertaking" listed by the Americans:

Construction of a pipeline to carry natural gas from West Coast oil fields to Mexico City, which would cut industrial fuel costs 28 per cent, and net American investors 24 or 25 per cent profit per year on their investments, at the same time giving the Government 1-10 of a cent a cubic foot for what is now a waste product.

Development of hydraulic power, now largely in control of British interests.

Promotion of tourist facilities to encourage an increase in the number of visitors from the United States, it being recalled that, in 1939, 200,000 tourists spent $53,000,000 in Mexico, the equivalent of more than half the Federal budget.

Development of natural resources, particularly lead, copper, zinc, rubber and antimony, some of which are known to be essential for United States defense needs.

Promotion and development of the fishing industry, and of new enterprises, such as the canning and bottling of native fruits and vegetables to aid Mexican agriculturists.

The American combine recommends that, while its own operations are in progress, the Mexican government should take other rehabilitation steps such as reorganizing the nationalized railroad industry, and settling expropriation claims, particularly in the oil industry.

In the question of taxes, the group's survey contains a chart with comparative rates between the United States and Mexico. Mexican rate are shown to be substantially lower in all respects, with corporation surtaxes here listed as "negligible."

British War View Stiffens; Only 7 Per Cent Now Favor Negotiated Peace, Survey Shows

By Dr. George Gallup,

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion.

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 10.—A sharp stiffening of British public opinion against the idea of a negotiated peace with Hitler is revealed in a series of public opinion studies by the British Institute of Public Opinion.

Whereas last March, one-fourth of all British voters polled were in favor of opening negotiations for peace, today the proportion who actively favor this has shrunk to 7 per cent.

The overwhelming majority say that if someone in their presence suggested a negotiated peace with Germany now, they would either contradict him or report him to the authorities, apparently on the ground that such a suggestion amounts to treason.

Democratic Process

One of the most interesting aspects of the democratic process in a nation at war is the mere fact that a public survey can be taken in which voters are freely permitted to say whether they want the war to end. Equally interesting is the manner in which the British Institute, entirely manned and directed by a British staff, put the question in the survey.

"If someone in your presence suggested that it would be a good idea to have a negotiated peace with Germany now, what would you do?"

The interviewing was concluded just before the debate in Commons Thursday in which a peace move was voted down 341 to 4.

The survey results made were:

Agree that it would be a good idea	7%
Contradict him	59
Report him to the authorities	13
Say nothing	21

The "say nothing" group included those who had no ready answer or were undecided.

Confirmation of the survey results came only three days ago in a British by-election in Northampton, where a "stop the war" candidate received only 6.5 per cent of the vote, as compared to the country-wide vote of 7 per cent for peace in the Institute's survey.

Peace Trend Lower

What gives added importance to the result is the contrast with the previous survey taken last March.

At that time, before the fall of France and the air blitzkrieg on England, more than three times as many people favored a negotiated peace as favor it today.

"Would you approve or disapprove if the British government were to discuss peace proposals now with Germany?"

March 10, 1940

Yes	35%
No	60
Undecided	60

This survey was taken shortly after the arrival in Europe of United States Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles, whose mission was widely interpreted in England as a possible peace move.

Official Vote Tests Survey Performance

With official and complete election returns received by the Institute from State officials in 11 more States, further checks on the accuracy of the Institute's 1940 election survey are made possible.

	Gallup % For FDR	Popular Election % For FDR	Deviation
N. J.	52%	51.8%	.2
Minn.	51	51.9	.9
Del.	56	54.8	1.2
Mich.	48	49.8	1.8
Ga.	87	85.1	1.9
W. Va.	59	57.1	2.1

Ariz.	61	63.8	2.8
Ind.	45	49.3	4.3
Pa.	49	53.5	4.5
Utah	55	62.4	7.4

The average deviation in all the 48 States, on the basis of unofficial returns, was 2½ per cent.

Other comparisons in individual States will follow as soon as official returns are received by the Institute from the capital of each State.

Hitler Calls for Fight to the Finish

struction but the end of the German people."

At the same time, the Fuhrer said, the leaders of the democratic capitalistic system foresee the end of their system, should the idea which inspires the Third Reich prove victorious.

"We find ourselves in the midst of a conflict in which more is at stake than a victory of one or another land," Hitler declared. "It is truly a battle of two worlds against each other."

In this struggle, the Fuehrer added, "I stand against the world as the representative of the have-nots. I will never recognize the legal claims of others to that which they robbed by force. In no case can I allow justification of those legal claims for that which has been taken from us."

The capitalist democracies fight, the Fuehrer added, for the preservation of the gold standard. "I understand that," he continued, "for they have the gold. Our gold was plundered and extorted from us."

German productive power, he declared, "is our gold—our capital, and with this gold I can beat any other power of the world."

There is no power in the world, the Fuehrer asserted, which will be able "against our will" to remove Germans from territory they now occupy in the West.

U. S. Planes Of Little Use, Briton Says

English Union Head Speaks at Dinner Here To High Officials

American fighting planes are of such low caliber that they are of little use to Great Britain, Sir Walter Citrine, the leader of England's trade union movement, declared last night.

SIR WALTER

The slender, gray-haired general secretary of the British Trades Union Congress, told an audience of Supreme Court Justices, Cabinet officers, Senators, high Government administrators and American Federation of Labor officials that no combat planes now being built in the United States can compare with British and German models.

Speaking to a dinner in his honor, given by the A. F. of L. in the Willard ballroom, Sir Walter said that his job in the United States "as the humble instrument of a great national purpose" was to "waken the American people to the vastness of the task that lies before them."

He pointed to he prevalent belief in this country that American planes are the best in the world, or at least the equal of those fighting over the British Isles, and declared: "I regret profoundly to say that this is not so. But I think that you ought to know the truth, although there are many people in my own country who will not agree with me."

Arrived in U. S. 3 Weeks Ago

Sir Walter said that he had been in the inner councils of British plane production before coming to the United States three weeks ago.

The issue of the war for the British trade unions, Sir Walter emphasized, is one of "survival or extinction." That is why, he declared, labor in England has thrown its all behind the war effort, but continues to insist upon "full recognition as a movement" in the determination of policy.

Realizing that imposition of "cooperation" upon the workers by compulsion could not succeed, the British government, he said, has planned to conduct the war in consultation with the unions.

Introduced by Green

He was introduced by William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, who declared that "labor in America is willing to make sacrifices equal to labor in Great Britain if the occasion arises." Green insisted, however, that there must be more labor representation "in the councils of government."

Attending the dinner, in addition to most of the high officials of the A. F. L., were Supreme Court Justices Black and Reed; Secretaries Perkins, Jones and Wickard; Senators Davis and Capper, and the members of the National Labor Relations Board, Chairman Harry A. Millis, Dr. William Leiserson and Edwin S. Smith.

Other officials were Chairman Otto Beyer, of the National Mediation Board; House Majority Leader McCormack; Federal Works Administrator John Carmody; United States Housing Administrator Nathan Straus; Dan W. Tracy, Assistant Secretary of Labor, and James J. MeEntee, director of the Civilian Conservation Corps.

Rayville Survivors Land in California

San Francisco, Dec. 10 (AP).—The liner Monterey docked today with 800 more Americans returning home from the Orient and survivors of two ships which sank in the South Pacific.

These ships were the City of Rayville, presumably sunk by a mine explosion, and the Director Second, exploratory vessel which ran on a reef.

The City of Rayville went down about six hours out of Melbourne, Australia. Harry Carter, 27-year-old seaman who was lookout at the time, said she sank in 45 minutes after an explosion at the bow. One man was killed. The remaining 37 of her crew escaped and 16 returned on the Monterey.

Former Business Manager of 'I Am' Movement Tells Jury of Agreement to Divide 'Love Gifts'

By the Associated Press

Los Angeles, Dec. 10.—A former business manager of the "I Am" movement told of his financial arrangement with the oganization today, and why he withdrew, at the trial of ten asserted leaders on mail fraud charges.

Harry F. Seiber, a Government witness, identified letters he said were written to him by the late Guy W. Ballard, founder of the movement, in which it was agreed that "love gifts" made by its adherents were to be divided equally with him and that he would be given a 30 per cent discount on books it published.

"Mr. Ballard told me that St. Germain had dictated the letters," Seiber said as he identified a pamphlet he said was prepared in September, 1934, "and ostensibly dictated by St. Germain himself," in which Seiber was instructed to see that followers of the movement "make such free-will gifts as their 'I Am' might instruct them to do."

"Well, you were willing to make money by accepting money in a proposition you didn't actually believe in?" presiding Judge Leon R. Yankwich interposed.

"Well, I sort of got to believing in the I Am movement until I got hit by a truck," Seiber replied.

"I was supposed to have a protecting influence about me, but in Baltimore a truck driver didn't seem to notice either me or my protecting influence, and he got me."

Csaky's Visit To Belgrade Disturbs Nazis

Horthy Not Believed Trying to Build Up German Prestige

By C. L. Sulzberger
Copyright by New York Times

Budapest, Dec. 10.—Foreign Minister Count Csaky leaves for Belgrade late tonight on a formal visit which is expected to result in the signature of a friendship pact between Yugoslavia and Hungary.

On the surface, Germany appears delighted with the prospect. It is said in German official circles that the Hungarian statesman will help to sway Yugoslavia toward the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo bloc, and that he is, in a fashion, acting for Berlin.

Actually, this is not the case. Berlin is privately disturbed about the Belgrade talks. It is known that Regent Admiral Horthy, of Hungary, and Regent Prince Paul, of Yugoslavia have been carrying on secret negotiations and they are certainly not aimed at building up further German prestiege. Fuehrer Hitler does not regard either regent as over-friendly, and to say this view is reciprocal would be an understatement.

Seems Unlikely to Succeed

The hope of the two chiefs of state is that some day an accord may be worked out among Turkey, Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Hungary, under the terms of which a consolidated front would be put up against any foreign demands to send troops through any of these countries.

Actually, chances for the success of any such plan seem less than remote. At best, Hungary might be able to reduce the possibility of her having to take action against Yugoslavia at a later date by making an accord with that country now. Under the terms of the pact which Hungary recently signed with Rome, Berlin and Tokyo, she is, in effect, an ally of those three countries.

Therefore, if Germany should one day desire to send an army through Yugoslavia against Turkey, Hungary would seem obliged to consent to passage through that country and perhaps to render military aid herself. If a nonaggression pact between Budapest and Belgrade exists, this country may plead to be excused.

What Count Csaky will find when he goes to Belgrade is that Yugoslavia, while neutral, is allowing increasing rein to its private showing of sympathy, now that the danger on its Albanian frontier is becoming weaker. There is no doubt that the regent will make this clear to the Hungarian foreign minister when he sees him, even if Yugoslav Foreign Minister Cincar-Markovic pursues a more traditional and pro-German line.

German Gains Slow Up

Behind the scenes there are many evidences of slowing up of German diplomatic gains. For example, there is not nearly the enthusiasm here about joining the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo accord that there was at first, now that it is realized that Rumania and Slovakia are also allies under the pact. There is likewise considerble popular resentment against the increased shipments of food to the Reich, resulting in shortages and price rises here.

Likewise Bulgaria is not by any means giving herself up wholeheartedly to Germany. When King Boris saw Hitler, he warned that if Bulgaria signed any accord with the Reich, war with sensitive Turkey might result. This took the wind out of Hitler's sails, and when he asked King Boris to sign the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo pact the argument against it was already presented.

The petitioner listed involvement in $8,563 of debts and said he had no assets.

Joan Manners Is Fined $15 For Illegal Passenger Driving

JOAN MANNERS

Actress Collected Funds for British Relief, Police Say

By the Associated Press

Beverly Hills, Calif., Dec. 10.—A $15 fine was imposed in police court today on Joan Manners, former British film actress, on her plea of guilty to charges of transporting passengers without a permit.

Miss Manners first was accused of falsely collecting money from persons whom she picked up for rides in her automobile, telling them it was for British War Relief. A vagrancy charge was substituted later. This was superseded today by the permit charge on her agreement to plead guilty.

Max Gilford, who said he was counsel for Miss Manners at the request of prominent English residents here, told the Court that she acted without criminal intent. He said money she collected had been turned over to the relief fund.

Miss Manners is under $500 bond pending outcome of deportation proceedings against her. The Bureau of Immigration charges she is in this country illegally.

War Sidelights

Germany Has Lost the War, Former Czech President Says

By the Associated Press

London, Dec. 10.—Germany has lost the war, former President Eduard Benes of Czecho-Slovakia said today in a press conference.

Announcing the formation of a Czecho-Slovak "state council" to function here as an advisory body until Parliament takes over, Benes expressed his belief in "the certainity of British victory and the certainity of the reestablishment of the republic" at Prague, because:

"Only two countries in the world can be master of the seas—Great Britain and the United States.

"The aviation potential in the hands of Great Britain and the United States is so big it can not be equalized by Germany."

Italy "is now only a liability and will be to the end."

British Women In Paris Interned

Paris, Dec. 5 (AP) (Delayed, Via Berlin).—Women of British nationality remaining in Paris were taken into custody today for what authoritative sources said was "indefinite internment." They have been reporting each morning to police stations in response to an order issued shortly after the German occupation. Only a few had been interned previously.

England Spending $62,956,764 a Day

London, Dec. 10 (AP).—The British government spent the record sum of £15,739,191 (about $62,956,764) daily last week, published exchequer returns disclosed tonight.

Wetter Will Head Swiss Confederation

Bern, Switzerland, Dec. 10 (AP).—Ernest Wetter, chief of the Swiss government's finance department, was elected today president of the Swiss Confederation for 1941.

Wetter, former commercial college professor, had been given the job of directing Switzerland's fight for economic independence during the European war. He came into the Swiss Federal Council in 1938 as a representative of the so-called Swiss Radical-Democratic Party which, even in conservative Switzerland, is considered one of the more conservative parties.

U-Boat Captain Lauded for 2 Big Ships Sunk

Armed Merchantmen Reported Putting His Total at 45,000 Tons

By the Associated Press

Berlin, Dec. 10.—Germans reported fresh successes at sea today in the Nazi counterblockade of Britain while explaining that unfavorable weather had limited aerial raids since the "monster" attack on London Sunday night.

(The German radio in a broadcast heard in New York said German warplanes disabled and set fire to a British ship during a raid on a convoy Tuesday near the Thames mouth off Harwich. It said another ship was "attacked successfully" off Ramsgate.)

Capt. Victor Schuetze was singled out by the high command for praise as the commander of a U-boat reporting the sinking of two armed British merchant ships totaling 14,500 tons, this increasing "to 45,000 tons the enemy merchant shipping space his submarine has sunk."

Warship's Operations Recounted

"One warship operating overseas," its communique said, "of whose activity a partial account already has been given, increased its sinkings to more than 100,000 tons.

DNB, official German news agency, reported a brush between a German submarine and the 1,337-ton Canadian destroyer Saguenay in the Atlantic, in which the destroyer was torpedoed and had to be towed to port for repairs.

(Canadian naval service headquarters at Ottawa said that 21 of the crew of the Saguenay were missing and 18 wounded.)

The high command's communique did not specify where the new sinkings took place.

The communique said unfavorable weather limtied activity of the German air arm and that bombs dropped on occupied regions and northern Germany during the night did only immaterial damage. It acknowledged loss of three planes in the Sunday night raid on London.

London Reports Sinkings

London, Dec. 10 (AP).—The admiralty announced today 13 merchant ships, totaling 52,229 tons, were sunk by "enemy" action in the week ended December 1, compared with a weekly average of 65 weeks of war of approximately 62,000 tons.

The latest report included nine British ships totaling 41,360 tons, three Allied ships totaling 5,734 tons and one neutral ship of 5,135 tons.

It was pointed out the Germans said they sank 227,500 tons of shipping in the week ended December 1.

The earth and its sister planets receive only one-120,000,000th of the energy radiated by the sun.

D. C. Executive Among 12 Hurt In Train Wreck

Southern Railway's President and His Secretary Injured

A Washington railroad executive and his secretary were among 12 persons injured yesterday when seven cars of the Southern Railway's passenger train, the Ponce De Leon, were derailed 14 miles south of Atlanta, Ga., the Associated Press reported.

Ernest E. Norris, 58, of 2204 Wyoming Avenue Northwest, president of the Southern Railway and a director of the Richmond, Fredericksburg and Potomac Railroad, suffered a broken leg and head injuries when his private car dropped about 20 feet off a trestle into a dry creek bed.

Norris' secretary, J. M. Allwine, of 4004 Illinois avenue Northwest, sustained a fracture of the pelvis. Three other railroad officials, five passengers, and two porters were hurt.

Norris, the Associated Press reported, was trapped in his overturned car, but when a porter tried to rescue him, he shouted: "Let me alone, and get the passengers out. I am not hurt badly."

The officials were en route to Jacksonville, Fla., from Chicago, and had left Atlanta 30 minutes before the accident. Norris' son, Frank, had left the party earlier on another train for Albany, Ga.

Three years ago Norris was elected president of Southern Railway after working up from the ranks.

Economic Commission From Cuba Disbands

The Cuban economic and technical commission, here for the past two months to negotiate a rehabilitation loan for Cuba, broke up yesterday with the departure of several members. It dissolved in an atmosphere of uncertainty closely after the resignation of Cuban Ambassador Pedro Martinez Fraga for "personal reasons."

Josephine Baker Returns to France

By the Associated Press

Lisbon, Dec. 10.—Josephine Baker, American-born colored dancer and singer, was reported tonight to have returned to unoccupied France, where she had been offered a contract as a night-club entertainer.

She came to Lisbon two weeks ago from Madrid, en route, it was said at the time, to the United States. But theatrical circles here said she had contracted for a number of engagements beginning January 15.

A Madrid report said she reentered unoccupied France three days ago.

Fled When Germans Banned Colored Revues

For many years queen of the revues in Paris, Miss Baker fled the capital soon after the German occupation banned colored and Jewish entertainers from night clubs.

Proir to the armistice her entire troupe had joined one headed by Maurice Chevalier in a tour of the war zone to entertain French troops.

Her nude, exotice dances once were the toast of hotspots in Prague, Vienna, Budapest and Belgrade.

In Yugoslavia, in 1929, a Croatian stabbed himself because she refused to marry him; in the days of the Austrian republic, she was the subject of a bitter Parliamentary debate, the clerical party deploring her appearances in Vienna and the Social Democrats upholding them.

In 1931 she was made queen of the Paris Colonial Exposition and she never left her beloved Paris for long thereafter until Nazi racial bans deprived her of her livelihood.

In 1937, she was married to Jean Lion, a French broker.

Flying Lieutenant Missing in Panama

Balboa, Canal Zone, Dec. 10 (AP).—Second Lieut. Charles R. Plosser, Jr., was missing late today after the United States Army plane he was piloting on a combat practice mission plunged into Panama Bay.

Army officials said it was possible that Plosser had bailed out safely and was making his way through the jungle. A crash boat will not be able to reach the wreckage of his plane until low tide tomorrow.

Radio's 'Amos' Divorced; Wife Alleges Cruelty

By the United Press

Hollywood, Dec. 10.—Freeman Gosden, soft-spoken "Amos" of the famous radio team of "Amos and Andy," today was divorced by Mrs. Leta S. Gosden on charges of cruelty.

Although on the radio, Amos is always attempting to cheer up his partner Andy, in real life, Mrs. Gosden testified, he was sulky and morose, making her nervous and contributing to her ill health.

The comedian permitted Mrs. Gosden to obtain the decree by default.

Superior Judge William S Baird granted the divorce after hearing Mrs. Gosden's brief testimony and that of a corroborating witness, Gladys Gardner.

An undisclosed property settlement previously arranged provides for the support of Mrs. Gosden and their two children, Freeman, jr., 12, and Virginia Marie, 10. Terms of the agreement, which was not presented for court approval, were not made public.

The Gosdens were married in Chicago, June 13, 1927, and separated last month.

Voorhis and Jackson Agree on Spheres

By the Associated Press

The Dies Committee and the Justice Department reached an agreement of sorts yesterday on a method for keeping off each others' toes while simultaneously investigating Fifth Column and other subversive activities.

Under a formula worked out by Representative Voorhis (Democratic), representing the committee, and Attorney General Jackson, the Congressional investigators will make public only matters which in their judgment are unlikely to lead to criminal prosecutions. The department, in return, will supply the committee with pertinent information "not involved in possible prosecutive action."

The understanding was the product of suggestions made by President Roosevelt, who, complaining that "premature disclosure of facts or of suppositions to the public," would hamper the work of the F. B. I., called Dies to the White House and urged that an understanding be sought.

At his home in Orange, Tex., Dies said he would rather close the investigation than have it handicapped by an inadequate appropriation "or some implied agreement that will prevent us from doing an honest and fearless job." He added:

"There is a very fundamental difference between Mr. Jackson and myself as to the manner of handling the situation."

The Voorhis-Jackson understanding was announced by the publication of an exchange of letters in which Voorhis said he was confident that the members of the committee and its staff would be "eager to carry on" in accordance with the formula outlined. The two pronounced themselves in agreement that the department and the committee 'are not in any sense competitors or rivals."

Lutheran Clergymen Favor Hoover Plan

Lutheran clergymen of Washington yesterday went unanimously on record as indorsing former President Herbert Hoover's plan for feeding conquered European nations.

Meeting at Reformation Lutheran Church, 212 East Capitol Street, they adopted a resolution submitted by Dr. Oscar F. Blackwelder, host pastor, and indicated that a similar resolution would be submitted to individual Lutheran congregations this Sunday.

The clergymen said the parable of the Good Samaritan was a perfect illustration of what the Christian attitude should be in the war relief situation.

D.C. Reserves Called To Caribbean Duty

The crack Third Division of Washington's Naval Reserve Battalion yesterday was ordered to Caribbean duty "for a year or indefinitely," commencing January 1.

KIRK

The 81 men and 4 officers of the division, which is ranked No. 2 among the Nation's 139 sea-going reservist units, are to report before noon, New Year's Day, at Norfolk, Va.

There they will board an auxiliary vessel, the U. S. Nitro, which will take them to Panama Canal Zone and the ship to which they will be permanently assigned, the destroyer J. Fred Talbott.

The assignment was considered a distinct honor for the Capital division, which will be among the first reservist organizations to man a combatant ship. Most of the divisions from other cities already assigned have either been ordered to shore duty or aboard auxiliary vessels.

To Operate in Carribean

The 4 officers, 77 seamen, and 4 radiomen, of the Third Division, will comprise the entire complement of the Talbott, save for a skeleton crew of regular sailors.

It is understood the ship will continue to operate in the Caribbean, possibly in the neutrality zone patrol.

Officers reported their men, most of whom have drilled faithfully with the reservist unit for a half-dozen years, were euthusiastic about the prospect of the year or more at sea.

Officer personnel of the division is composed of Lieut. Francis S. Kirk, official of the Maritime Commission, commanding; Ensign Thomas H. Davis, jr., Federal Bureau of Investigation agent; Vermont C. Royster, Washington correspondent of the Wall Street Journal, and Robert Hoffman, civilian employe of the Bureau of Investigation.

The Government men will be granted special leave from their posts while they are serving with the Navy.

Drill at Navy Yard

In one of their last mobilizations, before their departure, the division marched last night in a drill at the Navy Yard.

Meanwhile the District National Guard announced posts were open for 20 men to serve as typists with the troops to be mobilized at Camp George G. Meade, Md.

Men with accounting, bookkeeping or banking experience will be considered favorably for enlistments and will attend special weekly classes to be instructed by Master Sergt. Stewart G. Cooke, chief clerk of the District Guard. For complete details those interested were instructed to apply to Capt. Edward Mullvanity, at the National Guard Armory.

First Lady Wins Inquiry on Union

crat), of Alabama, asked Mrs. Roosevelt if she wished to comment on the story of Mrs. Thomas, to which she had listened, after the First Lady had described what she termed "pretty bad" migrant camps she had visited.

Stating that she was not conversant with the situation under discussion, Mrs. Roosevelt said she believed that if it were not "a racket" an adjustment would be made so that a man would not be deprived of work because of his inability to pay the initiation fee.

"I think you ought to get the local union head up here and have it out," she concluded. The room full of spectators applauded.

C. F. Preller, business agent of the union, said last night that $300 has been the standard fee for entrance to the union for more than 15 years. He said, moreover, that a strict course in apprenticeship and four and one-half years of experience were necessary before a man could qualify for admission to the union.

Preller added, however, that frequently applicants who qualified were permitted to pay as little as $25 or $50 down and the remainder at the rate of $1 per day while working. The union makes careful investigation of all applicants and cannot afford to give a card to "every Tom, Dick and Harry who asks for one," he stated.

Mrs. Roosevelt's second appearance before a Congressional committee was made in something like a Hollywood setting. Strong spotlights were turned on her constantly and news cameramen were taking snapshots.

After she had testified for more than an hour, Mrs. Roosevelt remained to repeat a few phrases of her testimony for the movie cameraman. Then she shook hands with Mrs. Thomas and her six children, smiled and talked with them while cameras clicked again.

Mrs. Roosevelt described migrant camps she inspected in California. Some of them had limited conveniences and sanitation, she said, while others were "jungles" and "pretty bad."

She said that epidemics in the camps were "inevitable" because of the lack of sanitary facilities.

The Government camps, such as those built by the Farm Security Administration, are "good if the people would follow the pattern," she said, "but they are 'not enough'."

Migration is done by the "finer people," Mrs. Roosevelt declared, "those who still have the spirit of adventure."

She said she had been impressed by the beauty of the children but was disturbed at the lack of educational facilities and proper food.

She agreed with Representative Parsons (Democrat), of Illinois, who referred to her as "No. 1 Migrant," that the problem is national in scope and not one the States can solve.

Army Thrown Off Induction Schedule

form by then. Bulk of those to be called will be lieutenants and captains, as is the case of the reservists now in service.

In another development, the department ordered 30 Regular Army units transferred to new stations, more than half of them being concentrated a tFort Devens, Mass.

Twenty-Ninth's Training Delayed

National Guardsmen of the Twenty-ninth Division, which includes all elements of the District Guard except the 260th Coast Artillery, very likely will not enter training camp before March 1, The Post was able to establish yesterday.

The 260th probably will be inducted, according to previous schedule, some time between January 3 and January 19.

These calculations, based on the present status of construction at camps where the Guard units will be trained, were confirmed yesterday by Army officers in position to know. So far behind schedule is construction at Fort George G. Meade, Md., that the induction date for the Twenty-ninth Division, it was understood, cannot be set except tentatively.

The delay over the country generally was attributed by Army officers partly to shortage of materials and skilled workmen and partly to overambitious schedules for cantonment construction.

The 260th Coast Artillery, tentatively ordered to Fort Bliss, Tex., last November, was held back by unreadiness of Bliss to accommodate its 1,300 men. Facilities at Bliss are now completed and, after a few shifts in units now quartered there, will be ready for the local Guardsmen.

Battleship at Singapore Means War, U. S. Warn

Honolulu, Dec. 10 (AP).—Lieut. Gen. Hatsutaro Haraguchi, retired, member of the Japanese Diet, said in an interview today that the sending of even one American battleship to Singapore would precipitate war with Japan.

He is en route to Japan after "doing my best to soothe relations between the two countries."

GUARDSMAN COLLAR SHIRTS

There are many reasons why our Guardsman Collar Shirts are given such leadership over all others. It may be the superfine fabrics or it may be the rich distinction of our patterns. Again it may be the luxury of its finish or the quality construction. It may be the exclusive styled collar created by Saltz F Street to accommodate the demands of hundreds of our well dressed customers—

It may be any or all of these. But we think, consistent with these desirable features, that it is value, the hard-headed dollars-and-cents advantage in price that Guardsman Collar Shirts offer that really clinches this impressive support. Come in today and look over the shirts that eight out of ten of our customers prefer.

Wallis Rallies After Operation on Her Jawbone

The doctor indicated that the ...chess would not be fully out of ...e anesthesia before morning.

A bulletin issued simultaneously ...y the Duke announced that on Dr. ...artee's advice, the Duchess would ...emain in the hospital until at least ...riday, and that he would remain ...here with her. Temporary plans to move the Duchess to a hotel for convalescence tomorrow were abandoned, and plans to return to Nassau on Friday seemed less and less likely.

The Duke was nervous and distrait as any husband during the half hour, between 1 and 1:30 p. m., that the Duchess spent in the operating room. After the former Wallis Warfield was returned to her room, His Royal Highness heaved a long sigh and said:

"It's a great relief to know it's all over with!"

Five prominent local medical men, including Dr. Cartee, were involved in today's operation. Dr. Robert M. Harris and Dr. Cayetano Panettiere did laboratory studies and a general physical examination before the operation, and Dr. Colquitt Pearson and Dr. Ralph Sappenfield administered the anesthetic.

Telephone calls regarding the Duchess' condition, which flooded the hospital, were handled by a special switchboard. The many boxes and baskets of flowers which arrived during the day were put aside until such time as the Duchess will be able to look at them.

The flowers and messages were tangible evidence of the friendly, enthusiastic welcome to these shores which was poured upon the duke and his American-born duchess by the thousands who crowded the municipal pier this morning to see their arrival, at 9 a. m., in the yacht Southern Cross.

The day involved a tumultuous, friendly and touching welcome from thousands packed around the Miami Municipal Pier. It coincided with the fourth anniversary of the duke's abdication.

The masculine segment of the American press fell head over heels in love with the duchess on sight and found the duke a wholly informal, affable and charming man.

The duke received the press on the afterdeck of the Southern Cross, on which he and the duchess crossed with the owners, Mr. and Mrs. Axel Wenner-Gren. Looking incredibly young, healthy and sunburned, without a trace of the circles that once distinguished his blue eyes, the duke sat at ease on a bamboo settee. He was a spruce figure in a navy blue sack suit, a light blue shirt and a blue-and-white-checked tie.

"Without a doubt, Your Royal Highness, life in Nassau agrees with you," one reporter began the interview. "I have never seen you look so well in all your life."

"Yes, indeed," the duke laughed promptly. "I thrive!"

It was an innocuous interview in which reporters asked the duke his reactions to another glimpse of America, but forgot to ask him how he felt on the fourth anniversary of his abdication.

"The duchess and I are very glad to be here," the duke said, but he added, lapsing for the only time into the American vernacular, "it is pretty rough on the duchess to have to come home on such an occasion as this."

The duchess, a vision of chic in navy blue, joined the group, to the obvious delight of every man present and the stunned admiration of the women.

Despite the constant pain she has been suffering, she looked fresh and lovely, her jaw was not noticeably swollen. Although painfully thin, she was her usual animated and charming self. If she was in pain, she hid it like a trooper, and laughed and chatted informally with her husband and reporters.

Her navy blue, two-piece ensemble of dull flat crepe was made with a pencil slim dress whose self belt tied in front. Her hip-length jacket had, in place of sleeves, a little elbow-length cape. On her faultlessly groomed head was a mercury cap of navy blue felt with tiny wings of navy blue and white feathers. A navy blue face veil, with white dots, completed the hat. Her hands were in immaculate white gloves that flared half way to her elbow. Her tiny feet were in navy suede opera pumps and she carried a matching suede bag.

diabetes, is almost too weak to continue with his part-time job. Now the family, with four small children, will have aid while both parents are recovering their health.

Among the contributions in yesterday's mail came a $100 check, the whole amount asked for Family No. 23. So now Mr. T.'s family will be provided for until he is able to go back to his painting job. The four children, including one with a tubercular hip, and Billy, who is learning to walk again after infantile paralysis, will have the food and warmth they need until their father can support them.

With a check of that size, an individual or organization can remove a family from the neediest list and give it a new chance. But all contributions, no matter how small, will have a bright share in lifting the load from some family too heavily burdened to solve their problems alone.

A check for $191.85 from Severine G. Leoffler, owner of the Washington Eagles team of the Eastern Amateur Hockey League, yesterday swelled the Neediest Families Fund. The check represented 10 per cent of the gate receipts of the Eagles-New York Rovers match Friday night at Riverside Stadium. Leoffler staged a benefit match for the fund last year also.

The next two families on the neediest list are presented today:

Family No. 27

Deserted by her husband, locked out of the little furnished room which is her only home, Mrs. S. says she could somehow stand the bitterness of the situation—if it were not for her little girl, Alice, 5 years old. "But I can't bear to see her suffer," she says.

A little help until she can find a job is all she asks. But finding a job will not be easy. She is an intelligent young woman, but she has had no experience, and her health has been undermined by years of worry and trouble.

Mrs. S. married at 18, and two years later Alice arrived. At first, everything went happily. Mr. S. had a steady job as clerk in a grocery store and the family managed fairly well on his salary of $18 a week. But about three years ago, he started drinking. For more than a year she put up with it, hoping he would do better and trying to hold the home together for the sake of the little girl.

Finally, her fear of his violence when he was intoxicated drove her to a separation. He agreed to pay her $40 a month for the support of herself and the child. She found a cheap furnished room and lived there in peace. Then Mr. S. was fired for coming to work drunk. Soon afterward he disappeared and now she does not know where he is.

When she could no longer pay her rent, she and Alice were locked out. A friend took them in, letting them sleep on a cot in the kitchen and sharing clothes with them, since all of Mrs. S.'s belongings were held by the landylady. But of course she cannot stay there very long.

Just $75 would provide for this family for the next two months, while Mrs. S. seeks a job for which she probably will have to have some training. Good food and freedom from worry will do much toward building up her strength, so she can carry on without aid.

Case certified and help administered by Family Service Association. Amount needed: $75.

FAMILY NO. 28

In the T family both parents are jobless and the youngest child, 3, is ill. The other two children are healthy and active, but the parents are discouraged about keeping them so, because funds for food and clothing and other necessities have dwindled to almost nothing.

Mr. M is 35 years old. He has been jobless since September, but has hopes of getting work soon on one of the new housing projects. Mrs. M, 31, had a small job as receptionist in an office, but had to leave it in November because the youngest child, Don, contracted whooping cough.

Now the child has developed an asthmatic condition. Because of his difficulty in breathing, he must have her constant care. Her own frail condition now would prevent her from returning to work at present, even if she could find it.

The rent is now two months' overdue. All the children need clothing. Mrs. M sews well, but there is no money for material. She used the last flour sacks for making sheets and pillowcases.

Mrs. M. has explained to the children that they mustn't mind if they don't get everything they want for Christmas. She tells them, "Maybe Daddy will get a job before long, and that will be better than any Christmast present that any of us could get."

Even little Don understands that, now.

With $85, the family would be provided with rent, food, clothing and other essentials for a short period until they can help themselves.

Case certified and help administered by Catholic Charities. Amount needed: $85.

These needy families are not eligible for public relief, and the funds of the various social agencies are severely limited, insufficient to meet all the demands made upon them.

Each one of the 50 neediest families were selected by one of the five following agencies: Family Service Association, Catholic Charities, American Legion welfare department, Salvation Army, and Bureau of Rehabilitation. These agencies which are members of the Community Chest and are supported by Chest funds carry all costs of administering The Post's fund for the neediest families.

Arnold Fosters 'Fascist' Aims, HighCourtTold

Trust Division Head Calls Jurisdictional Strikes 'Coercion'

Assistant Attorney General Thurman Arnold yesterday carried to the Supreme Court his battle for application of the Sherman anti-trust law to labor unions which allegedly restrain interstate commerce through strikes.

In arguments with union attorneys before the court, Arnold, head of the Justice Department antitrust division, was accused of fostering a program of "pure fascism."

Arnold urged the justices to uphold a Federal indictment charging A. F. of L. Carpenter Union officials with violation of the Sherman law.

Statement Challenged

Assailing jurisdictional strikes as injurious to small unions, to the principle of collective bargaining and to national levels of commodity costs, the assistant attorney general declared:

"This program of union coercion . . . has depressed annual wages because it has put the cost of building above the reach of low-income families."

After Justice Frankfurter challenged Arnold's argument by pointing out that even "mature" labor systems suffer from jurisdictional strikes, that "they have had them in England for hundreds of years," Charles Tuttle, New York attorney for the Carpenters Union, launched a caustic attack on Arnold's contentions, saying:

Government Appealed

Tuttle denied that such strikes affect interstate commerce in such degree as to bring them within scope of the antitrust law, and said that Arnold's insistence that unjustified strikes are illegal "is fascism—pure and simple."

The issue was thrust before the high court on the Government's appeal to sustain an indictment against "Big Bill" Hutcheson, president, and other officials of the International Carpenters' Union, charging antitrust law violation in a jurisdictional strike over construction of buildings for Anheuser-Busch Brewery in St. Louis, Mo.

The carpenters ordered a strike when contractors denied their claim that only their union members could erect and dismantle all types of machinery, employing machinist union members for parts of the job.

Proud of 8-Pound Son, Andrea Will Give Up Movie Career

Actress Prefers Real-Life Mother Role, 'Most Wonderful Thing in World;' And She Adds, 'The More the Merrier'

By the Associated Press

Hollywood, Dec. 10.—Proudly displaying her new son, Film Actress Andrea Leeds said at a hospital today that she is giving up her movie career for good.

"I think motherhood is the most wonderful thing in the world," she declared.

The 8-pound boy was born Saturday night about 10 minutes after the actress and her husband, Robert S. Howard, reached the hospital on a flat tire.

Howard is the son of Charles S. Howard, wealthy automobile man and racing stable owner.

Holding up the baby, Miss Leeds said:

"Isn't he a husky fellow? And he's not going to be raised on a bottle, either.

"I don't care how many children we have—the more the merrier."

Bankers' Estimate Puts 2-Year Defense Bill at 25 Billions

By Claude A. Jagger
Associated Press Financial Editor

Hollywood, Fla., Dec. 10.—The Nation's chief raisers of capital—the investment bankers—were presented an estimate today that the net demands for funds for the national defense effort would exceed $25,000,000,000 in the two-year period ending June 30, 1942.

At the same time, the delegates to the annual convention of the Investment Bankers Association of America, in session at the Hollywood Beach Hotel, received news that the United States Treasury would offer $500,000,000 in taxable notes as an indication of the beginning of a broad program by Secretary Morgenthau to draw upon the Nation's investment savings, rather than continue to finance the Government with credit created by the banks.

In making the estimate for the bankers of the amount of capital funds which will be required, Dr. Virgil Jordan, president of the National Industrial Conference Board, said that barring a larger increase than anticipated in national income, it was likely that the real savings of the country during the two-year period would fall short of the requirements by about $10,000,000,000.

Must Guard Against Collapse

This would have to be raised by the creation of credit by the banking system, he said. Such credit expansion, he described as a "speculative adventure—but not likely to be dangerous in its early stages." He warned, however, that the Nation should look ahead and prepare to apply the brakes, to avoid "a postwar collapse of unimaginable magnitude."

In this connection bankers attending the convention said they understood plans were afoot in Washington to apply these brakes. One suggestion was said to be that the Treasury tap a large proportion of the idle excess reserves of the banking system, now at unprecedented levels close to $7,000,000,000 and sufficient to support an enormous credit expansion.

The plan would be to give the banks non-negotiable Treasury bonds, in return for a portion of their reserves. These bonds could be cashed in at the Federal Reserve Banks, if the commercial banks later needed funds.

Bankers said the Government was faced with the conflicting problems of desiring to apply brakes against inflation and at the same time accomplish its borrowing as cheaply as possible. Applying brakes to credit expansion would normally tend to make interest rates higher.

Individual Is Paramount, Roosevelt Says

Political, Economic Freedom Go Hand In Hand, Says Message

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 10.—President Roosevelt says that "no subject is of more vital concern to every man, woman and child in this Nation" than "national unity for defense."

Mr. Roosevelt expressed his views in a message to David Sarnoff, president of the Economic Club, congratulating the club for selecting that subject for discussion at its meeting tonight.

"The very discussion of this problem in open forum highlights the contrast between the totalitarian and democratic concepts of government," the President wrote. "In the totalitarian scheme such a discussion has no place. There can be no real unity where the people have no voice."

The President added that "the freedoms that we must and will protect in the United States are the freedoms which will make the individual paramount in a true democracy."

"In our American way of life political and economic freedom go hand in hand," he said. "Our freedoms must include freedom from want, freedom from insecurity, and freedom from fear.

"I firmly believe that we can best secure these freedoms by Government and private enterprise working together for these common objectives. In this joint effort there must be provided proper reward for labor, proper incentive for enterprise, and a proper return on investment."

Among the speakers who discussed "national unity for defense" were Charles E. Adams, chairman of Air Reduction Co.; Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker, president of Eastern Airlines, and Philip D. Reed, chairman of the board, General Electric Co.

William Carter Funeral to Be Held Today

Funeral services for William C. Carter, 67, a route agent for The Washington Post for 32 years, will be held at 2 p. m. today at his home, 1465 Chapin Street Northwest. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Mr. Carter died Monday of a heart attack at his home.

He was born in Clark County, Va., and came to Washington 45 years ago. For several years he conducted a dairy business. He became associated with The Post in 1903, remaining a route agent until 1935. Since 1935 he had been employed in the office of the circulation department.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Selina E. Carter, and a son, Malcolm T. Carter, of Washington, and two brothers, J. B. Carter, of Lincolnia, Va., and Archie Carter, of New Jersey.

American Resorts Prepare Entertainment For All Pocketbooks

By Elisabeth C. Taylor.
Travel Editor

America is going places this year—all right around home. Winter vacationers are packing their trunks, many of them still marked with foreign labels, for winter sun and snow spots.

In preparation for what promises to be the greatest travel year in their history, America's resorts have planned entertainment programs which cover every possible taste and pocketbook. The great transportation systems have improved their schedules to speed the traveler to his chosen spot. Shipping companies have routed new cruises, planned unusual side trips. Even the red caps seem ready for a gala season.

The famous resort cities of Florida will attract thousands of snow-fearing northerners to their beaches, their smart hotels and comfortable cottages. All summer long hammers pounded and concrete mixers groaned as the cities shot up new skyscraper hotels in time for the winter season. Now they are ready, the carpets rolled out and the beach chairs in place, waiting for their visitors.

Gulf Coast resorts, long known to their neighbors for their pleasant winter climate, are becoming better known to the general traveling public and will draw many visitors. Those who have enjoyed New Orleans on previous trips, probably will choose this winter to see Mississippi's capital, may visit historic Vicksburg, or stop and see the world-famous Bellingrath gardens near Mobile, Alabama.

Charleston Beautiful

Georgia and South Carolina will also claim the attention of the southern traveler. Charleston, noted for its beauty in the spring when azaleas splash color along its quaint streets, welcomes the visitor with a charm all its own, while Sea Island, Ga., offers hunting on the salt marshes along the sea.

North Carolina's sand country resorts have planned an active sports season for the winter of 1940-'41.

North of the Maxon-Dixon line, snow seems to be king. Pennsylvania's hills are ready to welcome their share of skiiers as are the better known snow resorts of New York and New England. Canada, of course, continues its wide program of winter sports for which it is famous.

Out in the West, the dude ranchers are hitching up the teams to meet their guests on the latest thing in streamlined trains. Modernity in railroad transportation is not, however, confined to the west. In addition to providing the best in accommodations, the railroads have added other notable features to their service.

Deferred Payments

One is the 'travel payment installment plan," an arrangement which makes it possible for anyone purchasing more than $50 worth of transportation to pay for the trip after his return. Another feature hurries the traveler to his destination by rail and gives him a car for his use after arrival. He may either ship the car as baggage, or, under the 'rail-auto' plan, rent a car at the end of his train journey for use in that territory. Schedules and new trains cut hours from the running time, giving the vacationer more time in which to bask in the sun.

The inter-American travel picture has changed radically in the past two years. Department of Interior figures show travel increases between the United States and other areas in the Western Hemisphere range from 12 to 48 per cent in the first half of 1940 as compared with the same period of 1938, while the once mighty trans-Atlantic stream of travel has dwindled to almost nothing. The top gain of 48 per cent was registered in travel from South America to the United States. These figures show, says W. Bruce MacNamee, chief of the United States Travel Bureau, that the Good Neighbor policy is having practical results and is to be held largely responsible for diverting northward the travel which went to Europe before the war.

Travel Increased

"Travel Bureau figures show," MacNamee said, "that conversely, American tourists and business representatives are touring Latin America in greater numbers. Travel to South America from this country increased 15 per cent for the first 6 months of 1940 as compared with 1938. To Mexico and Central America, the increase was about the same, 12 per cent.

"West Indian points were the only unfavorable item on the travel ledger of the Western Hemisphere." Mr. McNamee continued. "Confusion in the shipping world at the outbreak of the war in September, 1939 drastically curtailed cruise travel. By the beginning of 1940, however, this situation had clarified and travel to West Indian centers was once again approaching normal levels. Final returns for the January-June period of 1940 show that travel to the Caribbean was back to 86 per cent of the 1938 level."

With the cruises planned for the 1940-41 season covering somewhat the same area as that now being visited by President Roosevelt it may be expected that the figures will go still higher this year. Cruises are planned, too, from one American port to another, and to the Canal Zone as well.

Mayaguez, Puerto Rico—Apartment house lunch is what American visitors to Puerto Rico, Uncle Sam's vacation playground in the Caribbean, call the "Fiambrera." It's shown above on the head of a local vendadore. The boy walks about and sells meals from the multiplex container. This is one of the many picturesque sights seen by visitors to this tropical island with the temperate climate, the fastest growing tourist resort in the West Indies.

Miami's Grid Games Mostly Under Lights

Except for the two big holiday games, all of Miami's football contests are played under lights at colorful Burdine Field.

The intersectional Christmas Day contest between North and South high school teams, and the colorful Orange Bowl clash on New Year's Day are the only two daytime gridiron classics. They'll wind up the season which will be marked by a total of thirty night football clashes on the same gridiron—probably the Nation's busiest football stadium.

It's a problem for the groundkeepers, but the turf is in tip-top shape all year round, nevertheless.

Riding Togs Needed to Enjoy Visit to Cape Haitien Harbor

How to choose a wardrobe for a West Indies Cruise is an old story by now, but if you sail on the "Kungsholm," which drops anchor in the palm-fringed harbor of Cape Haitien, on the Island of Haiti, you will need a riding costume to fully enjoy the unique experience of scrambling up the steep mountain trails to the crest of Le Ferriere, where stands that fabled castle built by Christophe, the hero of "Black Majesty."

Isabel McCord, the travel clothes expert of the American Express, who has just returned from a voyage to the West Indies, tells us all about it.

Of course, you will plan to visit the Citadel of Henri Christophe, that eighth wonder of the world, perched on mountain top 3,000 feet above the sea, says she.

You first drive as far as the ruins of the Palace of San Souci, at Milot, where the Black Emperor once held court, and there you change to horses and mount one of the sure-footed ponies which carry you up the break-neck mountain trails to the famous stronghold high above the tropical forests.

It is hot in the lower valleys but is always cool on the breeze-swept mountain top where you will eat your picnic lunch and explore one of the most remarkable structures ever built by man.

In packing for your trip it is well to include suitable clothes for this day on horseback in the hills. A pair of heavy shoes or boots, riding breeches or slacks and a light weight shirt will be comfortable, topped by either a sun helmet or a wide brimmed woven straw hat plus sun glasses to keep off the glare. This is simple advice that anyone may follow and, provided with such a costume, you will strike a prettier note than many who have packed only for ordinary days ashore in a typical West Indies city.

In this island French is the native tongue. If your French is rusty, take along a little pocket dictionary. You'll find conversing with your hosts in their own language most pleasurable as you jog slowly up and down the face of the mountain. You'll surely join the black boys who accompany you in singing with them "Bon soir, bon soir, Messiers, Mesdames."

56,503 Pledges From 922 Firms Gave $653,733 to Chest

Late Gifts Add $16,351 More to Grand Total

A final audit of contribution pledges to the Community Chest by firms and organizations in the District with more than 15 employes each, was reported by the Chest organization yesterday.

Altogether there were 3,532 additional gifts or pledges from all sources to the Chest, according to a late report from the auditors yesterday. These totaled $16,351, and brought the grand total to 96.52 per cent of the goal. The money shortage yesterday, therefore, was $89,620.

At the same time a plea for continued giving was issued by Herbert L. Willett, jr., Chest director. Members of the volunteer force are continuing to solicit pledges, he said. Those who wish to give can telephone Metropolitan 2284 or mail contributions or pledges to Chest headquarters at 1101 M Street Northwest.

A total of 212,450 persons, or 16,450 more than in any previous Chest drive, have given this year, but the average contribution is smaller than usual, it was reported.

It showed 56,503 pledges from 922 firms, totaling $653,733.71. This was 97.21 per cent of the quota of this group—officially designated as the group solicitation unit—the quota was $672,500.

In the following list the name of the firm is given first, the number of pledges from employes second, and the amount of money represented by the total pledges for each firm is given third.

AND Paul Jones' popularity has hit a new high, too!

Here's what happened: Two years ago, Paul Jones was being praised by connoisseurs for its delightful, non-sweet dryness. But though there were many men who enjoy a dry, tangy whiskey, some felt they couldn't afford Paul Jones at its former price.

So, without changing any of Paul Jones' expensive qualities, we reduced the price! And in less than two years, Paul Jones' popularity grew five times as big!

Just taste dry Paul Jones and see for yourself why it's one of the most popular whiskies in America! Frankfort Distilleries, Inc., Louisville & Baltimore.

JUST A FEW DOLLARS MORE THAN SMALLER, LOW-PRICED CARS!
$825 and up Luxury Liner De Luxe Coupe
$880 and up Luxury Liner De Luxe 5-Pass. Sedan
†This is Detroit delivered price and includes all Federal taxes and all standard equipment. Transportation, state and local taxes (if any) extra. Front directional signals and bumper guards at slight extra cost. See your Dodge dealer for easy budget terms.

ENJOY THE TRIPLE-THRILL OF DODGE FLUID DRIVE*!
1. Shift or not, as you like! Nothing new to learn. Greater comfort—added safety.
2. Great in Traffic! You start and stop smoothly without jerk or jar. And when you want extra-fast getaway, a flick of your finger into the getaway gear gives you a burst of speed.
3. The Smoothness of Oil! Combined with Floating Power, Dodge Fluid Drive gives unbelievable smoothness, ease of handling and longer car-life—another example of famous Dodge economy.

This big new 1941 Dodge has so much you're going to like that we can't wait to have you see and drive it!

Wherever you look, this car has the luxury touches and fine appointments you're delighted to find in a car priced so low. Stunning interiors...seats as wide as a divan...deep luxury cushions!

And in step with the smart Dodge styling are its new safety and economy features: For example, the spring-balanced rear deck lid to the luggage compartment raises or lowers almost without effort.

The new rear window is 47.6% larger to give greater visibility! The new safety wheel rims hold the tire even though a flat should occur! The new Oil Bath Air Cleaner literally washes the air before it reaches the engine—prevents grit from attacking bearings and cylinder walls, thus prolonging engine life.

And teamed with Floating Power, the new Dodge Fluid Drive gives unbelievable smoothness and ease of handling.

Why not drop in for a demonstration today? And don't forget—Dodge still sells for just a few dollars more than smaller, low-priced cars.

Tune in Major Bowes, CBS, Thursdays, 9 to 10 P. M., E.S.T.

BIG BARGAINS IN USED CARS!
The sensational success of Dodge Fluid Drive has brought us a wide assortment of wonderful used car values. Late model Dodge and Plymouth...and all popular makes, all body types at attractive prices.

Britain, China Bulwark U. S., Lippmann Says

If They Fall, America Will Face War Alone, Economic Club Told

New York, Dec. 10.—Walter Lippmann, special writer for The Washington Post, tonight warned that if Great Britain and China are defeated within the next 12 months "we shall face alone and while we are still unperpared a highly armed alliance in both oceans."

He addressed a dinner of the Economic Club.

Should the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo Axis powers win, he said, "they will offer us the choice of disarmament or a two-ocean war, the choice of disarming and then surrendering whatever else they may decide to ask or of fighting before we have been able to arm ourselves."

"What then must be our purpose?" he asked the 1,500 club members and guests, continuing:

"It must be to prevent this combination of European and Asiatic powers from breaking into the oceans and getting at us—to support by all the means at our command the resistance which keeps them locked up—out of reach—incapable of attacking us. Today they can threaten us. But they cannot attack us, they cannot carry the war into the oceans, they cannot carry the war into this hemisphere. Between them and us stand the Chinese and the British, who in fighting for their own liberties, their own independence, their own lives constitute a fortification behind which we remain invulnerable. Our purpose surely must be to strengthen this fortification. . . ."

Lippmann declared national unity requires that in furthering this policy, "the responsible leaders of both parties shall consult, that they shall keep each other continually and currently informed, that the Administration shall not act in great matters without asking the advice of the opposition and that the opposition shall not oppose without seeking first to work out with the Administration a policy on which they can agree."

Britain Grants China Credits Of £10,000,000

By Robert P. Post.

Copyright by New York Times

London, Dec. 10.—The British swung into line with the United States today by announcing they were prepared to grant sterling credits of £10,000,000 ($40,000,000) to China.

Through negotiations that had been proceeding for some time, the British were able to make this announcement the day after a threatening speech by Japanese Foreign Minister Yosuke Matsuoka.

The decision thus answers that speech, reasurres the Chinese that the British intend to continue aiding them, and serves as a notice to Japan that at the moment at least the days of truckling with Japanese demands are past.

Presumably the offer also carries an implicit assurance that China's lifeline—the Burma Road—will remain open.

Richard Austen Butler, undersecretary for foreign affairs, in the House of Commons explained that British gold and silver dollar assets must be conserved for their own use and therefore Britain was not able to follow the United States by advancing dollars. As a substitute she is prepared to advance a £5,000,000 ($20,000,000) Chinese stabilization fund subject to an arrangement ensuring that this money will not be spent outside of the sterling area.

At the same time by agreement with the Dominions government an additional credit of £5,000,000 ($20,000,000) will be extended for Chinese purchases withirt the sterling area.

The Chinese have been asked to agree early in the negotiations upon a necessary technical agreement. Butler's announcement pleased the House and was almost greeted with cheers.

The majority of the people here were most distressed over the way in which the British had given way to the Japanese in the past and the firmer attitude of the past two or three months is the result of this belief.

Girl, 15, Youth, 18, Die in 'Perfect Suicide Pact'

Eldorado, Ill., Dec. 10 (AP).—A "teen-aged" couple, missing since last Saturday and believed to have eloped, were found dead from asphyxiation in an automobile near here today in what Deputy Coroner Riley Belt described as "a perfect suicide pact."

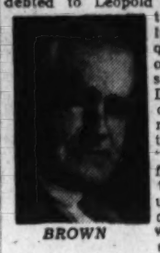
Pearl Harrelson, 15, high school sophomore, and her sweetheart, Charles Tate, 18, an NYA worker, were found in a wooded area by two of the girl's uncles who were hunting rabbits.

Deputy Sheriff Ivan Wilson said a garden hose, attached to the automobile's exhaust pipe, led into the front seat where Tate was found in a sitting position, his head bowed as if asleep, with the girl in his arms.

Postlude

By Ray C. B. Brown.

Leopold Stokowski conducts the Philadelphia Orchestra Tuesday night in Constitution Hall. Program: "Leonore" Overture No. 3 (Beethoven), Variations on a Theme of Haydn (Brahms), "Siegfrieds Tod" (Wagner), Symphony No. 6 (Shostakovich).



BROWN

Auditors at last evening's concert by the Philadelphia Orchestra in Constitution Hall are primarily indebted to Leopold Stokowski for two things: The lucid and eloquent disclosure of the new sixth symphony by Dmitri Shostakovich, and the magnificently tragic reading of "Siegfrieds Tod" from "Die Goetterdaemmerung." Other occasions there were for enjoyment of the inimitable Stokowski touch, applied to Beethoven's third "Lenore" overture and the Brahms variations on Haydn's "Chorale St. Antonii," but the exalted moments of the program were reached in the Russian novelty and in the familiar funeral music from the Nibelungen cycle. A stirred and clamorous audience recalled Stokowski repeatedly and won from him not only an expression of thanks for the reception of the symphony but also two extra numbers.

The concert began with a performance of the Beethoven overture notable for dramatic suspense in the hushed mezzo-voce passages and for an intense emotional vitality. The characteristic contrasts in dynamics were handled with extreme finesse and beautifully built climaxes of power. The succeeding transparent clarity in a sedulous Brahms variations were woven with adherence to the Brahms style. There was no seeking for bizarre instrumental effects, but a straight pursuit of thematic threads in their labyrinthine windings.

These two works were cumulative prepaartion for the splendid and deeply impressive tonal painting of Siegfried's passing. It was a sombrely limmed canvas on the heroic scale. In dimensions, in perspective, in the richness of color and the details of drawing it was overpowering. As a revelation of Wagnerian techniques and as a penetration of the sorrowful depths of the music, it was unsurpassed in my experience. Never was an intermission at a concert more welcome than the pause which allowed one to recover equanimity before encountering the first local performance of Shostakavich's orchestral work.

It has not been my lot to hear all of the symphonies of Dmitri Shostakovich, but I nevertheless venture to say that in the first movement of his sixth he has expressed himself with a greatness of accent which we have been waiting for from him. Never before has he been so serious and so intent upon spiritual meditation as in the pastoral mood of the opening largo. The strength of the melodic themes, the dignity of the treatment, the firmness of texture, the solidity of the harmonic sequences and the thoroughly sustained atmosphere constitute great music. Despite the intricacy of modern counterpoint, the music is easy to grasp at the first hearing, so fused is the ideational intent with the instrumental scoring.

In the second movement, Shostakovich reverts to his whimsical and somewhat impudent manner, and the allegro is a high-spirited and witty scherzo abounding in unexpected quirks. The final presto is still more exuberant and expands in a boisterous humor, with tunes deliberately popular in outline. One tune in particular, at the close of the movement, has the unabashed blatancy of the music hall. Interesting and piquant as the last two movements are in the continually varying devices of scoring and color contrasts, it is by the first movement that the symphony stands as a work of art.

At the end of the concert, the audience applauded Stokowski back to the stage three times, and a fourth, until it became evident that enthusiasm would not be satisfied without some other acknowledgement than bowing. The conductor made this acknowledgement with a few words of gratitude, and announced an extra number: Ottokar Novacek's "Moto Perpetuo," which was performed with a filmy grace. Even this did not result in calm, and Stokowski further pleased the crowd with the "Liebestod" as a farewell.

Mr. Berle's Vision

"NEW DIRECTIONS IN THE NEW WORLD" by A. A. Berle. Harper, $2.)

One of the qualities that has been foremost in President Roosevelt has been a remarkable ability to bring the economic and legal brains of the country into focus on political questions. His opponents have tried rather futilely to make political sport of this ability. But the long list of brilliant economists and legalists that grace the New Deal has lost only an occasional victim. Among the top-flight brain trusters Adolph Berle is by no means the least. As Assistant Secretary of State the past several years he has helped to formulate American foreign policy and has been one of its clearest spokesmen. To clarity of thought Mr. Berle brings literary facility. All told, this volume, small though it is, expresses the essential character of the New Deal as well as any we know.

There is one basic attitude that distinguishes a genuine New Dealer. He is an institutionalist. Briefly this means that he does not consider that the past or the status quo is permanent. Nor does he tie his ethical, legal or political values to what is or what has been. Although willing to study the past, he believes firmly that the past is prologue. If Mr. Willkie were really looking for people who are convinced that America is not finished he would spend his time at the feet of people like Mr. Berle. For he, like other New Dealers, looks at social institutions as instruments of human welfare caught in an inevitable process of growth, adjustment, reorganization and change. Philosophically, institutionalism is social instrumentalism.

But the genuine institutionalist is no mere contemplative spectator. Rather, his theory of institutions is preparation for social action. Since all institutions are in process, the New Dealer wades into midstream and begins to guide the process. Or in conventional political terms, the New Dealer believes in and practices governmental intervention or participation in the economic processes of the country. Our author is such a person, and definitely one of the best.

The five essays that compose the volume range from American foreign policy in South America to a study of all the many agencies of New Deal action. Monopolies, short-term and long-term credit, the entire banking structure, America's future postwar policy, all of these are discussed in a most stimulating fashion. In approaching all of them Mr. Berle at once recognizes their fluid character. All of these problems are processes. Through our Government we are giving new shape to both America and the world. Or so Mr. Berle hopes.

To all this praise of style and approach a few discordant notes of criticism must be added. It is unfortunate that Mr. Berle has persuaded himself that persuasion is the primary political process. He reckons as incidental the gigantic class forces and the clash of sectional interests. He seems to regard the people as an amorphous mass waiting passively for the active political artist to give them shape and direction. However, the fact that process is the nature of the social world does not mean that the social world has no inherent structure of its own. Although it is fluid, it still has form. As political creators, we do not work on prime, completely formless matter. Rather, the political sphere has a structure of its own, with its own internal and peculiar dynamics. Just as for any other field of reality, our action in this field moves within the limits set by the structure and the peculiar dynamics of this sphere. In brief, neither the simple ideal nor the purely expedient is sufficient in politics, for each of these ignores the inherent dynamics of the field. Unfortunately, these are the two political errors that derive from any idealist metaphysics, in this case from one of its illegitimate children, American pragmatism.

Success Story

"IN THE MONEY," by William Carlos Williams. (New Directions, 2.50.)

WILLIAM CARLOS WILLIAMS remains too little known. A novelist whose "White Mule" is required reading in more than one university, a poet whose work won the "Dial" $2,000 award as long ago as 1926, he has influenced many other writers and has held the attention of a small and critical audience. But to a large public he has continued to be almost unknown.

There is no better opportunity for that public to become familiar with his work than with the publication of "In the Money." Written with a lucidity almost unequalled in contemporary fiction, it is a novel which may be read on several levels but which is, first of all, as fascinating story.

It is the success story of an American family, of Joe and Gurlie Stecher, of their children, and of Joe's struggle to get "into the money." The time is the first years of the present century, when Joe sets up his own business and obtains a Government contract for printing in Theodore Roosevelt's first Administration.

"In the Money" is the sequel to Dr. Williams' "White Mule." But where "White Mule" presented the Stechers as epitomic of the lower middle class life of the American melting pot, "In the Money" records the transition of the family into the bourgeoisie. The play of forces, economic and psychological, involved in the transition is implicit in every page of the novel.

Dr. Williams is a pediatrician who, in a daily practice over many years, has come into intimate contact with the lives of families like the Stechers. He has made the utmost of his experience, observing with a poet's perception, to recreate such a family in the pages of a book. His method is a meticulous use of detail. He writes as carefully as if he were counting sutures. The result is that each character and each incident has its individual excellence.

Gurlie, the Norwegian wife whose prodding ambition is always behind Joe's efforts, might easily have become merely detestable; but in Dr. Williams' hands we understand her, and with her many women, too well simply to dislike her. Joe, reserved and able, is a craftsman who might have become an artist. Gurlie's standards are not his, and even in his struggle to get "into the money" he never comes fully to accept them.

It is, however, in the children that Dr. Williams' ability to recreate character is most apparent. The baby with whose birth "White Mule" opened, here grows into a distinct personality. Flossie's transition from babyhood to childhood stands alone, but it parallels the transition which is made by the family.

"In The Money" is not a novel to be summarized in a brief review. Dr. Williams, more than most novelists, values and knows how to achieve truthfulness and excellence. It is safe to predict that his work will be read for many years for its truthful and excellent picture of American life.

The Migrants

"MEN ON THE MOVE," by Nels Anderson. (University of Chicago Press, $3.) October 22, 1940.

We are all migrants. Our ancestors pored in successive waves across the continent, settling, moving once again, resettling. When modern industrialism gave our country a new frontier of opportunity to replace the closed geographical one, fresh millions migrated from our rural areas of the South and West to become the mighty labor armies of America. In the golden past, when our agricultural and industrial economy was expanding, migration was for the most part a successful process. Migrants were welcomed and encouraged. They were new valuable human assets to a growing national life. Courage, initiative, daring—these were the qualities that broke the plain and built America's industries.

Against this sort of background, our author, Mr. Nels Anderson, director of labor relations for WPA and a recognized authority on migration, has chosen to develop the present day tragic patterns of migrancy. For today the migrant continuing in the best American pioneer tradition is no longer welcome. The community treats him as an outsider. Social ostracism of all forms including police surveillence is his common lot. Without legal settlement, the stranded migrant has no right to relief. His wages are low, his employment irregular, his financial and physical reserves are gone, his health is far below the Nation's average, his children's education is years below standard, his housing is at best a tent or cow-sheds or huts; these are a few of the more harsh aspects of a pioneer's life today. The whole picture can be summed up in one word: destitution. Migration today ends for the vast majority in direct, unrelieved destitution.

There are many reasons for the new character that migration has assumed during the thirties. But the primary cause is the universal lack of job-opportunities. People are unemployed throughout the breadth of the land. And when the droughts strike in the Great Plains, crops wither and the soil blows away—time comes to move or starve—where shall our people go? When mechanization and commercialization of agriculture make of the family farm an economic anachronism—when 5,000,000 on our farms could be wiped away and never missed—where does the way out lie? When mechanization of the coal mines cuts the required labor force by half, when the great timber resources have been cut and recut until destroyed, when everywhere pools of unemployed wait restlessly in the shadows of closed factories—how can mere migration solve the problem? Starve or move; move and strave. Yet people move.

All this Mr. Anderson shows us. Like all of life careful study reveals the endless complexity of this problem. Even now a Congressional committee is closing six months of strenuous investigation of interstate migration of destitute citizens. Their hearings and report will doubtless help toward the solution of the problem that Mr. Anderson has so well portrayed for us in this work.

Parry And Thrust

"FENCING," by Joseph Vince (A. S. Barnes, $1.00).

If you like fencing you will like "Fencing," by Joseph Vince. This book is exactly what its title says it is—a detailed study of an instruction in the art of fencing. It covers the use of three weapons: the foil, the epee or duelling sword and the saber. The various weapons and methods of handling them are made additionally explicit by numerous black and white drawings.

"Fencing" is the latest addition to a long list of Barnes dollar books on sports, the best known of which are probably on football, basketball and baseball.

Mr. Walsh's Celtic Romanticism

"THE HILL IS MINE" by Maurice Walsh. (Stokes, $2.50.)

MAURICE WALSH has made a name for himself in that medium which never goes out of style—the romantic novel. Mr. Walsh's thinking and feeling and understand are for the Gaelic and in "The Hill Is Mine" he has written another novel in this romantic tradition.

The plot is neither new nor remarkable. Stephen Wayne, a young rancher from Montana, goes to Scotland to look over the croft left him by his grandmother, meets three young women, each disturbingly attractive in a totally different way, and marries one of them. That is all. It is Mr. Walsh's sense of story and of incident value, his flair for romantic behavior, that enable the reader to draw pleasure from reading his book.

Stephen first hears his Banffshire croft described by Kenneth-Kenny Alpin, a chance acquaintance in the "saloon-bar" of New York's Algonquin Hotel (and this isn't the first tale that began in the Algonquin). The description crystallized his plans for going to Scotland and if coincidence is strained a bit to enable him to meet the dark, vital, disturbing, sophisticated Lady Alice Tromes on the lawn before Castle Charles, the honest, appealing, violent red-headed Sheevaun Power at his own house, and finally, the sweet, young, pure Marian Finaly, daughter of the old laird, all in one afternoon, we shrug our shoulders and call it a novelist's prerogative.

The entire action takes place in the few days of Stephen's visit, and much of it centers around Ruary Farquhar, a crusty old Scot, who is famous for his poaching—whether the object of his hunt be deer, or merely trout or salmon snatched from forbidden pools. Then there is Buddington Hale, son of the American lady who now owns Castle Charles from which the old laird, The MacFinlay, retreated before mounting taxes and a gentlemanly lack of management to Lettoch Lodge. Stephen knew Hale in college and the time comes when there is nothing for them to do but fight it out. So they fight it out. You may guess who wins.

It's all done in the spirit of telling a good tale and if you find the descriptions of sunsets and sunrises and glades and mountains a bit overdone, and if you find the Scottish dialect a bit thick, you merely shrug your shoulders again and realize that a man is telling you about what he very thoroughly knows and very sincerely loves.

The Bonnie Boy

"LAST CLASH OF CLAYMORES," by Maribelle Cormack and William P. Alexander. (Appleton-Century, $2.)

THE PUBLISHERS, who ought to know, say that "Last Clash of Claymores" is "a story of youth for youth." I hope I am not confessing to an immature mind when I say that I read it with the greatest enjoyment. I have not yet received a report from my first-cousin-once-removed, aged 14, who assists me in these matters, but I am sure the verdict will be enthusiastically favorable.

The life of Bonnie Prince Charlie is an ideal subject for romance. Miss Cormack and Alexander have chosen a fine subject and have treated it in an almost perfect manner. Their account of the Forty-Five, so far as I am competent to judge, is historically accurate in every detail. The Young Pretender is seen through the eyes of a young follower, but the picture presented is a mature and well-balanced one.

If you have any friends or relatives in their early 'teens of a literary turn of mind, you will earn their fervent gratitude by giving them this book. If you plan to give it as a Christmas present, you would do well to buy it early, so that you will have plenty of time to read it yourself.

Some Suggestions

By the Book Editor

Fiction

One has been taught that war times are rarely productive of great books and especially of great novels, but it is easy enough to think of exceptions. For all that they affected the work of Jane Austen, for example, there might as well have been no French Revolution and no Napoleonic wars. And this year an Englishwoman, Jan Struther, has given us at least "Mrs. Miniver," a work as delightfully uninfected by the sicknesses of the age as "Pride and Prejudice" itself. But the two most notable novels of the year have come from our own country, each illustrating in its way the truth that tranquillity is more an internal rather than external matter. One of these is Miss Willa Cather's first book in five years, "Sapphira and the Slave Girl" (Knopf, $2.50). This is scarcely the greatest of her novels but all her great qualities are in it, her crystaline prose, her unerring observation of persons and things, and her awe and pity of human passion—in this case the jealousy of a Virginia gentlewoman of the 1850's for her mulatto maidservant.

The other novel, of course, is "The Beloved Returns," (Knopf, $2.50), Thomas Mann's study of the relationship of the artist to his fellowmen, based on an imaginary visit of the heroine of "Werther" to the now aged Goethe at Weimar. As a matter of fact, historical backgrounds of one kind or another dominate most of the successful novels of the year. At least two are concerned with the American Revolutionary War, but from rather unconventional vantage points. Mr. Kenneth Roberts gives it to us from the Tory viewpoint in "Oliver Wiswell," (Doubleday, Doran, $3), and Mr. Robert Graves in "Sergt. Lamb's America," (Random House, $2), from that of the Redcoats. Mr. Roberts gives you more pages and more melodrama for your money, but Mr. Graves' book is, I think, the better job, though scarcely up to the quality of "I, Claudius."

"Foundation Stone" (Knopf, $3), a first novel by a Washington author, Lella Warren, is about Alabama in reconstruction times. The doings in Miss Warren's Alabama are at least as interesting as the contemporary doings over in Tara, Ga. And if we may include the mythological under this bracket there is "The Ill Made Knight," (Putman, $2.50), wherein Mr. T. H. White, of "The Sword and the Stone" and "The Witch in the Wood" goes for another hilarious spin on his Arthurian cycle.

Sigrid Undset's "Mme. Dorothea," (Knopf, $3), has an eighteenth century Norwegian setting, but it is only incidentally historical. It is an admirable psychological study of a happy matron's adjustment to a sudden widowhood. This book, of course, was written before the German invasion of her country had driven this distinguished author into exile.

A very different kind of psychological novel is Georges Bernanos, "The Star of Satan," (Macmillan, $2.50), translated from the French. This is nothing less than the story of saint and of his direct and personal conflict with the devil. It is a book of great power and violence and on the whole pretty strong meat. Nearer the festal mode perhaps is Richard Llewellyn's "How Green Was My Valley," a rather rambling and disjointed but still very delightful story of Wales. This would be very good medicine for someone who has been getting his notions about Wales exclusively from Caradoc Evans or Dr. Cronin.

"The Ox-Bow Incident," by Walter Van Tilberg Clark (Random House, $2), is a fine blood-and-thunder melodrama of the frontier; written, however, with great sophistication and skill. For man or boy, you can scarcely go wrong on this one.

Biography, Memoirs

IT HAS BEEN a good year in this department, too. At the top of the list should go the new two-volume "Shelley," by Newman Ivey White (Knopf, $12.50). This is a much more comprehensive work on Shelley than any previously undertaken. It is likely to remain for a good many years, and perhaps forever, the standard biography of one of the four or five greatest poets in the English tongue. But if Shelley was the greatest of the early nineteenth century romantics, the most characteristic was Edward John Trelawny, whose adventures made even those of his friend Byron seem a little stuffy. Miss Margaret Armstrong, has recounted them all in her long, loosely written but fascinating "Trelawny" (Macmillan, $3). In the pages of "I Rode With Stonewall," by Henry Kyd Douglas (University of North Carolina Press, $3), the great demiged of the Confederacy steps out of his mythos to become a recognizable and altogether sympathetic human being. Col. Douglas was an officer on Gen. Jackson's staff and, quite aside from the biographical and historical value of the book, he has written one of the most intimate and vivid pictures of the Civil War as he saw it, and he had opportunity to see a great deal.

Among the best biographies of the year are those of two famous clerical statesmen. In "Alexander VI," by Senor Orestes Ferrara, sometime Ambassador of Cuba to Washington (Sheed and Ward, $3.50), the times and deeds of the head of the Borgia family are presented in a new and more favorable light. The book is of interest not only because, hitherto, few besides the late Baron Corvo dared venture a good word for the Borgias, but also because of the scholarship evident everywhere in the book. The other biography, also an exercise in scholarship, is "Richelieu," by Carl Burckhardt (Oxford, $5), an admirable study of the man who could be called the political father of modern Europe.

Among the autobiographies are three that are warmly commended to your consideration. Two of them E. F. Benson's "Final Edition" (Appleton Century, $3) and John Buchan's "Pilgrim's Way" (Houghton, Mifflin, $3) are mostly literary recollections of literary men. "Hugh Young," by the owner of that well-known name (Harcourt, Brace, $5), is the engaging life story of a most engaging personality who became the country's most distinguished urologist.

History

In this group we have first of all the vast and invaluable "Encyclopaedia of World History," compiled and edited by William L. Langer (Houghton, Mifflin, $5.50). This monumental work, compressing the principal events of more than 6,000 years into one not-too-fat and admirably arranged volume is already an indispensable work of reference.

Then we have Octave Aubrey's "The Second Empire" (Lippincott, $5), a sound, judicious and many sided study of the world of Napoleon III and its collapse. "The Great American Myth," by George S. Bryan, is a new and exhaustive study of all evidence relating to the assassination of President Lincoln. It is probably one of the most important works on the subject that has yet appeared.

Poetry

In this category the pickings are still pretty slim. We are happy, however, to remind you of "The Collected Poems of A. E. Housman" (Holt, $3), and the "Last Poems of William Butler Yeats" (Macmillan, $1.75). Among the anthologies we have the new "Oxford Book of Christian Verse" (Oxford University Press, $3.75), containing the best religious poetry in English. And then there is the new edition of the Oxford Book of English Verse itself, in which Sir Arthur Quiller-Couch has made several alterations and additions.

Children's Books

The Children's Books get better and better. This year there are so many beautiful ones that to mention them all would take the whole column. We must, however, find room for mention of two admirably edited anthologies, which have appeared this year. These are "Story and Verse for Children," edited by Dr. Miriam Blanton Huber (Macmillan) and "A World of Stories for Children" (Bobbs, Merrill). There is little to choose between them and they pretty well cover the whole field. Any child who is given either of them has something that will last for many a year. We should like also to squeeze in a mention of one or two others, "The American Mother Goose" (Stokes, $1.25), a collection by Ray Wood, of native folk rhymes, play rhymes, rope skipping rhymes and what-not, and the first book of its kind. Then there is the juicy new Tenggren edition of the traditional "Mother Goose" (Little, Brown, $2.50). And the David McKay Co., of Philadelphia, has just brought out at $1.50 each, two delightful "talking book" editions of "The Child's Garden of Verses" and "Little Black Sambo," each with a phonograph record of music or sound effects to be played as the child follows the text or the pictures.

Warfare

At the moment this subject seems important enough to be covered even in a Christmas list. "Roots of Strategy," edited by T. R. Phillips (Military Service Publishing Co., $2), is an anthology of the strategic and tactical principles of all the great captains who bothered to put them into writing. "War on Wheels," by Lieut. C. R. Kutz (Military Service, $2), expounds the technique of the motorized blitzkrieg. "New Ways of War," by Tom Wintringham (Penguin Books, 25 cents), discusses methods of beating off blitzkriegs based on the author's experience and observation in the Spanish Civil War.

Prize Stories

"O. HENRY MEMORIAL AWARD PRIZE STORIES OF 1940," edited by Harry Hansen. (Doubleday, Doran, $2.50.)

MR. HARRY HANSEN'S current collection of short stories, all published in magazines during the year which ended in July, 1940, indicate that the short story in America remained a vigorous literary form during the first year of a world at war.

The selection is not so broad as it might be (of the 17 stories, 7 come from two magazines) and there will certainly be those who will quarrel with the awarding of prizes; but the standard is high, and several of the stories possess an unusual degree of excellence.

Perhaps the finest is Richard Wright's "Almos' A Man." The only short story which Mr. Wright has published since the appearance of "Native Son," it has in brief many of the qualities which made that novel so memorable. Here again Mr. Wright makes an effective use of symbols; the longing of the Negro ploughboy for a gun becomes the desire for self realization of the Negro people. And the freight train, which the boy catches in the night, points down the long track "stretching away, away to somewhere, somewhere where he could be a man . . ." Mr. Wright was a craftsman in the short story before he was a novelist (his "Fire and Cloud" won the second prize in the O. Henry Awards in 1938, when the other prizes went to Albert Maltz and John Steinbeck) and his employment of the short story is in many respects as effective as his employment of the novel.

William Faulkner's "Hand Upon the Waters" is a vigorous and melodramatic story, in the genre which is distinctively Mr. Faulkner's own. Here is decadence and evil and decay in the deep South, murder and idiocy. Mr. Faulkner is a master of the creation of atmosphere, and in "Hand Upon the Waters" he pulls all the stops.

In contrast to Mr. Faulkner is the subtlety of Katherine Anne Porter's psychological study of a child, "The Downward Path to Wisdom" and the deftness of Kay Boyle's "Poor Monsieur Penalitus," the story of a Frenchman's reaction to the war.

Perhaps the most interesting stories from the point of view of craftsmanship and technique are Mary King's "Chicken on the Wing," from the Southern Review and William Saroyan's "The Three Swimmers and the Educated Grocer," from Story. Tom Tracy's "Homecoming" from The New Anvil is a realistic piece of documentary writing, in which the experience of riding the blinds is effectively conveyed to the reader.

The three prize winning stories, in order, are Stephen Vincent Benet's "Freedom's a Hard-Bought Thing"; Roderick Lull's "Don't Get Me Wrong"; and Edward Havill's "The Kill."

"The Kill" is the story of a hunter who is also an artist. He waits to make a kill which is meticulously correct, and comes back empty handed. The incident becomes a symbol of the hunter's relationship with his wife, and the story is told with much skill.

"Don't Get Me Wrong" is a story of more immediate significance. Two auditors, long unemployed, meet and have coffee and doughnuts together (in a joint where you can get both coffee and doughnuts for a nickle) and talk themselves into the conviction that war is not such a bad thing, if it provides good clothes, a warm place to sleep, and three meals a day in the army.

Stephen Vincent Benet's "Freedom's a Hard-Bought Thing" has much the same theme as Richard Wright's story. But it is told in terms so safely remote—the escape of a slave to Canada before the Civil War—that it loses much of the contemporary importance that it could have had, and Mr. Benet probably had little trouble selling it to The Saturday Evening Post where it first appeared.

"A Mediaeval Smithy." Illustration from "The Sons of Vulcan" by Thomas Hibben, an excellent book for children on the relationship of metalurgy to history and civilization. (Lippincott, $2)

Speaking Of Indians

"Hear Me, My Chiefs," by Herbert Ravenel Sass. (Morrow, $2.50.)

WE ARE reminded, in this new book by Mr. Sass, that Indians together with the birds of the air and the animals of the woods and prairies comprised the natural life of this continent when the white men arrived to despoil it. Only the human fauna perceived the end and occasionally yielded to leaders who strove to mobilize the natural men and push the "civilized" white invaders back into the ocean. The Indian defense of America is Mr. Sass's theme, but he does not write history. Instead he paints word panoramas with the stuff of history as backdrops for little-known personalities who had sufficient courage to stand off white aggressors who would despoil their mother earth.

So there is drama, romanticism, and poetry—there is even good writing—in this account of Chief Joseph, a frustrated strategist; of Christian Priber, a plump little philosopher who saw in his mirror a socialist Utopia which he founded in the Great Smokies; of Red Cloud, who won a war from the United States; and of Sauts the Bat, the Achilles of the Cheyenne, who pitted the finest cavalry that ever rode against the withering fire of well-aimed repeating rifles which reduced them to carrion.

The reviewer wishes that Mr. Sass had remained closer to his native Carolina where his ancestors were "less committed to the extirpation of the heathen for the glory of God" than their contemporaries of New England. For in the chapter "Drums under the Hills," based on James Mooney's monograph on Cherokee folk-lore, and his own personal rambles among the children of Mooney's informants, Sass approaches other nature writers who have written well of their landscape. "Parnassus and Latmos are far away, but you can go to Tsuwatelda tomorrow and hear the Nunnehi drums" (page 105). He does best in his own field. The "Pageant of the Herds"—of bison that roamed to the Potomac, the elk of Pennsylvania, the great herds of deer that sustained the Indian hunters, and the dreaded "painter" of the Alleghenies—and the "wonders of the air"—wild turkeys that brought two and one-half pence a pound in 1766; the whooping cranes; and the millions of passenger pigeons that are now extinct—are two chapters worthy of a naturalist.

As a nature writer Mr. Sass tends to overlook an immense public who share a borderline interest in Indians. Many persons come to the library of the Bureau of American Ethnology alone to consult "old travel-books and ponderous ethnological tomes and publications of ethnological societies," which Mr. Sass says are rarely read. Surely the prices that book-dealers demand for these items reflect a certain reader interest. Finally, there are a few errors of fact: particularly, the tribal map has many false locations, but they may not be the author's errors. And Mr. Sass contributes one striking truism—that "nearly all generalizations about Indians are subject to exception."

Coroner's Verdict

"WHILE THE WIND HOWLED," by Audrey Gaines. (Crowell, $2.)

THIS IS a fast-moving detective story whose setting is in Chevy Chase and whose author is a Washingtonian. This tale of the death of the wealthy Garrick Temple Carry, the red-headed nurse who appeared in Miss Gaines' earlier novel, "The Old Must Die" and the fat, easy-going but acute Chauncey O'Day, private detective, has the reader mystified to the end. Yet the denouement satisfies logic. Verdict: Yes.

"WHO'D SHOOT A GENIUS?" by Sturyes Mason Schley. (Random House, $2.)

Quentin Toby was not a detective but a pschiatrist. But the death of Winthrop Westcott, an outstanding novelist, apparently at his own hands, had certain subtle aspects which appealed to Toby particularly after the discovery of what had happened to Westcott became essential in the treatment of Mrs. Westcott's mental condition. The tale is extremely well told, with charm humor and suspense and the denouncement is one of the most ingenious we have encountered in a long time. Verdict: You betcha!

Of Management

"PUBLIC MANAGEMENT IN THE NEW DEMOCRACY, edited by Fritz Morstein Marx. (Harper, $3.)

"THE HARVARD GUARDIAN," an undergraduate magazine of the social sciences, recently sponsored a conference on the American public service. According to the jacket "some of the leading business and Government leaders" participated and this book is an outgrowth of that conference. Five public officials, four professors of political science, two leaders of Federal unions, one writer on Governmental problems, one Civil Service authority, one university student and one expert on private business management were represented. A varied and able group, certainly, but hardly a representative group of public and private management interests. Broadly speaking, the following topics are discussed from the management angle: publicity and research, leadership and employe cooperation, administrative coordination and responsibility, and varying phases of the merit system. The searchlight is put on policies and attitudes rather than on methods and procedures. Within the limits imposed, it is a most skillful and suggestive presentation of some basic problems of management and the public administrator will find valuable materials here on social pressures and trends.

"FREEDOM — AMERICAN STLYE," by Alan F. Griffen. (Holt, $1.)

THIS IS a very simple and unpretentious book about freedom and its meaning for those who live in the United States. This very simplicity of style, which is so successfully used to convey the meanings of freedom, makes it also an unusual book. The author carefully defines freedom and then relates it to the past, to the Constitution, to patriotism, to thinking and to the democratic processes. The book is neither a primer nor a profound treatise but it does represent a deft and intelligent simplification of a complex abstraction into plain English. Although written by a univeristy instructor, it is refreshingly free from academic prosiness. Aside from the style, interest is sustained by the discriminating use of incident and example from every-day life, by apt quotations and the inclusion of striking cartoons by Low, Kirby and Fitzpatrick.

An Industrial Relations Pioneer

"WHAT'S PAST IS PROLOGUE," by Mary Barnett Gilson. (Harper, $3.)

MISS GILSON is a pioneer in the field of industrial employment management. Her autobiography is a lively and always interesting account of her experiences in the industrial world.

After her graduation from Wellesley in 1899, Miss Gilson worked in a branch library in the slums of Pittsburgh, where she was able to see for herself the conditions under which industrial workers lived. From there she went to Boston, where her experiences in a trade school taught her the vagaries of the haphazard systems of hiring and firing which were used by even the most efficient concerns.

Thus equipped with a thorough understanding of the worker's side of the question, Miss Gilson put her experience to practical use in 1913, when she accepted the post of employment manager with Joseph & Feiss, a clothing factory in Cleveland which at that time was outstanding for its humane attitude towards its workers. There she was responsible for the labor and employment policies of this large firm, and her efforts at a scientific approach to these thorny problems met with great success. There, too, she acquired a distrust of company unions from watching one of the best and most paternalistic in operation.

When the war came Miss Gilson was employed by the Ordnance department in munitions work. Following that period, she worked briefly in an industrial counselling office, chiefly with textile mills, and then undertook the surveys of Hawaiian sugar plantations and of British unemployment insurance which have become classics in those fields. At present, she is teaching economics at the University of Chicago.

This frank, intelligent and practical story of her experiences in the field of labor relations should be of great interest to those who are concerned with that vital subject.

Nelson B. Bell About the Showshops

Those 'Good Old Days' Recalled by Filmusical

'Tin Pan Alley' Shakes Moths Out of 'Teens; Capital a One-Night Stand for Cornell Clubs; This, That and the Other About the Theater

QUICK STUDIES, those song-pluggers. They could pick up a brand-new tune, dash to a piano and toss it off perfectly, music and lyrics, without even one glance at the manuscript, fresh off the composer's desk with the ink still wet! Of course, they had the supporting advantage of invisible orchestras that sprang up and began to tootle where no orchestras were, but even so . . .

BELL

Which, no doubt, is heaving a quibble in the case of a picture as rich in fragrant memories as "Tin Pan Alley," previewed yesterday afternoon by the guys and gals of the pulpwoods. Next to "Alexander's Ragtime Band," "Tin Pan Alley" comes first. If it had been the first to reach the screen, it would have been the other way around. There really isn't much to choose between them, as the curious will discover when they flock to it, beginning tomorrow, at Loew's Palace Theater.

Here is a number packed with nostalgia—there's that word again—in the form of hit-tune reminders of the gay days in the theater, starting in 1915 and carrying on until we got into the First World War. And there are some surprises, too. John Payne, completing a stellar quartet that also includes Alice Faye, Betty Grable and Jack Oakie, turns out to be a bit of a singer, with a thoroughly pleasant popular-song voice, and globular Billy Gilbert breaks himself out—and down—as a song-and-dance "Sheik of Araby." The whole merry business is tricked out with lines fliply attuned to the wise-cracking craft they celebrate.

And, no matter what kind of a fumble was made here yesterday, "Tin Pan Alley" is NOT in Technicolor.

It certainly is great being a theatrical gazetteer—just one continuous round of pleasure, you meet so many disinterested people and collide with so many deadline surprises. Yesterday's review of "Out West It's Different," at the National, for example, gave out with the statement that Playwright Stewart Frank fell "blindly and numbingly in love," when what we thought we'd said was "blindingly." Believe it or not, there's a difference. And "last week's 'Off the Record'" came out "last year's." Somebody is either an ousley judge of speed or time hangs lightly on his hands—like an anvil! After all, what's 51 weeks?

Never again lay the claim that "show folks" can't keep a secret. Now it comes out that Stanley Barlup, whom we mentioned here no longer ago than yesterday as manager of Louis Bernheimer's new Vernon Theater, opening tomorrow night over Alexandria way, has been married more than a year to the former Miss Margaret F. Garrott, of Sharpsburg, Md., but long a resident of Washington. Announcement has just been made of the wedding, which was solemnized in the Cathedral Church of St. John, Wilmington, Del., on August 18, 1939, with the Rev. Joseph C. Wood officiating. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Barlup attaches any significance whatsoever to the fact that Sharpsburg marks the site of a famous battlefield! Boy, dig out some 1939 congratulations.

Hot on the heels of the Princeton Triangle Club's Christmas Eve matinee in the Capital, the Washington Cornell Club will bring the Cornell University Musical Clubs to the Shoreham Hotel on Saturday night, December 28, in an original, full-length operetta, "Co-ediquette." A cast of 70 male students, all from the Cornell campus, will make merry at the expense of the university's co-eds. "Co-ediquette" was written and composed by a Washingtonian, Richard H. Lee, Cornell senior, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cazenove G. Lee, jr.

Backstage operative No. 001 reports that quick deletions, some tightening and other carpentry did wonders for Monday night's performance of the Repertory Club of the Washington Theater's "D. C. Melody," at Wardman Park. As Bert Lahr would say—and did in "DuBarry Was a Lady"—could be, could be. The opportunity was ample.

Punctilio, I calls it. Our old friend Bill Fields, of the Playwrights' Company, goes to the trouble and expense of airmailing, special delivery, that he couldn't make Washington yesterday, but will be down from New York today. That would be about Elmer Rice's "Flight to the West," coming into the National next week, of which more later, Mr. Field making the grade.

Close-Ups and Long-Shots Of the Motion Picture Scene

Hollywood, Dec. 10 (INS).—Came home from my tour more convinced than ever that June Preisser should be given her chance on the screen. I cannot believe Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer realizes the enormous popularity of this child, who was cheered and applauded by audiences before she ever danced a step. It would be worthwhile getting the best teacher in the country for little June to teach her new routines.

PARSONS

I had no more than gotten to my desk when M.-G.-M. told me that as soon as she finishes "Babes On Broadway," with Judy Garland and Mickey Rooney, she will be put in "The Big Time" by Howard Emmet Rogers—a story of vaudevillians, with Arthur Freed producing. I am not telling M.-G.-M. how to run their business. They have been too successful and made too many fine movies, but I do think that June should be given an opportunity without Judy Garland and Mickey Rooney for, with them, she doesn't get a break.

Peck's bad boy, pardon me, Warners' b. b., is leaving soon for a vacation—and no questions asked where he is going. It's Hal Wallis' guess that it will be South America, but it's my guess he is going to New York to see some shows. When Errol Flynn returns he will be starred in "They Died With Their Boots On," an original story about Gen. Custer by Wally Klein and Agnes McKenzie.

Snapshots of Hollywood Collected at Random: Ham Nelson will spend Christmas with Bette Davis and don't be surprised if a reconciliation takes place; Ann Sothern and Roger Pryor are trying to work out their marriage. At the moment it doesn't look too hopeful; Brenda Joyce is in the Methodist Hospital—a flu victim and also to give her injured arm more treatment; Ann Sheridan and Warners are still far from a settlement, but Ann and George Brent have kissed and made up and were at a house party at La Quinta over the week-end. Greta Garbo was also there—all by her lonesome.

John Hubbard collapsed on the set and is very ill with the flu; Rudy Vallee's new heart is Rosemary Coleman, a model; Arline Judge was at the airport to kiss Jack Dempsey good-by when he took the plane for New York.

That's all for today. See you tomorrow!

Elmer Rice's Latest Drama Opens Monday

Playwright's Present 'Flight to the West;' Other Incoming Bills

"FLIGHT TO THE WEST." Elmer Rice's latest play opens a week's engagement at the National Theater Monday evening prior to its New York run under the banner of The Playwrights' Company. The author of "Street Scene" has set his new characters aboard a transatlantic clipper winging from Lisbon to New York, an unusual setting designed by J. Mielziner. The author, who also staged "Abe Lincoln in Illinois," directed. Betty Field heads the cast, which further includes Arnold Moss, Paul Hernried, Hugh Marlowe, Eleanora Mendelsohnn, Constance McKay, James Seeley, Boris Marshalov, Helen Renee, Karl Malden, Grandon Rhodes and Kevin McCarthy. Matinees Wednesday and Saturday.

RKO-Keith's

"TRAIL OF THE VIGILANTES." After over a year on the legitimate stage, Franchot Tone returns to the screen in this story of the western frontier. Warren William, Broderick Crawford, Andy Devine, Mischa Auer, Peggy Moran and Porter Hall have the chief supporting roles. The plot concerns a Kansas City newspaper's efforts to track down the murder of a reporter. Allan Dawn directed. Opens this morning.

Palace

"TIN PAN ALLEY." Alice Faye, Betty Grable, Jack Oakie and John Payne have the featured roles in this musical film of song writers and their struggles. "K-K-K-Katy," "When You Wore a Tulip" and "Sheik of Araby" are some of the old songs and the supporting cast further includes Allan Jenkins, Esther Ralston, the Nicholas Brothers and Ben Carter. Opens tomorrow morning.

Earle

"EAST OF THE RIVER." John Garfield, Brenda Marshall, Marjorie Rambeau, William Lundigan and and George Tobias have the leads in this drama of an immigrant mother, one of whose sons brings her joy through his honest career, while the other becomes involved with lawbreakers. "Under the Big Top," the stage revue, offers Sharkey, the seal, who was such a success in the recent musical; "Higher and Higher;" Harry Stockwell, who sang Prince Charming in "Snow White;" Truzzi, celebrated juggler, and the dancers, Tip, Tap and Toe. Opens tomorrow morning.

Capitol

"I WANT A DIVORCE." Joan B. Londell and Dick Powell, husband and wife in real life, have the same relationship in this comedy of a divorce lawyer and the effect his business has upon his home life. Topping the supporting cast are Gloria Dickson and Frank Fay. Harriet Hocton, dancing star, heads the Capitol stage revue with two of her foremost creations, "L'amour Coquette" and "Modernistique." The comical "Senator" Murphy returns with a new monologue, while Ben Yost's Varsity Eight and the Herzogs complete the new bill. Opens tomorrow morning.

Metropolitan

"THE LETTER." So great has Bette Davis' success been in this melodrama of Singapore's upper classes by W. Somerset Maugham, that it will remain for a second week on F street after a previous engagement on Thirteenth Street's Earle screen. James Stephenson, Herbert Marshall and Gale Sondergaard have the leads.

Columbia

"BITTERSWEET." Jeanette MacDonald and Nelson Eddy return for a second engagement in this film version of the Noel Coward operetta. "I'll See You Again," "Zigeuner" and "Tokay" are three of the songs. George Sanders, Ian Hunter and Felix Bressart head the support. Opens tomorrow morning.

Little

"THE BAKER'S WIFE." The ninth and final week of the notable French film begins this morning. The Little management has announced that this "final week" warning means business, and that the film will come off the escreen one week from last night. Raimu is the star and John Erskine wrote the subtitles. Also continuing is a 20-minute film concert by Paderewski.

Trans-Lux

"GREAT GUNS." A tour through a great armament factory of Sweden is the feature of this new travelogue topping the short features on the new bill at the newsreel theater. "Hunting Wild Deer," shot on the Sea Island Game Reserve, and a short subject on sketching, "Nice Work if You Can Get It," are other shorts on the program. Opens Friday morning.

Wardman Park

"D. C. MELODY." This satirical revue by the Repertory Club of the Washington Theater continues through Saturday evening in the Wardman Park Theater, with Ethel Barrymore Colt in the starring role. Leon Askin directed the company of outstanding local players, including Mimi Norton, Austin Gattis, Bibby Osterwald, Larry Lawrence and Betty Leaf.

Gayety

"REVUE OF REVUES." Amy Fong, the Chinese charmer, returns to the Capital for the first time this season in the burlesque production opening Sunday afternoon. Jack Barron and Frank Silk are the chief comedians. Dian Rowland, this week's star, continues through the Saturday midnight performance.

John Reese's Funeral To Be Held Friday

Funeral services for John R. Reese, 52, who died at his residence, 2000 Connecticut Avenue Northwest, Monday night, will be held Friday afternoon in Tampa, Fla. Mr. Reese was serving with the HOLC at the time of his death, having been assistant regional manager of the Dallas, Tex., branch since 1934.

He is survived by his wife, Mrs. Melvine Burts Reese; a brother, F. Clyde Reese, of Jacksonville, Fla., and a sister, Mrs. James C. Smith, of New York City.

Gen. Kelton's Widow Dies After Injury

Was Widely Known For Religious, Welfare Aid to Service Men

Mrs. Josephine P. Kelton, 68, widow of Arj. Gen. John C. Kelton, of the U. S. Army, died yesterday in Walter Reed Hospital. She had recently suffered a fractured hip in a fall.

Mrs. Kelton had lived in Washington since coming to the Capital with Gen. Kelton in 1885, from California. She was widely known for her religious and welfare work for the benefit of Army, Navy and Marine Corps personnel.

She was one of the first officers and instrumental in the founding of the Women's Army and Navy League here and was active in the operation of the Soldiers, Sailors and Marines Club, 1015 L Street Northwest. Mrs. Kelton never missed a meeting of the club board and up to the time of her injury frequently took magazines and books to the men.

Mrs. Kelton is survived by four of her eight children, Miss Adelaide Kelton, with whom she lived at 1827 Kalorama Road Northwest; Mrs. T. L. Ames, Cambridge, Mass.; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, Washington civic leader, and a son, W. S. Kelton, of Seattle, Wash.

Wrap up a THRILL in this Year's Holly Wreath!

Buick SPECIAL Sedan $1052. White sidewall tires extra.*

SUPPOSE, come Christmas morning, you took your wife to the front door, pointed out through the holly wreath — and there let her see a brand-new Buick standing at the curb!

A thrill? You bet — for the whole family!

Out of the question? Not at all. Look:

We're not suggesting that you add the cost of a new Buick to your Christmas budget.

But you probably will be buying a new car soon and we are simply proposing that you buy it now, a few months ahead of time — and make this a holiday long to be remembered.

We're suggesting that there's no time like the present to get back of that big FIREBALL Eight — no time like right now to start piling up gasoline mileage economies that run as high as 10% or 15%.

There's no time like holiday time to dress up yourself (and family) in smart, fresh Buick aerodynamic styling, or to introduce your brood to the roomy comfort of this BuiCoil-cradled traveler.

You can do that — if you act promptly.

BUICK PRICES BEGIN AT $935 for the Business Coupe

*delivered at Flint, Mich. State tax, optional equipment and accessories — extra. Prices subject to change without notice.

A trial ride to give you a hint as to what Buick can do — a little figuring on your present car's worth (at today's trade-in values, not next spring's) — a little working out of convenient terms — and you'll have a FIREBALL to celebrate this Christmas!

How about it? It's one thing your wife would never expect — and just about the finest gift any man could give his family!

"Best Buick Yet"

Blow To Tax Exemption

The Treasury's issuance of fully taxable five-year defense notes today will constitute a new and most promising approach to the perennial problem of tax-exempt securities. At last the Administration has found the courage to set its face against the issuance of any more Federal notes or bonds that must remain free from taxation. And it has worked out a commendable plan to induce the States and municipalities to accept the same principle.

Heretofore, the Administration has sponsored a bill that would prevent the issuance of tax-exempt bonds by either local or Federal governmental agencies. That measure has met with stiff opposition on the part of the States and many city regimes. Resistance from these sources has been particularly effective because of the fears of many legislators that such coercion of the States would be unconstitutional. No progress, consequently, has been made toward the elimination of a special privilege which permits many fortunes to remain untaxable.

Now that the Government needs additional billions of dollars to finance the defense program, the Administration has decided that it must subject income from future Federal issues to taxation, regardless of what action may be taken as to State issues. That is a logical and progressive policy. It seems that the Federal Government is ready to lead the way toward sounder principles of taxation. No doubt the States can be induced to follow this lead without resort to the drastic measures contained in the bill now pending before Congress.

It was obvious when the Treasury issued its 1937 study of "Securities Exempt From the Federal Income Tax" that the problem could be solved by reciprocal action of the Government and the States. Of the $50,522,000,000 in partially exempt and wholly exempt securities then in private hands, more than 70 per cent were obligations of the United States and its agencies. This fact suggested at once that the Federal Government could go a long way toward solution of the tax-exempt problem without attempting to levy taxes against income from bonds of the States against their will.

The Treasury is now exercising its discretion to make its notes fully taxable. Secretary Morgenthau will ask the new Congress for similar discretion as to bonds. With this authority and the patriotic impulse behind the defense program, he believes that he can induce the States to subject their issues to taxation also. But even if Congress makes taxation of income from the new Federal issues mandatory, it can hold out a real inducement to the States to join in the program. It can provide that income from Federal bonds may be taxed by any State when and if that State enacts legislation permitting its securities to be taxed by the Federal Government. Many States would probably be lured by such an offer because the volume of Federal securities in private hands is so much larger than the total of all State and local bonds owned by potential taxpayers.

In short, the Treasury appears to be seeking a happy compromise. If mutually satisfactory agreements to end unscientific and inequitable tax policies can be made, certainly they will be preferable to legislation of doubtful constitutionality. And in any event the greatest source of tax-exempt securities can be cut off by Congress acting alone.

Even Simpler .

A spate of books and pamphlets and articles continue to pour off the presses aimed at accounting for the French collapse. Lack of faith, says Maurois; a defense complex, says de Chambrun; depopulation, says Reithinger; leaderlessness, says Simone; dry rot, says Clare Booth; military defeat, say the Germans; M. Blum, say the rentier and capitalist; lack of scientific management, says the engineer. And so it goes. Yet they all seek to give the true inwardness of a phenomenon which still leaves a world once fed upon the myth of an unbeatable French army waiting for the real lowdown. One feels, after reading these accounts, that there isn't an easily assayable truth? Perhaps to the point is the old story of the man who got a nail in his foot and died of peritonitis. He fell ill because he was run down; he got run down because he led an unhappy domestic life; and he led an unhappy domestic life because, well, his mother-in-law was always around, for one thing.

Raising The Wind

Tentative discussions on defense finance are beginning to get to the heart of our fiscal problem. That problem is how to steer the fisc between the Scylla of inflation and the Charybdis of discouraged production. There is no easy channel. But Secretary Morgenthau, in announcing that a nation-wide drive is afoot to sell new baby defense bonds to the public, appears to be heading for it.

The way to steer the fisc near the rocks of inflation would be simply to let the banks continue to buy all the Government bonds covering the defense deficit. There would be no selling problem involved. The banks are loaded down with idle funds for investment, thanks to the inrush of gold and silver from our foreign customers. So lavish is the banking surfeit of investable funds that the banks now have reserves in excess of requirements against deposits to the tune of $7 billions. Seven billion dollars, moreover, is only part of the story. We have a system in our country whereby a dollar of reserve can be used on the average to make five dollars in loans and investments. Thus the idle money in the banks is really around $40 billions. Let there be no mistake, the banks would grab all the bonds that Mr. Morgenthau has to sell, and then ask for more. They are under the same compunction as an individual to use idle resources if only to get some return on them.

What, however, would be the result? A thousand dollar bond is bought by a bank, and the bank merely puts its own check at the disposal of Secretary Morgenthau, who thereupon draws upon it in payment of contractors and other suppliers of defense. The money, as the saying is, thus goes into circulation. But, contrary to what the New Dealers imagined in their early days, it doesn't stay in circulation. After a few whirls around—from contractor to the wife of the contractor and then to the dressmaker—it eventually gets into a banking account, and there it sticks. Idle money held by the banks into idle money held by the public! This, at any rate, is what has been happening, and savings, accordingly, have been piling up at a tremendous rate. The country right now has a money supply in demand deposits and currency of $41.5 billions, or about $14.5 billions above the peak of the lush twenties.

Now suppose that, as the propensity to spend percolates among the people as the result of Government defense spending, people start to spend these savings. And they spend them at an increasing tempo. In that event two things might happen which would make hash of the defense program: first, people overspending might begin to compete for productive resources of the country which should be at the service of defense, and, secondly, an inflationary price spiral might get under way.

This is why some of our Congressmen, looking through the wrong end of the fiscal telescope, are talking of new taxes. New taxes would drain money out of current incomes. They would thus cut down current buying. To that extent there would be less competition with defense buying, and likewise less danger of inflation.

However, some of our Congressmen seem to forget the potential fruitfulness of the glut of taxes which they have already saddled on the economic system when they talk of new taxes needed to balance the non-defense budget. The non-defense budget is balanced. It will be over-balanced when we have developed a defense rate of economic activity. Indeed, as the current issue of the bulletin of the National City Bank of New York brings out, it ought to be possible with the existing tax rates to cover ordinary expenditures with a surplus of billions. Actually, in other words, there should be a sizable contribution to defense costs from the yields of existing taxation.

Any further taxation at this time, it follows, would retard the spirit of productive enterprise—that spirit which must be conserved and encouraged if we are going to build defense in a hurry. We need to produce our armaments out of increased production rather than out of decreased living standards. Mr. Morgenthau is on a better tack, therefore, when he calls for mopping up past accumulations, or savings, which are now resting in idle bank accounts, rather than in taxing current incomes any more. And, as for the psychology of the matter, the public would have a stake in defense just the same whether the stake is their savings or their income.

Hitler's Silences

The most striking aspect of Hitler's latest address was its eloquent silences. What he left out of his speech, and he must have done so deliberately, was far more revealing than what he put into it.

The Fuehrer did not employ this occasion to reciprocate the very flattering references to Germany which recently came from Mussolini. Il Duce was not once mentioned by Hitler, and the only reference to the junior partner of the Axis was to the Italy of centuries ago—not to the Italy which for the last seven weeks has been suffering an unbroken succession of disasters in Greece and Albania, and now seems to be on the run in Africa. It would have been too ironical to mention Italy after the Fuehrer's last speech on September 4 praising Italy for having "taken the initiative in East Africa."

Hitler was equally silent on the subject of Russia. Yet, after Premier Molotoff's recent visit to Berlin, the Soviet Union was hailed as a prospective adherent of the "new order" in Europe and Asia. There was, as a matter of fact, nothing about that "new order" in Hitler's speech except the promise that at some future time he, the Fuehrer, would erect "a Germany of culture, of peace and of plenty."

This will provide scant comfort to the German people—the people who, after the fall of France, were told that total victory was practically in their grasp. This victory, they are again assured by the Fuehrer, is certain. But they are also warned not to expect it immediately in the words: "We can afford to wait."

The German people may wonder about that. They may also wonder about the curious assurances that the Reich is safe from invasion, that it stands "fortified against every eventuality." Only a little while ago they were assured that a German invasion of England was inevitable and certain to succeed. This change of emphasis, one would think, can hardly help but be somewhat disturbing to a people who no longer enjoy immunity from attack, but who almost daily feel the effects of air bombardments from a nation which they were told months ago was on its last legs.

In these circumstances the familiar catalogue of seven years of domestic accomplishments and foreign victories sounds almost anticlimactic. These victories were and will remain only tentative as long as the final triumph is not won. And that final triumph is now, by admission of the Fuehrer himself, very far off.

No "No Man's Lands"

Any clear-cut picture of defense housing needs in Washington and of steps to meet them must await the report of the defense housing coordinator. This is in preparation, and is expected to be ready shortly. Statements at Monday's meeting of the Washington Housing Association do, however, indicate the way in which the task of providing homes will be divided. Jacob Crane, assistant defense housing coordinator, said that construction of dwellings for families with incomes above $1,500 a year would be left to private enterprise, with the financial aid of the Federal Housing Administration and the Home Loan Bank Board.

Morris Cafritz, Washington builder, gave assurance that there would be no shortage of housing in the categories assigned to private enterprise. In support of private builders' ability to meet the demand, he cited the 16,000 dwelling units they constructed here in the past year.

In this connection, however, it is reassuring to learn from the office of the coordinator that detailed attention is being paid to instances in which "no man's lands" might develop. Wherever private enterprise cannot step in, because of location or peculiar urgency, other measures will be considered to meet the need. The $1,500 rule is not expected to be iron-bound in these cases. The FHA and Home Loan Bank Board are cooperating closely with the coordinator in determining how much private builders are ready to undertake. Besides closing gaps in the program, their advice should avert competition with private builders by the Federal Works Agency, which operates largely through the United States Housing Authority and the Public Buildings Administration.

Figures available now are inconclusive. Admiral Pettingill, commandant of the Navy Yard, says 3,444 new housing units are needed immediately to take care of civilian and enlisted personnel in the metropolitan area. Already approved are 600 units to be built by the Navy here. In Alexandria the Navy is erecting 300 units and private enterprise 300 for workers at the Torpedo Station. Mrs. Roosevelt is right in saying that we must keep the need for decent housing constantly before the Government. Suffering and epidemic disease among workers brought here to speed the defense effort would be of real concern to permanent residents of Washington. But, at the moment, it is sufficient to say that responsible authorities are formulating their program with care and, it is to be assumed, all possible speed.

BOUGHS IN WINTER

Some boughs bear up the weight of snows,
Depending on their strength to hold,
On wind that stirs and sun that glows—
But others in the clinging cold
Bend just enough to let it slide
In little avalanches—down
To forest trail or countryside
Or lawns that sparkle in the town.

Here in my orchard is a bough
That arched with fruit not long ago—
And I have found it broken now
But not by any weight of snow.
Here was resilience near my door
That only brittle ice could end . . .
The bough that could have lifted more
Broke only when it could not bend.

Chance For Peace

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: You think that peace now would be only a truce. Perhaps, but war has come home to civilians this time and it should be hard to sell another war to the British or German people.

Conceded no doubt as to the British; but the German government is also representative, though not democratic. Germany is administered as is an American corporation, on the leadership principle. As the average American stockholder takes no part in corporate management, so the average German takes no part in politics.

An American employe does not secure promotion in his corporation by haranguing the other employes, canvassing them for votes and calling the man he would displace a scoundrel. That's the Russian way in business and our way in politics. The ambitious American employe recommends himself to his superiors by industry and ability, and they step him up. This is selection from above, the leadership principle on which Germany operates. We are Communists in politics, and Nazis in business.

We could make American business Communist if we wished, with selection from below, with superiors divested of the power to hire, fire, and promote, but most of us prefer the leadership principle. Most Germans want Nazism and they can alter or abolish it when they wish; the German army is not a force of foreign mercenaries. The power to control opinion in a totalitarian state, as in any state, may be easily overestimated. A successful propagandist there as here is one who recommends to the people what they already want, as the William Allen White committee commended Britain to a people British in ancestry, speech, literature, traditions, with such success, to Mr. White's artless delight.

The British and Germans are as fond of their lives, their homes and children, as we are of ours. There'd be no war now if they knew in 1939 what they know now. See our reaction to the war; heartily pro-British as we were before Mr. White persuaded us to be, we eternally insist, "short of war." That refrain will recur as stubbornly over there when those luckless nations are once out from under the bombers.

IT WILL BE PEACE.

Pericles on Tolerance

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Now that modern and triumphant Greece is on the front page of our daily newspapers, this gem from ancient Greece is of interest.

Pericles, in his famous oration, portrays the tolerant spirit of Greece in his day: "Not only in politics are we open-minded. Without a scrap of jealousy we tolerate peculiarities of all sorts in each other's daily lives. We have no objection to our neighbor's following the bent of his mind."

Good U. S. doctrine. The editor of Collier's thus comments: Tolerance does not mean that we have no convictions worth upholding. On the contrary, we respect other people's rights because our own are precious to us."

Rights are more to be emphasized than tolerance; there are many things in these United States that we claim as rights, and for which we do not merely ask for tolerance: The right of public assembly, public worship, the right of free speech, are a few of the many.

In Spain today no Jew can enter the synagogue from a public entrance. The same rule applies to Protestant congregations. Religious liberty, in the American sense, does not exist in Spain—thanks to Hitler, Mussolini, and other of their ilk.

Assorted "Beefs" About Football

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: The Post of December 9 included a quotation by Messrs. Flaherty and Marshall that the score of the game proved "beyond a doubt the honesty of pro football." I think your sports editors should be insulted, for they have never, to my knowledge, suggested that our Redskins were anything but honest.

They have not asked the public such embarrassing questions as, what would have been the attendance yesterday had the Bears beaten the Reds about 27 to 3 two weeks ago, which they easily would have done if it had meant $300 or $400 in each of their pockets?

What would have been the attendance at the Brooklyn Dodgers game, and at the Philadelphia Eagles game, if the Redskins had beaten the Giants in the first of those three games they had to play with only one victory needed to assure the Eastern championship?

Up until yesterday we can say the team has seldom failed to put on a good show, and that's what the public wants, and personally, I believe the players are honest. We must remember, however, that they're human, and, when all's said and done, are little more than college age. They respond pronouncedly to psychological factors.

Were the players allowed to coast, to laze along, become overconfident and not kept anywhere near fighting edge prior to those losses to the Giants and Dodgers?

A SUBSCRIBER.

Washington, Dec. 9.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: At the conclusion of a most ignominious defeat dealt the Redskins by the Bears on Sunday afternoon, I daresay our friend and sportsman, Mr. George Preston Marshall, made somewhat of a faux pas when he announced that applications for next season's tickets would be taken today.

Now, Mr. Marshall, long noted for his shrewdness, and his strategic maneuvers in bringing to Washington, a hick sports town, a championship professional football team, should have withheld this announcement, until some 30,000 disappointed fans had gone home and slept off the blitzkrieg.

J. BURFORD RODIER.

Washington, Dec. 9.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: As a subscriber and admirer of your paper, I want to protest the Associated Press account of the Notre Dame-Southern California football game. The headlines—Notre Dame Beats Southern California "Invalids"—gave the cue and the rest of the story followed through. After all, Southern California put a strong team on the field, Sohn, Banta, Peoples, Krueger, etc., all figured much in the game last year when Notre Dame lost. Even an Associated Press sportswriter ought to know that these days coaches and trainers don't send hospital cases into tough football games. And anyway, why take it out on Notre Dame? Certainly they can't be held responsible for the physical condition of their opponents.

The too plain inference of the story was that had Southern California been in shape, the outcome would undoubtedly have been otherwise. Well, that is something nobody will ever know—not even the A. P. sportswriter. It's true that Notre Dame hasn't been a ball of fire this year, but neither has Southern California. At that North Dakota had a fair country football team capable of holding its own against most of them.

Let's have no more of this sort of partisan reporting. It isn't in keeping with the usual fairness of your newspaper.

For Declaring War

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: If it be impossible for us to send an army outside the Western Hemisphere, then we are so much the more fortunate. We can give the Allies that greatest aid of all, namely the supreme moral support which a declaration of war would carry, without having to fight.

Morale is almost everything, as Mussolini knows today more than ever, and is determined to achieve for his men. And little imagination is needed to realize that we, if we were Greeks or Britishers, would find our morale at a new high were we to know a nation as great and powerful as the United States had declared itself at war on our side.

Moreover, there is nothing we could possibly do which would more surely and swiftly end the tendencies of the little nations to line up with the Axis than our declaration of war—our declaration that the Axis must overcome us, also, and all our might and resources, before its victory becomes a real thing. Under our leadership, many a nation now hesitating as to which side of the fence to choose when choice can be no longer delayed, would line up with the forces of priceless freedom, bringing so much the nearer the day of world-salvation from the colossus of evil whose rapacious eyes look everywhere.

In time, we shall awaken to these things. The tragedy is that we ever-wishful people awaken to reality only after reality has grown from a wildly threatening thing into a thing whose threat is overwhelming. Always refusing to pay the small price that salvation at first requires, we wait until the price becomes almost greater than we can bear. READER.

War or Slavery?

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Why are we still technically at peace with the avowed enemies of that freedom for which we came into being as a Nation?

Is it because we are sure Germany will win, and we dread her vengeance? But Hitler will never forget we fought Germany in the First World War; and Hitler, who never forgives, is as anxious to square accounts with us as he was to do so with Poland. Our only safety from Hitler's wrath is to "get him first"—and that means now.

Or do the undeniable horrors of war paralyze our thinking, so that we cannot begin to imagine the stark reality of our towering peril—that genuine and universal slavery which is the sure and certain historical alternative to absolute victory for freedom? If this war is lost, then Hitler's victory grows, and slavery comes for all. And slavery can last a long, long time (Hitler says his regime will last 1,000 years)—long enough to wear out the saints among us, as all hopes grow dim, and labors increase to the full.

"All we shall know, if slavery comes,
Is that our chains are strong,
And that each day is like a year,
A year whose days are long."

Surely ten times as many men would take their own miserable lives in the absolute slavery Hitler would foist upon us as would lose their lives in our making war upon Hitler to the limit of our power this hour while we are still free men. BOLLING SOMERVILLE.

Camels At Christmas

DRINKING was my shy Cousin Sam's only vice. It made him a public nuisance, for he met all the trains in his taxi. Aunt Willie always said that when she considered how Glensville was the birthplace of two great statesmen, a famous writer, and a celebrated stage actress, she could appreciate perfectly why committees, entertaining visitors to this sacred spot, dreaded the sight of Cousin Sam. Plans to prevent his appearance always failed. The owner of Glensville's only taxi could not be deterred from earning an honest living.

One day Aunt Willie told me a strange story about Cousin Sam.

He had often seen camels in circuses. He had frequently noticed them in magazines—had even followed them in stage plays, as they picked their slow way across the desert. He had liked them in such scenes. But when one morning he saw them in the alley, they gave him an entirely different feeling. For Sammy knew that this particular alley was not in the habit of accommodating camels.

Cousin Samuel was an advocate of physical culture. Every morning he stood by his window. Up and down swelled his chest; up and down and around went his muscles. Gertie Sawyer, watching him from her mother's flat across the alley, thought Sammy the handsomest boy in town. But Sammy never saw Gertie Sawyer.

This morning, as usual, Sammy had gone to the window. He had reached down to his toes and flung his arms high into the air. He had performed any number of wheels and loops. He had taken in and exhaled half the air in Jefferson Alley. Gertie Sawyer, watching him breathe properly, turned with a sigh to washing her breakfast dishes.

Lowering his window, Sammy glanced idly down at the alley. Then he began to rub his eyes. For he had just seen camels.

For some time Cousin Samuel stood, studying those camels. There were three of them, big, brown, double-humped, standing proudly without riders. To them the Fairall store and the row of brown faded flats were not strange. It was only Cousin Samuel who felt the strangeness.

Those Jefferson Alley camels dazed my Cousin Samuel in the way that nothing had dazed him for years. Since rubbing his eyes and shaking his head failed to remove them from his vision, he decided on breakfast. Surely ham and eggs and a hot cup of coffee would remedy the effects of a suddenly fantastic imagination.

Cousin Samuel's remedy proved a success. Rushing down to the alley, he discovered it bare of camels. Not to be deceived, he examined the run of brick thoroughly. There were no camels.

During his inspection, my Uncle Rue stepped into the alley. To him Sammy confided his secret. Uncle Rue, it appeared, had not seen the camels. But he would gladly help Sammy look for them.

On the next two mornings, Cousin Samuel awoke from a night of celebration, looked out the window, and saw the camels. Angrily he dressed and rushed to the alley. There were no camels in sight. Puzzled, he returned to his room.

When he saw the camels for the fourth time, he renounced his drinking. For a man cannot see camels before breakfast, and drive a taxicab successfully. When, on the fifth morning, no camels appeared, Cousin Samuel thanked Heaven that his mind had improved with abstinence.

Uncle Rue's story, however, is different. To celebrate Christmas, he ordered a scene which failed to meet with his expectations.

This scene was to have shown the Three Wise Men on camels, following the Star of Bethlehem in the front window of Fairall's Department Store. Uncle Rue, looking at the dumpy, hunched figures of the Wise Men, sighed. There were not magnificent, commanding kings, going on a great pilgrimage, as Uncle Rue had imagined them.

In disgust he returned the camels to the alley. In silent grandeur they leaned against the back of Fairall's store, as though waiting the signal for the long march across the desert. From his bedroom window, Cousin Sam saw them.

Uncle Rue, still undecided, suddenly resolved on another inspection. Quietly he returned to the alley and carried the camels in. Once again he put the Wise Men on their mounts, with the Star before them. But the make-believe impression never varied. The Wise Men remained common men, in an ordinary world.

Suddenly Uncle Rue heard footsteps. Since the Fairall store had been robbed at Easter, Uncle Rue had been on the alert for robbers. Never again, he swore, would he part with his money in that fashion.

Cautiously my Uncle Rue looked through the back window. Then he saw that it was only Cousin Samuel.

Stepping into the alley, Uncle Rue asked Sammy if he could be of any assistance. With perfect solemnity, Uncle Rue helped Cousin Samuel look for camels.

For the next three mornings, around 6 o'clock, Uncle Rue carried the camels into the alley. Then he waited for his nephew's face at the window.

When Sammy had looked out, Uncle Rue would return the camels to his store before Sammy could make the alley. During the daytime, he kept the camels hidden in his storeroom. No one, he assured himself, must tell Sammy that his camels were real.

When Cousin Sammy had given up his drinking, Uncle Rue returned the camels and the Wise Men to New York. In his letter he told the company to send him something that looked real, and not so dumb.

A week later, a regal Christmas scene decorated Fairall's front window. There were no two-humped camels in it, or dejected-looking Wise Men. But the children loved its huge Christmas tree, and the parents its tender scene at the Manger. Thus no one in Glensville knew what they had missed by not seeing the camels.

Three New Freedoms

THE PRESIDENT'S MESSAGE to the Economic Club of New York should set at rest fears still lurking in some quarters that he might use the defense situation for revolutionary purposes, and apprehension in other circles that the defense crisis may lead the Administration off the path toward new social frontiers.

The statement does not steer a middle course, at that. Steering a middle course usually means avoiding issues. If I understand the statement correctly, and it is a short and clear one, the President is envisioning the integration of the various creative elements of society within the frame of a national and social purpose.

That integration is not only for defense, but for larger and, we trust, more permanent things. It is integration for larger freedoms, and in this short statement the President adds three new freedoms to the traditional ones: freedom from want, freedom from insecurity, freedom from fear.

HE BELIEVES THAT these can be achieved inside the framework of political democracy, the chief pillar of which is the historic freedom for public discussion, and he points out that the town meeting is older than the Constitution. He asserts his belief that these new freedoms can best be secured by government and private enterprise cooperating, with "proper" rewards for the various elements that go into production: labor, capital and incentive—the urge to pioneer in new economic paths in the hope of a market for the results of effort.

THIS PROBLEM OF integration is the chief problem of democratic unity. "In a democratic order, national unity is the voluntary expression of the mind and spirit of a free people."

The extent, however, to which it is voluntary depends upon the awareness of the people that it is essential—essential for the individual as well as for the whole.

In fact, the problem of the modern democracy, and of the modern state, is how to achieve unity in diversity; how to secure that absolutely essential modicum of unanimity without sacrificing the rich manifoldness of life; how to be "one flock," with "one shepherd," and, at the same time, live in a "house of many mansions." This is the problem, also, of freedom. It is the eternally recurrent question: can one have freedom, and order, too. Can the individual, or the person, remain free, and the social order be an order, and not a battlefield between irreconcilable interests.

The rise of the totalitarian states is the result of democratic failure to achieve this integration. The conflict of interests having gone so far as to create unbridgeable cleavages, the whole structure of society is threatened. So it is put into a strait jacket. A society in a strait jacket is united at the cost of the individual, and, therefore, at the cost of creative activity. Indeed, it ceases to be a "society" and becomes a regiment.

REGIMENTS USUALLY go to war, since that is what they are best fitted for. In fact, it is the only thing that they are preeminently fitted to do. So far, the regimented society of Nazi Germany has made war surpassingly well. It baffles the imagination to think, however, how it can ever make peace. For the more numerous and diverse become the peoples and interests crushed into its framework, the more difficult the imposed unity becomes. In the end, Hitler's new order would have to insist that everybody in it speak the German language to the exclusion of all others, in order that a reliable Gestapo should always know what everybody is saying!

What has broken up democratic societies has been the lack of common purpose. That has been the curse of the last century. The theory that each individual and group seeking its own ends and own purposes would result in a society has been exploded. It results in social anarchy.

This country had a common purpose during most of its existence. It was to subdue the wilderness and open and develop a continent. In the frame of that purpose almost anything went, and we could endure a great deal of legal brigandage. We opened and developed this continent in an exceedingly wasteful manner, chiefly under the drive of a lust for gain; but even the lust for gain did fulfill a social function. We forgave our speculators because the incentive driving them did give us railroads and telegraph lines.

But in an established community the exercise of the mores of the frontier simply means internecine war. It is one thing to subdue nature; it is another to subdue one's competitors or one's workers. The desire of the individual to make money and "succeed" is not a national purpose and is wholly inadequate personal purpose. It does not create unity; it creates division.

THE NATIONAL PURPOSE now must be to create a home fit for free men. That means, on the purely material side, a home where every child has a chance at health; where every person is certain of sufficient nourishment; where every family can live, however simply, in decent cleanliness, and with enough space for a modicum of privacy.

It means, on the cultural side, a national home in which every boy and girl has the opportunity at an education to develop his inbred talents; a home where books, pictures, music, the drama, parks, gardens, flowers—all the cultural products which enhance the beauty, dignity and fascination of life are available to all those with eyes, ears and minds to use them for self-development.

And it means on the human side freedom from fear of one's fellows: Freedom from fear of persecution, whether by the law or by other social groups.

IF THIS NATIONAL purpose seems Utopian, then the fault lies neither in our stars nor in our resources but in ourselves. For its realization is completely possible. And certainly it can best be realized by Government planning, plus private enterprise, plus free labor, plus creative use of savings, plus private or public credit, or both, advanced on futures.

But its realization through the integration of manifold factors depends upon the creation of a new mind in America. The difficulty is in people's heads and hearts, not in the outside material world. If so many people want it that they are willing to take risks—if the desire to achieve it is the "incentive" that drives millions forward and keeps alive a faith and enthusiasm even though the process may require changes in the comfortable ways of life of some of the more fortunate—then we shall build this new home inside the democratic framework, and without the wholesale destruction of all existing values which drastic revolutions entail.

"The challenge . . . is the challenge to make the best possible use of our vast resources and to achieve speedily the common purpose of national defense and national progress," said the President.

The challenge, that is to say, is to put first things first, first things being the common essentials to common survival, and common living on a decent level.

And the democratic faith consists in believing that if we put these first things first, all the rest will be added onto us.

Political Refugees

By Ernest Lindley

Plight Of Thousands

IN THE PLAY of greater events, many people have lost sight of the plight of thousands of anti-Nazi and anti-Fascist refugees who are eager to come to the United States and who can be admitted under existing immigration quotas. While many of them are now trapped or have disappeared, thousands have made their way to Lisbon, North Africa, and other points which are not yet fully under Axis control. Others are still in unoccupied France, living incognito or barely surviving almost unendurable conditions in concentration camps.

Financial sponsorship for many of these refugees has already been arranged in the United States, and can be found for others. But during the last six months only small trickles of them have been admitted. Why more have not been granted visas is a question surrounded by confusion and conflicting testimony.

Now arrangements have been made which should permit a slightly larger number to come as immigrants. The State Department is "unblocking" immigration quotas. It is no longer holding the reservations on the quota lists assigned earlier to persons who now find that they cannot use them, and it is allocating larger shares of the quotas for Germany, Czecho-Slovakia, Poland and Italy, and other European countries to Lisbon and other cities where refugees from these nations are congregated. It is estimated that by February all quotas—including the German—will be current, through the elimination, by one means or another, of earlier assignments of quota numbers.

IF THE NEW arrangement, and all that it implies, works, it should end months of controversy between the State Department and the organizations and individuals interested in assisting these refugees. The accusation against the State Department is that, in effect, it has been sabotaging the policy, repeatedly approved by the President, of providing refuge for European democrats, insofar as it is possible under the severe requirements of our immigration law. The response of the State Department is that its critics have not appreciated the difficulties involved. Many to whom consuls are willing to grant visas cannot get permission or find the means to leave the country where they are now. Some cannot be located.

The exact truth is hard to appraise, but the figures show that while the danger to the anti-Nazi refugees became more serious, fewer visas were issued. The plight of these refugees became acute in June, with the downfall of France, their chief haven in Europe.

LATE IN JULY, representatives of the President's Advisory Committee on Political Refugees held a series of conferences with officials of the Departments of State and Justice. It is agreed that visas should be expedited for political refugees whose lives were in imminent peril, and that the Advisory Committee was to be the approved agency for investigating and recommending the cases to be given prefernece. It undertook also to secure the necessary affidavits of financial support. It was anticipated that some refugees would be given visitors' or transit visas entitling them to come here temporarily, while others, from countries whose quotas were not exhausted, would be given immigration visas.

By the end of October the Advisory Committee had recommended about 850 names, but the State Department had issued visas to less than 50 of them.

Meanwhile, other groups had submitted names—including those of more than 1,100 labor union leaders and their families presented by the American Federation of Labor.

FOR SOME REASON, a list of 27 submitted by the Archduke Otto of Austria received more favorable and rapid consideration than the names of anti-Nazi democrats recommended by reputable and responsible American organizations.

Near the end of October the President's Advisory Committee won a showdown at the White House. Since then some 200 additional refugees on this committee's list have been granted visas. But the machinery still moves slowly.

There are now in Lisbon alone some 14,000 political refugees. More than half of them are anti-Nazi Germans, Czechs, Poles and Italians. Among them are some of the persons investigated and approved by the Advisory Committee, and many more who are on the committee's reserve list. The Spanish Government has closed the French border to them, but a few hardy and resourceful anti-Nazi refugees are still reaching Lisbon by boat from France, via North Africa.

Giving the right of way to these refugees will not breach our policy of restricting immigration. Those who are in the most serious danger can be taken care of with a fraction of the immigration quotas established by law. But speed is imperative in many cases, unless these people are to be allowed to go the way of others who have believed and acted so thoroughly as democrats that they are marked for extinction wherever the Axis can exert its control.

Messrs. Alsop and Kintner report that certain Defense Commission officials favor his appointment as "overlord of Army and Navy procurement"

Plans For Defense Revision

NOW THAT IT is an open secret that one of the purposes of the President's cruise was to get time to mull over a reorganization of the defense effort, informed circles here are busy guessing what form the reorganization may take. William S. Knudsen has sealed his own lips with the memorable dictum, "Speculation in my mind should come from the head, not the help"; but there are few other important officials who will not express their ideas on the subject.

Thus there is something of an embarrassment of choices for anyone who wishes to predict which of the numerous proposed plans the President will choose if he chooses at all. Despite the multiplicity of minor variations, however it is possible to distinguish three main classes of plans.

(1) A good many of the businessmen at the Defense Commission favor a scheme by which the present commission setup would simply be expanded and strengthened. A chairman would be appointed, to give drive and direction to the commission's work, and to put an end to the present difficult system of doing business by interminable conference. The powers of each commission over his special domain—as Edward R. Stetinius over raw materials and Sidney Hillman over labor — would be made broader and more specific. Above all, the authority and responsibility now so haphazardly divided between the commission and the Army and Navy would be concentrated and fixed.

IN ESSENCE, in short, plan No. 1 calls for a defense commission no longer merely advisory but generally similar to Bernard M. Baruch's famous War Industries Board in 1918. Logically, this plan appears simpler and more efficient than the others. Practically speaking, however, it is a pretty long shot in the betting books, since it requires of the President a frank and total reversal of his proclaimed policy of managing the defense effort, "through regular Governmental channels." The President may prefer a longer way round to such a self-reversal.

(2) Among Defense Commission officials with an interest in the present setup, some New Dealers, and certain other Administration leaders who are fundamentally satisfied with things as they are, a less far-reaching change is favored. Their proposal is simply to leave the Defense Commission as it is, to retain its advisory character, but to give William S. Knudsen's production division real powers, and to appoint Donald Nelson as the overlord of Army and Navy procurement.

THIS SINGLING out of Knudsen's division among the others in the Defense Commission will go, it is said, to the heart of the problem—the need for increased output of defense material. Nelson's appointment, it is argued, will tie Army and Navy procurement in with the commission, and give the procurement officers the benefit of civilian experience. Although it has points obviously likely to appeal to the President, who sometimes has a fondness for half measures in administration, there are also practical political objections to the plan. For one thing, it would not satisfy the widespread public demand for the naming of a chairman of the defense commission. For another, it would enrage the War and Navy Departments and create tensions within the Defense Commission as well.

(3) A possible compromise is a third plan, with some backing among men high in the War and Navy Departments, as well as among private persons close to the President who are concerned for the defense effort's success. Under this plan, William S. Knudsen's production division would become the center of the Defense Commission. And to end the dispersion of authority between the commission and the War and Navy Departments, the Undersecretary of the Navy, James Forrestal, and the Assistant Secretary of War, Robert Patterson, would be associated with him, ex officio.

Thus Army and Navy procurement would be brought into the defense setup without difficulty, and the main responsibility and power would be fixed in a small, congenial and efficient three-man board. The vital business of defense production might then be adequately organized. Meanwhile, the other divisions of the commission would also be implemented with adequate authority, and would work with the Knudsen-Forrestal-Patterson board under some simple system of subordination. As the plan seems to meet the President's requirements as well as the requirements of the situation, it is not the worst bet of the three.

ALL THREE PLANS, of course, may be set aside in favor of another which has not reached the stage of common discussion here, but has found favor aboard the Tuscaloosa. Whatever plan is adopted, however, there is little doubt about what the objectives should be. Virtually all informed persons appear to agree on these, whether the New Dealers who have bothered to study the defense setup, or Bernard M. Baruch, who lately came to Washington to give the defense commissioners the benefit of his rich experience.

The objectives are centralization of authority and fixing of responsibility, to give drive and force; development of an adequate "scope of preparation," to give purpose and direction; and creation of a sense of emergency, to give speed. With this last objective in mind, certain influential advisers have suggested to the President that he might preface any step he takes to improve the defense setup with a sort of "It - is - later - than - you - think - week." If the President follows this suggestion, he will call a number of industrial and labor leaders to Washington, and offer them seminars on the defense problem and the international situation by himself, Secretary of State Cordell Hull and Defense Commissioners Knudsen and Hillman. The idea deserves consideration.

For The Record

JUST TO KEEP the record straight, I would like to canvass the established facts of the fracas in Pennsylvania Station on the night of October 28, in which James Sloan, a Negro policeman, was said to have been kicked or kneed by Steve Early, the press secretary of the White House.

The official police record declares that Early kicked Sloan in the stomach. This would constitute a felony. The policeman was examined by a physician, who reported that he had discovered "contusion of lower abdomen."

The incident was blown up with political gas, and the victim's complexion was emphasized as though he had been singled out for abuse because he was a Negro. Politicians, white and colored, and editorial writers were guilty in this respect.

Sloan deflated the issue, however, by declaring that he intended to vote for President Roosevelt, "who has done so much for my race," and this fact was faithfully reported in the press.

SLOAN HAD undergone and had not entirely recovered from an operation, and, although he was able to stand immediately after the incident and no muscles had been broken, he went home to bed, where he remained an interesting, invalid for some time.

After election, on the initiative of a New York publisher, who has freely criticized the New Deal, an investigation was made in Washington, so that if Early had suffered injustice he might be cleared. By this time, it must be noted, the incident had been exploited for all it was worth politically, which, thanks to Sloan's indorsement of the President, wasn't much.

On November 16 Editor and Publisher, the trade magazine of the newspaper industry, published a story in which, in general terms, four journalists of the Roosevelt party who were present at the incident exonerated Steve. Thomas Reynolds of the United Press, president of the White House correspondents, reported "there was no kicking, although the policeman undoubtedly was injured in the general scuffle. But it is a noteworthy fact that when Early went upstairs to find a superior officer the Negro policeman followed, two steps at a time."

Reporters in New York, presumably no less reputable and sincere than Reynolds, certified on their professional honor that Sloan, in an interview at his home, said: "He kicked me deliberately with his foot. As I fell down I yelled to other officers to grab him. Before I yelled that, this man (Early) said to me, 'you better be glad that I didn't do more than I did."

Early himself in Washington admitted that he raised his knee, which came against Sloan's body. That way of putting it creates a nicer mental picture than the more rugged phrase "he gave him the knee." It is reminiscent of the traditional story of the Chicago cop in police court with a battered prisoner, explaining that "the accused slipped and fell, and as I was assisting him to his feet his head came in contact with my club."

Two of the White House journalists reported knee action. John Henry, of the Washington Star, said Steve "raised his hands and a knee," and that Sloan backed away complaining that he had been hit in the stomach. Raymond Brandt, of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, said Early "raised his knee to ward him off."

IT SHOULD BE observed, incidentally that Steve was acting entirely on behalf of the reporters in trying to get through the lines.

Sloan, back on duty, has sent polite greetings to Early, and the incident is officially closed, Steve having apologized earlier for something which he insists he did not do.

I submit that the original police report and Sloan's firm insistence that he had been deliberately kicked, not merely kneed, and the Early admission by Steve and the subsequent statement of two of the White House journalists that Steve used his knee establish the correctness and good faith of the press in reporting the case. Obviously, somebody has lied, but Sloan has not recanted his very serious original charge that he was the victim of a blow constituting felonious assault "by Stephen Early, secretary to the President of the United States."

Italy's Other Front

By Barnet Nover

Britain Takes The Offensive

BRITISH operations in western Egypt are described in London as only in the nature of a large-scale raid on the Italian lines but not as yet as a full-fledged offensive. But the magnitude of this sudden assault can be gauged by the British claim of having taken 4,000 prisoners in three days.

In any event, the British appear to have taken advantage of recent developments in Greece, Albania and Italy to revise their strategy in the Egyptian theater of war. Hitherto and for perfectly sound reasons they have maintained a defensive position on that front. For them the struggle in Egypt was only an important side-show, the real battlefront being Great Britain herself. When the fighting in Egypt started the most the British could hope for was to hold back the Italians as long as possible.

THEY SUCCEEDED in this endeavor with gratifying results. After what Mussolini has called the "lightninglike" attack on Sidi Barrani, the Italians settled down to consolidating their negligible gains and making elaborate preparations for an ultimate but steadily postponed attack on Alexandria and the Suez Canal.

The reasons back of Gen. Graziani's failure to advance are not hard to discover. Before moving forward he had to make sure of adequate supplies of water. That achievement could not be improvised. Furthermore, the Italian forces in Libya and Egypt have suffered from a shortage of oil which has prevented them from making adequate use of their numerically superior air force. Finally, Great Britain has, through the exercise of sea power, managed to impede the flow of supplies from Italy to Italy's African bases. In the meantime, the British, controlling the Mediterranean, have had no difficulty in sending what reinforcements they could to the Egyptian area.

BRITISH spokesmen have made it clear, particularly during recent weeks, that Great Britain would not remain indefinitely on the defensive in Egypt but would, as soon as it became feasible, carry the war to the Italians. It is doubtful, however, if they expected that moment to arise as soon as it did.

What changed the picture was, of course, the Greek war. At first this tended to put a strain on the Middle Eastern command. Any help in the way of men and air power sent to Greece meant a weakening of British forces in Egypt. That was why the first British reactions to the Italo-Greek struggle were distinctly pessimistic. The opportunity for striking action was there; it was anything but certain that the British had the means to capitalize that opportunity.

THE WHOLE WORLD knows what has since happened. In a matter of weeks the Italian thrust into Greece was hurled back and the Italians had to abandon one key position in Albania after another. Koritza fell, later Porto Edda, now Argyrokastron and the Greeks continue to press on.

But the danger which Italy faces is not in Albania alone; she now faces a serious danger in Egypt and throughout East Africa as well. If a total Italian debacle in the Balkans is to be prevented Italy must use all her strength to reinforce and reorganize her Albanian garrisons in the hope that by so doing she will manage to reverse the tide which is now running so strongly against her. It is doubtful whether she can do that and, at the same time, give much help to Gen. Graziani. He must somehow fend for himself with what manpower, air power and supplies he has on hand. These are not inconsiderable. But the events of the last three months have proved conclusively that they are insufficient to make possible a successful offensive in the direction of Alexandria and the Suez Canal.

The most he can hope for at this time, unless the British make egregious blunders in strategy, is to hold what he has. But it is not certain that he will be able to do even that. The inactivity of these last months coupled with the effect of the Italian defeats in Greece and Albania on the morale of Italian troops in Africa may have increased Graziani's difficulties.

THE NEXT DAYS and weeks will reveal the nature and effectiveness of the British drive in western Egypt. If it is at all successful it may bear results way out of proportion to the numbers of troops involved. By forcing an indefinite postponement of the Fascist drive toward Suez it would enable the British to increase their assistance to Greece and thus make it more difficult for Italy to recoup her losses in that theater of war.

Mussolini must now realize, as he could never have done when he so lightheartedly ordered his legions into Greece, the full magnitude of the risk he took by creating a second front for the Italians, particularly since the more distant front was at the mercy of sea power. He undoubtedly calculated that Greek resistance would be speedily overcome and the consequent victory would make it possible for him to turn his full attention to the British in Egypt. That calculation proved disastrously wrong. His failures in Greece now imperil the Italian position in East Africa. The increased pressure which the British now appear to be putting on the Fascist forces in that area may, in turn, make the Italian task in the Balkans more difficult. Between them the Greeks and British are now in a position to put through a squeeze play which, if it succeeds, will greatly increase the cup of misery which the Duce is now being forced to drink.

Settlement in Suit Against ASCAP Is Believed Near

By the Associated Press

Negotiations in the 6-year-old antitrust suit against the American Society of Composers, Authors and Publishers were reliably reported yesterday to be nearing a head.

Talks leading to a possible settlement by consent decree were revived after ASCAP'S dispute with the radio broadcasting industry came into the open this year.

Justice Department negotiators have maintained a strict official silence, but from persons familiar with the proceedings it was learned that only one or two important points remain unresolved. An early settlement depends upon how quickly those points can be solved, it was said.

Trial of the ASCAP suit was adjourned about ten days after it began in 1935 to permit both sides to attempt a stipulation of the facts. This effort failed and little progress was made in the next three or four years. Meanwhile, however, additional investigation was undertaken and the information obtained was used in the current negotiations.

Nye and Capper Plan to Revive War Vote Plan

By the Associated Press

Two Republican Senators—Nye, of North Dakota, and Capper, of Kansas—declared yesterday they would make a vigorous fight in the next session for enactment of war referendum legislation, but there were immediate indications such a move would encounter strong opposition.

The legislation, opposed by President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull, would submit to the States for ratification a constitutional amendment providing for a plebiscite on war outside this hemisphere.

Senators Truman (Democrat), Missouri; Johnson (Democrat), Colorado, and Brooks (Republican), Illinois, expressed opposition to the legislation on the grounds it would impede the Government in times of crisis and weaken the Nation's foreign policies.

Better U. S.-State Cooperation Asked By Labor Party

A joint patrol over labor standards, by the States and Federal Governmtnt, was urged here yesterday by the Seventh National Conference on Labor Legislation.

Secretary Perkins, presiding, was asked by the group to appoint a series of committees to improve Federal-State cooperation on key labor problems.

One committee, the conference suggested, would plan ways to prevent a collapse of labor standards, and "a loss of social gains" through the defense program, also plan for reabsorbing and retraining workers "as the various stages of the defense preparation end."

Appointment of a second committee was asked to aid in developing a Federal-State industrial health program.

THE THOMASES—David, 20; Mrs. Alberta Thomas, Sonja, 3; Vivian, 10; Janet, 12, and Selby, 18

Wondering where the next meal for his wife and six children was coming from, trying in vain for more than six years to find a steady job, roving from coast to coast, like gypsies, in an old trailer—if David William Thomas looks more than his 38 years, those are the reasons.

Yesterday, while his wife was up on Capitol Hill telling what the life of a migrant family is like, Thomas was joyfully sinking pliers and wrench into a good, solid, permanent job.

"At last I've found out what contentment is like," he said, without diverting his attention from the electrical repair job to which he had been assigned.

"I've already had a payday. Thirty dollars every week.

"Two of my girls going to school regular and the baby—that's Sonja, 3 years old in February—we named her after Sonja Henie because the boys were playing betwen the acts at Miss Henie's ice show when the baby was born—getting along just fine."

It was in 1933 that the seven of them—Sonja hadn't been born yet—pulled up stakes in Missouri. There was no work to be had there, so they sold their furniture for $30 and spent $25 of the proceeds for an auto.

They headed westward. Thomas sold a corn-remover from town to town. David, jr., and brother Christopher, both in their early teens, played the guitar and violin in barber-shops and on street corners. They took in enough change to keep the family in food and warmth.

Through 42 States they roamed, living in a small but substantial trailer which had been acquired along the way. Last June they came to Washington from Florida. Thomas, a skilled electrician and oil-burner mechanic, got a job with a fuel company. Seasonal, it lasted only a few months.

Trying to find work at Fort Belvoir and Fort Meade, he failed because he was not a union member and did not have the initiation fee necessary to join. Then, just a few weeks ago yesterday, he connected with the Rinaldi Coal Co.

Except for the daughter who was married the other day, the family is still intact. Mother, father and the five children are living in the trailer at a tourist camp on the outskirts of Alexandria.

"It's still necessary for us to sleep in shifts—the three girls and me by night and the two sons and mother by day—but we're happy," Thomas says.

MRS. LUCILLE ROUNDS and her daughter, Anne, 7 weeks old, received attention of Hostess Yvonne Simonson as they arrived at Washington Airport on a Pennsylvania Central airliner

War or no war, Mrs. Lucille Rounds would like to take herself and 7-week-old daughter, Anne, and go right back to Shanghai to be with her husband.

She said so here yesterday when her plane stopped on its way to her home in Charleston, S. C. The trip was begun three weeks ago when the State Department advised American women to leave China.

"I'm afraid I don't have anything exciting to tell you," she remarked when she stepped from the plane with her baby in her arms, and a tired smile on her face.

The plucky woman lived in Shanghai for two years, with her husband Kenneth K. Rounds, who is employed with the National City Bank. They arrived after the Japanese had sent their war past the city, leaving it calm. They lived in an apartment in the French Concession, and life was "probably more peaceful than Washington."

Anne, a charming little bundle of baby-scowls and yawns, wrapped in pink, white and blue blankets, was born just seven weeks ago. As a result, Mrs. Rounds and her baby had a private room on the S. S. Washington when it sailed from Shanghai November 20.

Mrs. Rounds said that her husband has made no plans to leave Shanghai and she "would like to go back." But the Government has taken her passport.

Woodrum's Economy Plan Wins Support

Virginian to Propose Rule of 'No Expansions' In Nonarms Spending

Representative Woodrum (Democrat), of Virginia, has received the general backing of the House leadership on proposals for strict economy in next session's nondefense appropriations, it was learned yesterday.

Woodrum, whose Independent Offices subcommittee is now holding hearings on the first of the regular appropriation bills, said he will propose a rule of "no expansions" in nonmilitary appropriations when the full committee meets next January.

The Virginian complimented the Budget Bureau for "holding down" on offices bill estimates and said that if regular estimates as a whole are held within this year's levels the Congressional economy move will be simplified.

The Virginian's aim is cooperative action by the House Appropriations and Ways and Means Committees on general budget policy, with a view to the same economy rule applied to all bills "instead of cutting in spots." He has sought and received the support of House leaders on his general economy objectives.

Once the House policy is formulated, Woodrum intends to sound out Senate leaders on the possibility of setting up a joint House and Senate group similar to one formerly proposed by Senator Harrison (Democrat), of Mississippi. If the two-chamber proposal fails, Woodrum intends to proceed strictly in the House.

Advocating a policy agreed to in advance and applied to all bills before any individual measure is completed, Woodrum's first objective will be to prevent increases in regular items except under exceptional circumstances, and to pare below this year's appropriations wherever possible. Right of way would be given to everything actually needed for defense, but military estimates would be closely scrutinized to see that no defense money is "wasted."

P. E. O. Chapter Honors Mrs. Dunbar at Dinner

By Jessie Ash Arndt

The Post Club Editor.

Mrs. Sadie Orr Dunbar, president of the General Federation of Women's Clubs, back at headquarters for a brief time after a fall season crowded with visits to clubs in various States, was guest of honor last night at the annual "B. I. L." dinner of Chapter B of the P. E. O. The affair was given in the dining room of the Grafton Hotel, with a program, on which Mrs. Dunbar was the principal speaker, held later in the studio of the District branch of the League of American Pen Women there.

Mrs. Dunbar, herself a member of the P. E. O. Sisterhood in her home city, Portland, Ore., is a close friend of the national president of the organization, Mrs. Veda M. Jones, who also is a Portland woman. She mentioned their friendship and told the local members something of her association with Mrs. Jones in P. E. O. work.

Mrs. Dunbar's talk was devoted chiefly to the good neighbor tour made by a party of members of the General Federation to South America last summer. She explained the plan of the trip, to enable the North American clubwomen to make contacts with those of South America who are leaders in the fields of science, welfare and education, and to learn from them of the progress in their countries, at the same time exchanging ideas on work being done here.

Mrs. Dunbar emphasized the need not only for understanding but also for appreciation of the culture and attainments of the people of Latin America. There are many lessons North America can learn from them, she said.

Mrs. R. M. Wolfe, vice president of the chapter, presided at the dinner in the absence of the president, Mrs. Edgar Briant Meritt, who was unable to be present. The program was in charge of Mrs. Robert H. Young.

In addition to Mrs. Dunbar's talk, it included vocal solos by Mrs. Helen Turley, contralto, also a member of the P. E. O., accompanied by Mrs. Paul Keim. In keeping with the Latin-American theme, Mrs. Tomas Cajigas showed colored motion pictures of Puerto Rico.

China's Victory Vital to U. S., Says Lattimore

Today China can do more to save America than America can do to save China—the outcome depends on America's willingness to let China save America, Owen Lattimore, director of the School of International Relations at Johns Hopkins University told members of the Washington Club yesterday.

He explained these statements by saying that China is certain to win against Japan and that the United States has only a chance of getting out of a war in the Far East. Today we are in more danger than China because Japan's navy is still intact and strong, he said. The navy is no threat to free China but it is a threat to the Netherlands Indies and Singapore and to our trade route in the Far East, he added.

He criticized the recent oil agreements made with Japan by the British, Dutch and American oil interests in the Netherlands Indies. By this arrangement, Japan is to get 1,800,000 tons of crude and ordinary grades of oil per year, he said. This oil deal will not affect the outcome of the war, but it will prolong it, he predicted, and will supply the Japanese navy with fuel for further aggression.

Mr. Lattimore pointed out that in just two Chinese provinces the loss of life since the Japanese invasion began has been greater than the loss of life in all of Europe during the present war. He also emphasized the fact that the number of refugees in China is much more staggering than in Europe. Between 40,000,000 and 60,000,000 Chinese have lost their homes, he said.

He gave great praise to the Chinese Industrial Cooperatives, established with the salvaged machinery which the Chinese have carried inland and used in these cooperative enterprises to make the refugee population self-supporting.

"China is not just a charity problem but an expanding frontier of the American way of life," he declared.

Mrs. Whitman Cross opened the meeting and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor, chairman of program, introduced the speaker.

Alumni to Observe Purdue Night

Purdue University night will be observed by Washington alumni of the Indiana institution this evening at 7 o'clock with a buffet supper at the Washington Hotel, honoring Secretary of Agriculture Claude R. Wickard, class of 1915.

Lucy Crockett Records Diary of a Mule After Observations at Army Posts

IT IS ONE THING to write the story of an army mule. It is quite another to write it in the first person and also do the illustrations—but that is the unique accomplishment of Lucy Crockett, author of "Capitan, the Story of An Army Mule," published October 16 by Henry Holt.

Miss Crockett, who is a cousin of Mrs. Turenr Rose, of Alexandria, was in Washington over the week-end, the guest of Col. and Mrs. Charles W. Exton. The daughter of Col. Cary Crockett, who has been in the Army 40 years, she has lived in all parts of the world and had ample opportunity at different Army posts to observe the characteristics of the mule. Next to a dog, no animal has so much personality, she says, and none has had such a part in military history.

Underwood & Underwood

LUCY H. CROCKETT

Her story describes five military campaigns in American history as seen through the eyes of Capitan. Born on a farm in Missouri, the young mule is bought by the cavalry and shipped off with other mules to Chickamauga Park, Ga. From there he is sent to Cuba; back to the United States, then off to the Philippines, where he helps pull the supply wagon on Gen. Lawton's march up Central Luzon after Aguinaldo. Later he is sent with the Ninth Infantry to China on the terrible march to Pekin with the Relief Expedition; then back to the United States.

This is the only irregularity in the book, says Miss Crockett, as no mules ever were actually returned from China to this country. Capitan, however, comes back and is in Columbus, N. Mex., when Pancho Villa raids the town. He then goes on Pershing's punitive expedition into Mexico and to France with the First Division.

Throughout the course of his life there are famous characters who figure. Capitan also goes through his own emotional crises, says the author, who spent many weeks deciding daily just what a mule would think in different situations.

While her father was in Fort Leavenworth, Kans, with the General Staff School a year ago, she had ample opportunity to visit nearby farms and study the colts. She also talked to the Army teamsters, collecting stories from them, and watched the mules in the corral. In addition, she spent two months reading books, papers and magazines for her historical background and began her actual writing on the book last January. It includes, in addition to the text, four double spread, color illustrations which also are her work.

Her father is her severest critic, says Miss Crockett. Before turning in her manuscript to her publishers, she gave it to him. He made such marginal notes as:

"You've split an infinitive here in a way even an army mule wouldn' thave done."

He likewise checked her illustrations and commented regarding the one dealing with the Cuban campaign:

"The way you have those mules tethered would make a wagonmaster gnash his teeth."

She "un-split" the infinitive but left the long ropes to which her father objected in the illustration—"needed them for the composition of my picture," she explained.

Miss Crockett's first book was "Lucio and His Nuong," a story of the Phiilppines and a water buffalo, half text and half illustrations (also her own), which the former governor general of the Philippines, Theodore Roosevelt, said gave the best picture of the islands that had ever come out. Her second was "That Mario," another Philippine story, given the Herald Tribune Spring Festival award for 1940.

Army and Navy D. A. R. Chapter Marks Birth

46th Anniversary Of Its Founding Celebrated at Tea

The Army and Navy Chapter of the D. A. R. yesterday celebrated the forty-sixth anniversary of its founding with a tea from 4 to 6 at the Chapter House, 1732 Massachusetts Avenue. Mrs. Hubert E. Paddock, the regent, wife of Commander Paddock, U. S. N., received, assisted by Mrs. Homer Case, the vice regent, and Mrs. Harry C. Overholser, State regent of the District.

The Army and Navy Chapter, which was the 119th, founded with the national society, D. A. R., now has members throughout the world, the wives, mothers, daughters and sisters of officers of the Army, Navy and Marine Corps. It is the third largest chapter in existence.

It was founded December 10, 1894 at the residence of Mrs. Caroline J. Heger, the first regent, with a membership of 20. The only surviving chapter member is Mrs. William Ennis, who now resides in Newport, R. I.

The chapter's charter is framed in two kinds of wood from the U. S. S. Kearsage and in copper from the U. S. S. Constitution, obtained from the Navy Yard at Portsmouth, N. H., by Mrs. R. W. Allen, who was later the regent. Mrs. G. W. Baird designed the frame and the woods and metal were prepared under her direction. The charter was placed in the District room at Memorial Continental Hall by Mrs. William D. West and Mrs. George M. Sternberg, past regents.

The Army and Navy Chapter, at the outbreak of the Spanish-American war, did its first relief work, sending contributions to widows and orphans of men who were lost on the Maine.

The copper fountain in the lobby of Memorial Continental Hall was the gift of the chapter as was the lighted emblem at the back of the platform in the auditorium there.

Present officers in addition to Mrs. Paddock and Mrs. Case, include Miss Florence Elizabeth Wilcox, chaplain; Mrs. Lybrand Palmer Smith, recording secretary; Mrs. W. E. Pattison French, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Harry Newton, treasurer; Mrs. George Willcox McIver, registrar, and Mrs. William D. Wrightson, historian.

Rector's Aid Plans Turkey Dinner

The Rector's Aid of St. Margaret's Church will hold its annual oldfashioned turkey dinner in the parish house tomorrow from 5 to 7. There will be a table of gifts and fancy work, adhering to the custom established by Miss Caroline Smith.

This will be the first opportunity for the congregation to welcome the new rector, the Rev. Mr. Armand T. Eyler and Mrs. Eyler.

Mrs. Joseph Wall, executive chairman of the Rector's Aid, will be in charge of arrangements, assisted by Mrs. Joseph Gaston, Mrs. Richard W. Bolling, Mrs. William S. Covell, Mrs. Willoughby S. Chesley, Mrs. Donald MacLeod, Miss Eleanor Chambers, Miss Helen Milliken, Mrs. C. W. Nickless, Mrs. Lawrence Gourly and Miss Eleanor Fitts.

Hadassah to Give Tea This Afternoon

The Washington Chapter of Hadassah will close a series of very successful member-bring-a-member parties, by the senior, junior and business and professional women's divisions, with two teas. This afternoon, new senior members will be guests of Mrs. Maurice Protas, 4807 Colorado Avenue.

The junior group of Hadassah will have its final tea of the year for new members at the home of Mrs. Fred S. Gichner, 3220 Highland Place, on Sunday.

Native American Fashions to Have Preview Here

The gay, colorful prints of the new beach clothes are shown in the two suits above. Right, a beflowered three-piece sharkskin bathing suit is a Clare Potter original, modeled by Miss Peggy Townsend. The attached cape can be given a fling when there is the urge to be a water baby. Left is a two-piece cotton pique stripe outfit of separate shorts and bras by Brigance, modeled by Miss Emily French Myers.

Local Debutantes Will Model At British Relief Style Show

This week Washington will have a chance to preview, for the first time in the history of the American fashion world, smart clothes by important American designers. The British-American Ambulance Corps of Washington is presenting a benefit fashion tea Thursday at the Shoreham Hotel. Under the auspices of the Julius Garfinckel and Co. store, Washington debutantes will model original gowns created by such designers as Hattie Carnegie, Florence Reichman, Joseff and others.

This advanced spring collection of dresses, evening gowns, cruisewear and sportswear is of special interest to women looking ahead toward spring wardrobes. It shows a tendency toward wearable feminine things, instead of a vogue for extreme changes in silhouette and detail. Many of the daytime clothes bespeak the new shoulder treatment with a soft ease through cut or draping reminiscent of the Grecian era, yet they retain the slim, straight lines women have grown fond of. The narrow silhouette is noticeably handled by a graceful ease of the skirt.

Muted Tones Emphasized

Delicate beiges, blues and greens of soft muted tones are emphasized as predominating the spring color scene.

Following are a few of the designers who will be represented in the showing:

Hattie Carnegie, long noted for the elegance of her evening and afternoon dresses.

Nanty, whose specialty is the fragile, bouffant evening dress.

Carmel, whose clothes are ultra sophisticated.

Clare Potter, criterion of correct sportswear and beach pajamas.

Delia, former coutourier to the British court who shows models with distinctive hand touches.

Rentner, noted for svelte evening clothes.

Millinery Show

Joseff of Hollywood, who designs all the jewelry to be worn in the show.

Florence Reichman, who does all the hats for the collection.

Among the features of the show will be Florence Reichman's "dramatic moment in millinery." She will present all her models in simple black foundation dresses, a perfect foil for Joseff jewels. They will appear above a unique picket fence setting, as the climax of the show.

Girl's Undercover Romance With High School Instructor Becomes Source of Distress, When Her Best Friend Confides That She Loves Him

DEAR MARY HAWORTH: I am a girl 18 years old, in my senior year at high school. I am not pretty, but I am attractive. I weigh about 135 pounds and have a beautiful figure. At school and out of school I am exceedingly popular. I am very much in love with one of my instructors—a young man 26 years old. I have had several dates with him, which I enjoyed immensely. We have never admitted our love, but he has shown, by his actions, that he cares for me, too.

The problem is this: I have a girl friend, 19 years old, who is tall and slender and quite attractive. We have been friends for four years. She has spent week-ends and holidays at my home, and I have at hers. We have grown to be almost as devoted as sisters. Several days ago, she made it plain to me that she is head-over-heels in love with this same man.

She doesn't know that he has ever dated me; or that I am even thinking of him. Her line of work brings her in continuous association with him, whereas I see him but seldom. In order to spare her feelings, and to protect the man's job, I haven't told her about our dates. But the strain of this false position is beginning to wear on my nerves. It's almost more than I can bear, to listen to her talk of him, hour after hour—without telling her the truth.

Should I try to forget him—giving him up to my friend, since she is constantly around him? Or should I let things drift, hoping for the best? I have to make some decision soon—as I don't want to become the laughing-stock of the school. I have too much pride for that. Please favor me with a speedy reply, and I shall be guided by your advice.

EIGHTEEN.

Man's Attentions Seem Undesirable

DEAR EIGHTEEN: The fact that your best friend happens to have fallen in love with one of your admirers certainly doesn't oblige you to hand him over to her. The man is a free agent, after all. It's his social prerogative to choose between you—or to pay court to both of you, if he likes; and if you two are willing to compete for his favor.

The puzzling aspect of the situation is whether you should be as open with your friend, about your romantic affiliation with the man, as she is open with you about her feeling for him. Your diplomatic silence—while admittedly well-intended, and perhaps, to some extent, admirable, might be construed by her as a breach of friendship, if she were to learn the whole truth from someone else.

When I say your silence may be "admirable"—I have in mind that persons of well-bred reticence don't make their romantic preoccupations a subject for either casual or "cozy" discussion. But there is some question as to whether, in your case, your silence may not savor of guilty secretiveness. One wonders how it can be—and why it is—that you are going out with this instructor, without any of your friends knowing about it.

You imply that your silence is necessary to protect his job. Is he violating school regulations in seeing you? And is he employing this prohibitive regulation as a pretext for seeing you on the sly—under circumstances which are distinctly unwholesome for your morale or reputation or both?

Is he, in brief, taking a rather unscrupulous advantage of your schoolgirl gullibility? And are you somewhat vaguely, somewhat guiltily—but none too clearly—aware that your relations with him are not on the up-and-up? Is this the real reason why you wonder if you—who see him secretly—should bow out of the picture in favor of your friend, who associates with him openly? And just what underlies your ambiguous remark that you "don't want to become the laughing-stock of the school?" What is there about your association with the young man that might make you a "laughingstock," if news of the romance leaked out, or if your best friend unwittingly superseded you in his affections?

I admit I can't follow your disconnected thinking. But your guilty, defensive confusion inclines me to believe that you might be acting most constructively in breaking off your undercover alliance with the man. If it is a relationship that cannot be freely avowed and openly established, it is a relationship that is not worthwhile; a relationship calculated to bring you more heartache than joy; more shame than pride. Already, you see, it is playing havoc with your nerves; threatening to cost you your most cherished friendship; and causing you to anticipate public ridicule.

So, all things considered, my advice to you is to rule the young man out of your social life. Not because your best friend is smitten with him, but because he has failed to create for himself a legitimate place there; because the nature of his attentions makes them a source of embarrassment, confusion and anxiety to you.

Cecilia Berry Writes Folk Opera Based On Indian History

CECILIA BERRY, Hoosier folklorist, says she knows a little how Mrs. Dionne must have felt. "I have five brain children," she says, "and let me tell you, it wasn't easy." She recently completed "Clark of Old Vincennes," a folk opera based on the George Rogers Clark expedition. She wrote the libretto, tracked down folk music, did the lyrics, composed original music and orchestrated the score. Her search for appropriate folk tunes has taken her to Texas, California, Manitoba and finally, to the Library of Congress, where her object is to find music for a scene laid in Williamsburg in Patrick Henry's day.

She decided on the folk opera form because "people lived their music while they were living history. It's an opportunity to put the music in its original setting. As for the subject, I've always felt the films give us too much European history. Our own history seems fit only for movie 'shorts.' I contend that we could put up with a whole evening of George Washington or George Rogers Clark." The opera will have its premiere next year at Indiana University.

A local bride received as a wedding present from one of her mother's elderly friends a set of handsome glasses engraved with cocks' heads. She was rather surprised but entered into the spirit of the thing and, in her thank-you note, invited the woman to come over some time for a cocktail. The old lady telephoned immediately and apologized. "There must be some mistake," she said. "The salesgirl told me those glasses were for tomato juice."

When 5-year-old Pierre Rene Eaton enters Friends School this month, his classmates will notice his French accent. That's not surprising, since he spoke no English until his arrival here from Paris five months ago. His father, Richard Eaton, publisher of a new Falls Church newspaper, is American, his mother French. But no one will suspect Pierre of being a fifth columnist. His favorite song is "God Bless America," and his grandmother (widow of Dr. Daniel N. Eisendrath, internationally-known urologist) has knitted him a striped sweater, cap and mittens of red white and blue.

Calling on a friend who dabbles in writing for a hobby, a girl here was startled to find her in the act of dropping a handful of peas, one at a time, into a meal bowl. Hypnotized by the scene, she watched for several minutes. Finally the writer turned and asked her, "Does that sound to you more like 'Pung' or 'Pong' or 'Ling?'"

Handy Handbags

New efficiency tricks in handbags: A slot which feeds a nickel outside the bag; a key clip with a tiny light attached, so that keys may be located instantly; a glove guard chain, which anchors one's gloves to the handbag. Most new handbags have better planned interiors, with more pockets, and one or more inside zipper sections closed with a new kind of zipper which has no rough teeth.

Keeping Child Busy Is Best Discipline

By Elizabeth MacRae Boykin

A WOMAN doctor, specialist in work with children, was reassuring us about the trend toward extremes in modern or so-called progressive systems of education. She believes the swing now is toward a common-sense middle course where the best of both the old and the new systems are included, with emphasis on discipline and manners and concentration and other old-fashioned virtues. Apropos of the very modern school where the children are let alone to do as they please, she told us about a little girl from such a school who remarked, "Oh, do I get to do what I want to do today?"

The real secret of good discipline at school, continued this authority, was to keep the children busy and interested, calling attention to the fact that a mother's difficulties are almost always traceable to the fact that a child, in a busy household, has to be left to his own resources, and so gets bored.

Most of us can take quite a few tips from the schools in planning the home scene for our children. For the modern schoolroom is a sociable, interesting place. A room of his own is important, of course, but don't forget that a child is gregarious and likes to stick around where the family is, to do things with others. So make him comfortable in the family sitting room rather than shunt him off out of the family circle.

Provide a good place where the family sits for his activities and a place to keep his stuff tidily tucked away between times. Then you won't have to be "after him" all the time about making a mess in the main part of the house.

Refreshment Center Design

An old time wishing well provides an entirely new design for a refreshment center in a game room. The one we saw was complete with the bucket to be used for ice and a roof with lighting. The lower part opened to reveal shelves for glasses and equipment.

Count Potocki's Farewell Party One of Capital's Most Brilliant

Evening Begins With Dinner for 19 At Polish Embassy, Followed by Reception And a Buffet Supper at Midnight

By Hope Ridings Miller

"I'D SAY the Count's going out in a blaze of glory," observed a guest surveying the distinguished gathering at the Polish Embassy last night.

He was, of course, referring to the retiring Polish Ambassador, Count Jerzy Potocki, whose farewell fete was one of the outstanding events of the season. Starting out as a dinner for 19 close friends, the party assumed much larger proportions later when around 150 additional persons came in for the reception, which was climaxed by a buffet supper at midnight.

Once the scene of some of the gayest gatherings on the Capital calendar, the embassy at 2640 Sixteenth Street has been "dark" most of the time since Poland was invaded; and the personable envoy, by his own choice, has virtually retired from the social scene. Last night, however, he had his final fling as a diplomatic host; and "brilliant" is the word for the party that resulted.

Count Potocki received his reception guests informally at the door of the drawing room, taking his stand there promptly at 10 o'clock. An hour later, the spacious second-floor rooms of the embassy were filled with an interesting group of guests representing diplomatic, official and residential society.

A NUMBER OF the guests arrived at the reception after attending the Stokowski concert. Several diplomats and officials seen later at the party occupied boxes in the Capital's own "golden horseshoe" at Constitution Hall.

As is always the case when a big-league fete goes on the boards, the reception was preceded by numerous dinner parties—hosts then bringing their company on to the embassy. Miss Mabel Boardman, Mrs. Marion Warburg and Mrs. Emil Hurja were among those entertaining. Several guests also came on from the dinner given by Mrs. Northam L. Griggs.

MORE DIPLOMATS than I have seen collected under one roof this season accented the guest list. Among those present were the British Ambassador, Lord Lothian; the Belgian Ambassador and Countess van der Straten-Ponthoz, whose social calendar has been cut to a minimum in recent months; the Argentine Ambassador Felipe Espil; the Peruvian Ambassador, Don Miguel de Preye y Santander; the Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Pedro Martinez Fraga, who is now in line for a bit of farewell hosting himself; the Ambassador of Ecuador and Senora de Alfaro, the Panamanian Ambassador and Senora de Boyd, who will return to their homeland soon.

Still others there from the diplomatic corps were the Minister of Sweden and Mme. Bostrom, the Minister of Norway and Mme. Munthe de Morgenstierne, the Minister of Switzerland and Mme. Bruggmann, the Greek Minister and Mme. Diamontopolous, the Spanish Ambassador, Don Juan Francisco de Cardenas; the Minister of Portugal and Senora de Bianchi, and the Minister of Luxembourg and Mme. Le Gallais.

THE STATE DEPARTMENT was also well represented in the company. Among the many I saw from that contingent were Assistant Secretary of State and Mrs. Adolf A. Berle, jr.; Mr. and Mrs. James Clement Dunn, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Feis, Mr. and Mrs. Loy W. Henderson and Robert Coe.

The Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Morgenthau were there; also, the Assistant Secretary of War and Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, the Assistant Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. James V. Forrestal, and the Undersecretary of Commerce and Mrs. Wayne Chatfield-Taylor.

Looking as if she had stepped out of a picture book was pretty Mrs. Lawrence Wood Robert, jr., who, with her husband, was among the dinner guests of Count Potocki. Mrs. Robert's bouffant frock of cocoa tulle was accented with gold sequins and worn with a gold necklace and bracelet.

At the dinner, an atmosphere of sadness pervaded the gathering. Guests were seated at the long, flower-decked table laid for 20 persons and lighted by tall white tapers. An air of informality was climaxed near the end of the third course, when "Chip" Robert arose, and proposed a toast to the Ambassador. The latter responded by proposing a toast to his guests, and presently he was making a speech, expressing his love for his country, and his love for America.

Among those at the dinner were several members of official society, including Associate Justice Frank Murphy of the Supreme Court, Senator Joseph Guffey and his sisters, the Misses Ida and Pauletta Guffey.

REPRESENTATIVE and Mrs. Sol Bloom and their daughter, Vera, just back from Mexico, held a little court all their own and entertained quite a circle of guests with accounts of their trip from which they returned early yesterday. Still others at the party were Mr. and Mrs. J. L. Houghteling, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Draper, Mr. and Mrs. David Finley; Lady Leslie, who arrived with Mrs. Dorothy Lee Ward; Maj. Gen. Allen Gullion, Mrs. Lionel Atwill, John Logan and Col. and Mrs. M. Robert Guggenheim, who came on from the Hurja dinner at the 1925 F Street Club, and many more.

Still others there include Mr. and Mrs. Mathew Dick, the latter wearing an attractive, draped frock of white crepe; Mr. and Mrs. Robert Pell, Mr. and Mrs. William MacCracken, the latter trim in a black frock with turquoise accents; Mrs. Ffoulke Dewey, Mr. and Mrs. Wennerberg, of the Swedish Legation, and scores of others.

Symphony Draws Notables To Hear Stokowski Play

Mrs. Roosevelt, With Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Coy As Guests, Heads Long List of Patrons Who Turn Out for Stokowski Concert

The usual distinguished and smart audience—only more so—which gathers whenever the Philadelphia Symphony Orchestra plays here, was at Constitution Hall last night to hear the orchestra led by Leopold Stokowski. The famous conductor always gathers the cream from residential and official society on his now rare appearances with the Philadelphia group.

The First Lady headed the many patrons who occupied their boxes last evening. Mrs. Roosevelt has been out of town for most of the season's concerts, and the White House box has been constantly loaned to friends of hers. With her last evening were Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Coy—he is assistant administrator of the Federal Security Agency. The trio dined at the White House before going on to Constitution Hall. Mrs. Roosevelt wore a salmon-pink jacket with her black gown.

Oumanskys, Other Soviet Aides Present

Mrs. Lawrence Townsend, whose box at concerts is never empty, had with her the Minister of Yugoslavia and Mme. Fotitch and Brig. R. V. Read, British Military Attache. With Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Smith were Mrs. Harlan Fiske Stone, wife of the Justice, and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Wyatt.

At the concert to hear the first Washington performance of the Sixth Symphony of Shostakovich were the Soviet Envoy and Mme. Oumansky, the latter wearing a long squirrel coat over her black frock. About 20 other members of the Embassy staff were seated in a bloc in the orchestra.

The Argentine Ambassador, Felipe Espil, was there without his attractive wife, who has gone to Florida for a few days. She will be back on Monday.

A distinguished sextet, all in one box, were the Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, the Solicitor General and Mrs. Francis Biddle, and the Librarian of Congress and Mrs. Archibald MacLeish. The latter's full-skirted frock was topped off with a fur wrap, hip length, and Mrs. Biddle wore a long mink coat with her dress.

Mrs. Adolf A. Berle, wife of the Assistant Secretary of State, was among those in the packed audience. Nearby James Clement Dunn and George A. Garrett shared a box with Mrs. Garrett's son and daughter, Cully Darlington and Miss Elaine Darlington. The latter was stunning in a silver fox cape over her gown and a sapphire-blue velvet bow in her hair.

Miss Boardman Entertains

That handsome couple, the Federal Security Administrator and Mrs. Paul V. McNutt, were early arrivals. Over her chartreuse-crepe gown Mrs. McNutt wore a three-quarter length ermine wrap to which was pinned a corsage of orchids.

Miss Mabel Boardman entertained in her box for Mrs. Arthur Woods, Angus Malcolm of the British Embassy and Winthrop Crane. Mrs. Wood was handsome in green velvet with a matching bow in her hair.

Mrs. Charles Carroll Glover was accompanied by her daughter, Miss Nancy Glover. Miss Sita Finkenstaedt was among the debutantes present. Another mother and daughter combination were Mrs. J. Butler Wright and Miss Mary Wright, both of whom were in black.

Others in the distinguished audience were Mrs. Jouett Shouse—Mr. Shouse is recovering from an illness and wasn't present; Miss Ellen Flowerree and Miss Stellita Stapleton; the Misses Randolph, Miss Cecil Lester Jones, in a dark purple wrap with gold embroidery on the sleeves; Dr. and Mrs. Cranshaw Briggs, the German Charge d'Affaires and Frau Thomsen, who sat in the orchestra with the Naval Attache and Frau Witthoeft Emden; Mrs. Edwin Watson, sharing a box with Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Woodward and Robert Buell, and many others.

Owen Lattimores Are Given Party By the Grosvenors

Dr. and Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor entertained at dinner last evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Owen Lattimore. The former is the director of the Walter Hines Page School of International Relations of Johns Hopkins University. He came over from Baltimore to deliver a lecture yesterday morning at the Washington Club. His subject was "America's Interest in the Far Eastern War."

Other guests at the dinner were Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Simpich, Dr. and Mrs. John Oliver LaGorce, Mr. and Mrs. Raymond D. Mackay, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Myers and Mr. and Mrs. Albert W. Atwood.

Nancy Crawford Will Be Bride Of Lt. Williams

Belvoir Commandant And Wife Announce Daughter's Betrothal

The Commandant of Fort Belvoir, Va., Col. Roscoe Campbell Crawford and Mrs. Crawford announced the engagement of their daughter, Nancy Johnson Crawford to Lieut. William Jonreau Williams, 2d, son of Mr. and Mrs. William J. Williams, of Erie, Pa.

Miss Crawford was graduated from the Punahou School in Honolulu and attended Briarcliff Junior College, Briarcliff Manor, N. Y. She is a granddaughter of Ben Johnson, of Bardstown, Ky., and the late Mrs. Johnson. Mr. Johnson was a member of Congress from Kentucky for 20 years and served as chairman of the District of Columbia Committee for a long period.

Lieut. Williams was graduated from Penn State College before receiving his commission in the Corps of Engineers. The wedding will take place in the spring.

Fiji Islands Send Word Mrs. Archbold Is on New Cruise

From the Fiji Islands comes news that the peripatetic Mrs. Anne Archbold, of Washington, has boarded her Chinese junk there and is off on another scientific expedition.

Mrs. Archbold was at her Washington home late in the summer after an exciting cruise around the South Seas with the Fairchild expedition collecting flora and fauna. Mr. and Mrs. David Fairchild—she is a sister of Mrs. Gilbert Grosvenor—have settled down again in Florida after the trip, but Mrs. Archbold wanted to be off on another excursion.

Notes of Society

Official and Residential

The Netherlands Minister and Mme. Loudon have invited a number of Capitalites to an informal tea on December 19 in honor of Crown Princess Juliana.

Interstate Commerce Commissioner and Mrs. Claude Rodman Porter have left for a two weeks' trip to Florida. While in Miami they will attend the convention of Federal and State utility commissioners at the Miami-Biltmore Hotel.

Mrs. S. Pinkney Tuck, wife of the Counselor of the American Embassy in Buenos Aires, is at the Mayflower Hotel.

Mrs. Robert Low Bacon, who arrived in Washington yesterday, has cards out for a buffet supper following the Gridiron dinner on Saturday night.

The former Governor of Alaska and Mrs. Thomas Riggs will entertain at a dinner this evening at their home, 1910 S Street.

Sidney Taliaferro will be host at a dinner on Friday evening.

Mrs. James Craig Peacock will entertain at luncheon tomorrow following the lecture by Mrs. O. W. McNeese which will take place at the Sulgrave Club at 11:30 a. m. Mrs. McNeese's subject will be "Our Neighbor, Canada." In connection with this she will review Kenneth Roberts' new book, Oliver Wiswell.

Mrs. Edgcomb Pinchon, who formerly lived in Washington, arrived here yesterday for a visit. She is the wife of the author of "Viva Villa," who has just completed another book on the life of Zapata, another Mexican hero.

Mrs. Arthur Clarendon Smith and Mrs. Kate Carmichael have returned to their homes here after an extended visit to Los Angeles, San Francisco and Bremerton, Wash.

Mrs. Phillips Gives Cocktail Party

At the second in a series of cocktail parties this season, Mrs. Clifton Phillips entertained yesterday afternoon at the apartment of her aunt, Mrs. Sydney A. Cloman, at 2310 Connecticut Avenue. Receiving in the drawing room of the apartment, Mrs. Phillips was gowned in black velvet of street length, trimmed with a small white collar, and accented with a diamond arrow pin. Mrs. Cloman, also in black velvet, wore a tea gown of floor length and accented it with a single strand of pearls.

The color and cheer of the Yuletide prevailed throughout the apartment, two small green Christmas trees, placed outside on the balcony, winked their strings of blue lights through the window at the guests. Inside Christmas decorations were used throughout the apartment. The tea table, a symphony in white and silver, was centered by two silver pheasants and flanked by tall white tapers in silver holders.

Among those who dropped in during the afternoon were Mrs. George Barnett, Mrs. Wade Ellis, Smith Bowman, Fred Roy, the Misses Marie and Cecile vom Rath, Mr. and Mrs. Phillip Clark, William McAvoy, Pendleton Hogan, Daniel McGhee, William Mitchell, Mme. Vogel, Mrs. Charles Bromwell, Frederick Parks, Harold Mosely, Sherry McAdams and many others.

Miss Audrey Cowan Honored at Tea

Attending the party were Miss Betty Larkin, Miss Margaret Gearing, Miss Mary Stuart Price, Miss Suzanne Slingluff, Miss Margaret Gordon, Miss Mary Ellen Brown and Miss Katherine Claude.

Thirty Debs Make Bow At Virginia Cotillion

Southern Belles and Their Beaux Dance Until Dawn at Army and Navy Country Club Affair; Richardsons Entertain at Supper

Southern belles and their beaux danced until nearly dawn at the Virginia cotillion given last evening at the Army and Navy Country Club—decked with red roses for the occasion.

Wearing fluffy white frocks, more than 30 debutantes made their bows at the annual affair. Preceding the dance, Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Richardson entertained at a large buffet supper in honor of their daughter, Miss Phyllis Walke Richardson, who was selected to lead the cotillion. The party was given at their home, White House, in Fairfax. Mrs. Richardson was assisted by Mrs. John F. Barbour, Mrs. Joseph Crockett and Mrs. Robert Graham who later entertained at a cocktail party for the "oldsters."

Miss Richardson Wears White Frock

Miss Richardson, a pretty brunette, wore a white net frock sprinkled with silver sequins. Made off the shoulder, it had a tight bodice and very bouffant hoop skirt. She carried a cluster of gardenias. Sharing honors at the supper party were Miss Richardson's house guests: Miss Charlotte Moffit, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. George Moffit, of Harrisburg, Pa., also wore a white net frock, but it was sprinkled with iridescent sequins. Miss Quincy Landstreet Martin, who will make her debut in Richmond on December 23 at the Commonwealth Club, is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John S. Martin, of Richmond. She, too, had chosen a white net, hoop-skirted frock and carried creamy gardenias.

Attending the buffet supper was William Byrd, of New York, who led the cotillion with Miss Richardson. Also, Miss Mary Lord Andrews, whose escort was William Hooff, of Philadelphia; Miss Mary McIntire Betts, Miss Mary Stuart Montague Price, Miss Betty Lyon, Miss Betty Lou Kauffman, Miss Sybella Clayton and Miss Ann Shivers, all of whom made their debut last night. Still others there were Miss Randolph Richardson, Miss Lina Macatee, Miss Mary Lane Macatee, Miss Josephine Sutton and Miss Eula Council.

First Four in Line Get Large Bouquets

Among their escorts were Talbott Sinclair, Robert McCandlish, Page Waller, Robert Underwood, Kent Dyer, Dr. George Macatee, William Peacock, Joseph Huber, Tapping Bennett, William Ewin, Tanner Kinnier, William Crisp, Capt. Charles Harrison, Connie Smythe, Robert Palmer and several others. Also entertaining at dinner before the ball were Mrs. Charles R. Hooff and Mrs. Frank Mason Dillard.

At 11 o'clock the cotillion was formed and the first four girls were presented with large bouquets of red and white carnations with streamers. The remaining debutantes in the line received smaller bouquets. Sydney's orchestra played throughout the evening and at 12 o'clock supper was served. The 30 buds and their escorts were seated at one end of the room, while the 30 patronesses and their husbands dined at a long table at the other end. Small tables were arranged in between.

Blooms, Hurleys Return From Mexico Together

Returning together by train yesterday from Mexico City were Representative and Mrs. Sol Bloom and Mrs. Patrick Hurley. All attended the inauguration of President Avila Camacho.

Mr. Hurley stopped off in Dallas to make a speech, but will fly East shortly to join his family at Belmont, their home near Leesburg.

The Kintners To Entertain

Capt. and Mrs. Edwin Graham Kintner will entertain a party of guests over the week-end. Out-of-town friends are coming here on Friday to attend the wedding of Miss Harriet Whitford to Edwin Kintner, jr., Saturday at the home of Mrs. Frances Parkinson Keyes.

These friends include Mrs. G. Dudley Waring, of New York; Mrs. Edward O. Troth, of Chestnut Hill, Pa.; Mrs. Frederick A. Dudley, of Philadelphia, and Dr. William Weekly, of Philadelphia.

Yesterday the prospective bride was guest of honor at a luncheon given by Mrs. William Bradley Willard at her home here. Others in the group were Mrs. Burton Grant Wadsworth, sister of Miss Whitford; Miss Susan Kintner, sister of Mr. Kintner; Miss Helen Clifford, Mrs. Emory A. Wheeler, Mrs. Alexander Heron, Mrs. Phillip Young, Mrs. Bishop Hill, Mrs. Eberhardt Haynes, Mrs. Richard Cutts, and Mrs. James Parker Nolan.

Jack Hayes will entertain at cocktails for the couple on Friday afternoon, and Miss Kintner will give a buffet supper for them that evening.

Mrs. Wilson to Be Married Tomorrow

The wedding of Mrs. Harry Bradford Wilson and Howard B. Stonebraker will take place tomorrow at 11 o'clock in St. Alban's Episcopal Church.

Following the ceremony there will be a reception at the Westchester.

About the Town

with Dudley Harmon

MRS. Christopher Bramwell, whose husband has been ordered back to London for duty after several years at the British Embassy here, is being overwhelmed with suggestions as to how to live in the bombed capital.

DUDLEY HARMON

Alan Rinehart, son of the novelist, is sending her a box of dehydrated foods. "This means a cabbage is about the size of a Brussels sprout until you put it in water, and then it swells up" said Lilie Bramwell yesterday. "So maybe I can carry the whole thing over in my pocketbook." As the Bramwells expect to go by clipper, they must condense their baggage as much as possible.

AFTER THEIR marriage in the fall, the Bramwells moved into a new house in Georgetown. The last slip cover had no sooner been delivered than they were ordered away. Mrs. Bramwell had spent days fixing up her home, so is naturally rather disappointed at having to get right out, but expects life in London to be extremely interesting. Meanwhile she has just leased her house for three months to Countess Zoppola of New York. The countess was here with Mrs. Huntington Astor for a visit earlier this month and was so intrigued by life in the Capital that she decided to settle in Washington for the winter.

Another among the suggestions from friends which are pouring in on the Bramwells is "Don't live anywhere but on the fifth floor of an 11-story building. That is the only safe place."

THE DIPLOMAT and his wife originally thought to leave around the middle of January, but now find they must go two weeks earlier. Mrs. Bramwell plans to place her children with her mother, Mrs. Charles Courtney. Though an American, Mrs. Bramwell has already caught the invincible British optimism, for she says that she hopes to have the children sent over to England in June "if things are fairly quiet."

Mrs. Bramwell returned to the Capital yesterday after spending the week-end in New York.

MRS. J. Borden Harriman is busy putting the finishing touches to her book on her Norwegian experiences, which is to be called, I hear, "Mission to the North." It has to be approved by the State Department owing to her official position as Minister to Norway.

EZRA STONE, stage and radio actor, and now starring in New York in "Horse Fever," was among those in the lobby at the National on Monday evening. Describing himself as a "fugitive from a farce," he came down on his night off to see "Out West Is Different."

Mr. Stone was telling friends how the letter "z" in his name is a problem when it comes to letters in electric lights over a theater. When he played in Atlantic City recently, the management was out of "z's," but wanted to put his name in huge letters against the pier. So they had a "z" made—"it cost $110, which was more than my salary," said Mr. Stone the other night.

NANCY ORDWAY is being congratulated on receiving the leading role in the new radio serial, "Mary Holden, Government Girl." She will be joined shortly by her brother, John, who is in the foreign service and has been stationed in Ceylon. To return he must go by boat all the way around the Cape of Good Hope, at the southermost tip of Africa.

Richard Cuttses, Of Alexandria, Give a Party

Maj. and Mrs. Richard Cutts entertained at a cocktail party which was in the nature of a housewarming, as they have been in their new home in Alexandria only ten days.

Honor guests were Mr. and Mrs. Horace Harrison Smith, who have recently returned from Shanghai, where Mr. Smith served as consul. They have taken the William Howard house in Georgetown.

Sigma Kappa Alumnae Will Meet Tonight

The Washington Alumnae Chapter of Sigma Kappa will meet at the home of Dr. Ella M. A. Enlows tonight at 8. Mrs. Harlow C. McCord will preside.

A Christmas dance will be held on December 28. Mrs. J. Earl Bassett is chairman.

CAPITAL WHIRL

by Sally Swift

MR. AND MRS. Walton Butterworth have returned to Washington from New Orleans, where they have been visiting Mr. Butterworth's family. The Butterworths are house guests of Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Fels at their home in Georgetown and intend to return to New Orleans for Christmas and another visit before Mr. Butterworth leaves for his post at the United States Embassy in London.

Mrs. Robert T. Pell entertained a few ladies for luncheon yesterday in honor of Mrs. Butterworth at the Pell apartment on Massachusetts Avenue. Mrs. Pell has been in New York for the past week shopping and getting a glimpse of New York theaters and night life.

DROPPING BY the house of Countess van Rechteren Limpurg the other afternoon in search of quiet and a cup of tea I found the latter but not a vestige of the former. Tables all over the house had been turned into work benches and before them sat ladies busily engaged in whipping up pretty things to be sold at the Connecticut Avenue shop recently opened for the benefit of Dutch seamen.

Pretty Countess van Rechteren looked up from her work, waved a pair of scissors in greeting and went on cutting out material for a Dutch costume—she has three of them on rush order—while nearby her guests, or would it be slaves? attended strictly to their stitching. Among the ladies sewing for the Dutch cause were Mme. Procope, wife of the Finnish Minister, Mrs. Derek Hoyer Millar, and Mrs. Anthony Coleby.

Count van Rechteren Limpurg, who was just going off to West Virginia to make a speech at a girls' school and therefore might have been expected to feel a bit nervous, looked in on the sewing-bee. He departed hastily with an air that said plainly that ladies flourishing pins, needles, and scissors were far more to be dreaded than girls who could muster nothing more dangerous than notebooks and pencils.

YOLANDE de Mauduit has sent out cards for a tea on Sunday, December 15 in honor of Mrs. Hiram Bingham's debutante daughter, Kitty Hill.

CHARMING Maria Teresa Escalante, daughter of the Ambassador of Venezuela, was hostess the other evening at one of a series of rumba concerts which have been organized under the chairmanship of Bob Driscoll, with Cuban Ambassador, Dr. Martinez Fraga, as one of the patrons.

At these "concerts" a group of young people gathers to practice Latin-American dances to the strains of music native to the countries to the south of us and to be taught the proper use of the Latin-American rhythm instruments. For the concert at the Venezuelan Embassy a Cuban orchestra, imported from out of town, was inspiration for the intricate steps of the rumba, conga, danzon and bolero.

A perfect setting for these tropical dances was the spacious playroom in the basement of the embassy. The decorations of the room are typical of Venezuela, with bright colored masques and drawings of Venezuela on the walls, and lovely materials of native design used in the upholstery.

The dark-haired hostess, who is one of the most skillful exponents of Latin-American dances in Washington, was brought up in Paris and has the chic and poise of a real Parisienne. Among her guests, and rivaling her in agile stepping, were Nancy Strong, Suzanne Slingluff, Mae Birne Simpson, Kitty Claude, Edgar Prochnik, jr., Jose de Lasa and a number of others.

Diplomat's Wife To Attend Fair Of Pen Women

As an added attraction for the two-day fair beginning today, at the Grafton Hotel Studio, and sponsored by the D. C. Branch of the League of American Pen Women, Mrs. Thomas Cajigas, chairman of celebrity teas, will present as her guests of honor this afternoon at 4:30 o'clock, Senora de Recinos, wife of the Minister from Guatemala; Senora Grade Espaillat, Mrs. Clinton Tribby, Lady Bradford Leslie and Mrs. Frances H. Whitman.

Mrs. J. N. Gibson Returns Home

Mrs. J. Newton Gibson left yesterday to return to her home at Gibson, N. C., after a visit of several weeks in Washington as guest of her son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Edson W. Briggs, at their home in Legation Street.

Mrs. Gibson, who has five children in Washington, was entertained at a continuous round of parties during her stay. Her children are Mrs. Everett Harris, Mrs. Arthur W. Dew, Mrs. Ralph Beall and Benjamin Newton. She was accompanied back to her home by another son, Giles Y. Newton, who makes his home in North Carolina.

Luncheon Given By Mrs. Wells

Mrs. Chester Wells, wife of Capt. Wells, U. S. N., entertained yesterday at a large luncheon at the Metropolitan Club. Guests of honor were Mrs. William D. Leahy, wife of Admiral Leahy, the newly appointed Ambassador to France, and Mrs. Wells' sister-in-law, Mrs. Guy Wells, who is in town on a brief visit from her home in Wyalusing, Pa.

Guests included Mrs. Harry M. P. Huse, Mrs. William Hemphill Bell, Mrs. Emerson Howe, Mrs. Goldsborough Adams, Mrs. R. W. Marsh, Mrs. Richard T. Taylor, Lady Bradford Leslie, Mrs. William D. Connor, Mrs. Dudley Knox, Mrs. Wallace Dempsey, Mrs. Charles McVay, Mrs. Lester Wilson, Mrs. Joshua Evans, jr., Mrs. Arthur Lee Willard, Mrs. McCalla Sands, Mrs. Walter Anderson, Mrs. John Morse, Mrs. Joseph P. Tracy, Mrs. Frank Tinney, Mrs. Frank Ridgley, Miss Mabel B. Turner and Miss Irene Wright.

Miss Wright, now connected with the State Department, is a former newspaper woman, has done valuable research work in Spain and is the author of several books.

Mrs. John B. Ryan Is Here for Visit With the Lamberts

Mrs. John Barry Ryan, of New York and Newport, R. I., has arrived in Washington for a visit with Baron and Baroness Henri Lambert, who recently came to Washington for the season and have taken a house at 3128 O Street.

Mrs. Bruce Smith, who has a summer home at Newport and met Mrs. Ryan some time ago, will entertain at a small luncheon for her today at the 1925 F Street Club.

Miss Frances Riesley To Hold 'at Home'

Miss Frances L. Riesley, who is a student at Mary Washington College, Fredericksburg, has issued invitations to an "at home" on New Year's Eve from 5 to 7. The party will take place at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Carl William Riesley, of this city.

The family will be joined for the holidays by Lieut. Comdr. and Mrs. Herbert R. Mytinger, of San Diego, Calif., and Mr. and Mrs. Vernace Neal, of Troy, Ohio.

Crains to Entertain Gov., Mrs. O'Conor

Mr. and Mrs. Bennett Crain and the latter's father, Dr. Hugh H. Young, of Baltimore, will entertain at luncheon on Saturday in honor of the Governor of Maryland and Mrs. Herbert O'Conor.

The party will take place at Mount Victoria, the Crain home in Maryland, and has been planned in connection with the opening of the Morgantown Bridge.

The Federal Diary

By Jerry Kluttz

They should be getting used to it by this time, but the annual case of reorganization jitters is again getting Forest Service employes worked up into a lather. And with good reason, too, as there is no question that Secretary of the Interior Ickes wants the agency and has started a new drive to get it. In fact a highly-placed report has Ickes resigning from the cabinet if he doesn't succeed. At Interior, however, a spokesman branded the report as "a typical piece of Forest Service propaganda." Nevertheless, the spokesman said the department would "welcome" Forest Service and said he believed it should be placed in Interior.

Transfer of the Forest Service from Agriculture to Interior was understood to have been included in a preliminary draft of a reorganization bill last spring, but it was knocked out by political pressure. The present reorganization bill expires on January 21 and it is a question whether the President will ask for an extension or whether he'll send up a plan to the new Congress before the act's expiration date. The President's advisors are divided on the matter.

Also understood to be under consideration is the transfer of all or a part of Commerce's Bureau of Marine Inspection and Navigation to Coast Guard and the creation of a new agency that would combine National Youth Administration and the Civilian Conservation Corporation. Officials say, however, that the proposed merger of CCC and NYA most likely would have to be done by legislation.

Norman Baxter has the reputation of being Jesse Jones' "eyes and ears" at the Department of Commerce. A veteran newspaperman, Baxter formerly was with Jones at RFC and during the political campaign he worked with the Democratic National Committee . . . General Accounting Office hasn't hired a non-Civil Service employe since the President signed the Ramspeck Bill. GAO most likely will be one of the first agencies to be brought under Civil Service by the President. More than half of its 5,800 employes don't have Civil Service status.

Corbin Dorsey will soon leave Farm Credit Administration for the Commodity Exchange Administration where he'll head the information section. He'll be CEA's first director of information . . . Milo Perkins, the hard-working chief of Surplus Marketing Administration, is back at his desk but with strict orders from his doctor to stop the hard work. He spent the past four weeks in Johns-Hopkins recuperating from a near physical breakdown. Friends estimate that he has averaged 12 hours a day at his desk for the past 18 months getting the Food Stamp Plan off on a good start.

Joseph McCamey, special assistant to Secretary of Agriculture Claude Wickard, is reported to be resigning to return to the faculty of Bennington College at Bennington, Vt. He is one of the department's aces on administrative problems . . . David Meeker, Bureau of Agricultural Economics official, is expected to succeed McCamey. Fact is that Meeker already is working in the Secretary's office and he's certain to be appointed to the job should Wickard remain as Secretary, and that appears certain enough.

The investigation division of the Surplus Marketing Administration has been overhauled within the past few weeks. Young lawyers with a flair for detective work have been added to the staff to replace some of the veterans who have been shifted to other jobs. Division chief is Frank J. Brechenser, former G-Man who is a graduate of Georgetown. Brechenser didn't get along any too well at first as he was represented as saying he was going to do "some housecleaning." Older employes became alarmed and took their cases direct to the Secretary's office. The division checks up on grocerymen in cities where the food stamp plan is in effect. Only about a quarter of 1 per cent of the growers are accused of giving persons tobacco and whiskey when they should be given surplus foods.

Federal employes whose jobs are to be brought under Civil Service by the Ramspeck Bill will be told what types of test to expect at 8 p. m. tonight in the North Interior Auditorium. The meeting, open to all Federal employes, is sponsored by the National Federation of Federal Employes and the main speaker will be Dr. Howard A. Edson, former chief examiner of the Civil Service Commission . . . Government Printing Office, which recently hired about 500 additional employes, is building up its personnel section . . . Howard Zahniser, Fish and Wildlife information chief, yesterday became the papa of a girl.

Civil Service Exams: Accounting and Auditing Assistant, $1,800; Junior Warehouse Examiner, $2,000; Junior Airway Traffic Controller, $2,000; Associate Animation Director, $3,200; Bindery Operator, 66 cents an hour; Mess Attendant, $1,020, and Antenna Rigger, $8.08 to $9.04 a day. Registers established: Research Veterinarian, 17 eligibles, and Medical Pathologist, 14 eligibles.

Head of U. S. Bar Group Assails Supreme Court

Feels Shift in Power 'Might Result in Loss of Democracy'

Jacob M. Lashly, president of the American Bar Association, last night attacked the Supreme Court for a shift of governmental power in America which "might result in the loss of democracy."

Lashly, who lives in St. Louis, Mo., spoke to more than 750 judges and lawyers at the District Bar Association's sixty-ninth annual dinner in honor of the Washington judiciary. His hearers included Supreme Court Justice Harlan F. Stone, one of whose opinions he quoted.

Lashly blamed two things for the shift in governmental power. First, he said, was the rise of pressure groups out of the depression and their "demands that the judicial department stand aside and allow the legislative and the executive branches to furnish economic rehabilitation and social security to them and their members unhindered by constitutional limitations or restrictions."

Sees 'Lack of Balance'

And second, said Lashly, the judiciary have "withdrawn from the control of powers formerly exercised, resulting in a lack of balance which, if not taken up again or provided for in some other way, may result in the loss of our democracy."

For 60 years after the Munn v. Illinois decision in 1877, Lashly said, the States were beating against the Fourteenth Amendment, trying to control commodity prices, wages and hours and other industrial matters. Then when the Supreme Court was ready to yield and give the States free rein, the court decided that changing conditions warranted new constructions and interpretations, so the power was granted by the court to the Federal government.

Lashly quoted Justice Brandeis as saying in 1939 that "there had been an important shift in constitutional doctrine due to a reconstruction in the membership of the court."

"Following its 'reorganization' in 1937," said Lashly, "the Supreme Court withdrew from the field and left the Congress and the executive without restrictions in regard to property dispositions and management. No Federal law has been successfully challenged in the courts since that time."

Urges Strong Defense

Lashly called for a strong national defense, declaring that "the gentleman in Germany today said he still believes that he can come and destroy us. There is no one left in the country, perhaps, so naive as not to know that the Nazi Germans would attack us, destroy our cities and our homes, and enslave our people, if they could."

Formation of the InterAmerican Bar Association, Lashly said, "is but the beginning of a professional solidarity among the lawyers of the Western Hemisphere, which is a natural accompaniment of our common defense."

Also a speaker was Dr. Raoul Herrera-Arango, secretary of the Cuban Embassy, a personal representative of the Inter-American Bar president, who is Dr. Manual Fernandez Supervielle, Havana.

Dr. Herrera-Arango explained the purposes of the association and urged American lawyers to attend its meeting in Havana, March 24 to 29, 1941.

The guests of honor were Chief Justice D. Lawrence Groner and Justices Harold Stephens, Justin Miller, Henry W. Edgerton and Fred Vinson of the United States Court of Appeals, Chief Justice Alfred A. Wheat and Justices David A. Pine, James W. Morris, Bolitha J. Laws, T. Alan Goldsborough, F. Dickinson Letts, James M. Proctor, Oscar R. Luhring and Jesse C. Adkins of the District Court.

Two Indicted for Manslaughter In Fatal Traffic Accidents

Riley Johnson, 32, colored, and Samuel L. Thomas, 26, colored, were indicted on manslaughter charges here yesterday for fatal accidents involving automobiles they are alleged to have been driving.

Johnson was blamed for the death of George F. Leigh, 15, telegraph messenger of 659 I street Southeast, last November 20. Thomas and Augustus A. Tompkins, 37, colored, were in an automobile which crashed at Eighth Street and Rhode Island Avenue Northwest on November. Tompkins was fatally injured. The police detained Thomas, who was alleged to have been driving.

The indictments were among 33 presented in the District Court yesterday. The jurors dismissed charges against 11 persons.

Those indicted were:

Manslaughter—Riley Johnson, 32, colored, for the traffic death of George F. Leigh, 17, near Eleventh and I streets southeast, about 10 p. m., November 20; Samuel L. Thomas, 26, colored, for the traffic death of Augustus A. Tompkins, 37, colored, at Eighth Street and Rhode Island Avenue Northwest, November 2.

Unauthorized Use of Automobile—Fred A. Martin, 24, colored; Thomas L. Beale, 27, colored; Albert Coleman, 26, colored.

Housebreaking and Larceny—Edward James Wrenn, 42; Leonard S. Thomas, 18, colored.

Housebreaking—Leonard S. Thomas, 18, colored; Charles E. Mayo, 18, colored; Lucius Chambers, 21, colored; Harold L. Maxwell, 19, colored.

Forgery and Passing a Forgery—Henry Garfield Burdette, 26, colored.

Arson—Jennie Green, 24, colored.

Running a lottery and having numbers slips—Victor Osin, 40.

Larceny after trust—Aldon Bottanzi, 36.

Assault with dangerous weapon—Macy Watson, 26, colored; James Martin, 20, colored; Roy U. Marks, 36; Margaret H. Spell, 32; Earl E. Waters, 44, colored; Rosco Barber, 34, colored; James L. Proctor, 23, colored; Joseph E. Gray, 28, colored.

Assault with intent to rape—Herbert D. Lewis, 32, colored.

The grand jurors dismissed these charges: Grand larceny—John R. Sendure, 20; receiving stolen property, Raburn B. Cox, 25; housebreaking, Lee B. McCoy, 30, colored; assault with dangerous weapon, Thomas E. Estes, 49, colored; mayhem, Frances E. Foster, 36, colored.

They also dismissed the following charges: Running a lottery and having numbers slips, William Foxx, 33, colored; James L. McNagrie, 37, colored; Stephen Rapakis, 36; George Citsas, 52; John Surles, 47, colored; Rose Greenstone and Helen Bean, colored.

The following charges were dismissed also: Homicide, Lee S. Hazans, 34, colored, who was detained after the death of George Washington Brown, 28, colored, of knife wounds he suffered at 1322 Ninth Street Northwest, November 10; Joseph ... Henderson, 47, who was held after the death of Gerald E. Swisher, 29, of knife wounds he suffered in front of 625 Fourteenth Street Northwest, November 8.

Robbery, James Butler.

Rooms Wait Inaugural Throngs

Listing of 29,453 Found Available Begins Tomorrow At Willard Hotel

Registration headquarters for more than 29,453 rooms available in the Capital for Presidential inauguration visitors will be opened today in Parlors F and G, of the Willard Hotel, it was announced yesterday by Edgar Morris, chairman of the housing and hospitality committee of the Inaugural Committee.

The number of available rooms, determined by a preliminary survey, will receive Nation-wide attention through a campaign of radio and press by the Greater National Capital Committee.

Morris said registration of the rooms will begin Thursday in the Willard and he urged all householders in and near the District to register the rooms they would make available.

3,000 Seats Sold First Day

Opening day yesterday at the grandstand ticket office, 727 Fifteenth Street Northwest, was a "huge success," according to Ticket Chairman Melvin Hildreth. He said 3,000 reservations for seats were made.

Hildreth said the office would continue to open at 9 a. m. and close at 6 p. m. each day until after the Christmas holidays, when it will be open until 10 p. m. The ticket chairman was also gratified over the number of out-of-town requests for tickets, prices of which are scaled from $2.50 to $10.

Col. David McCoach, jr., chairman of the grandstand committee, said yesterday bids would be opened Friday at 4 p. m. for construction of the grandstands. Estimated cost, he said, would be $45,000.

Several drawings for the proposed reviewing stand in front of the White House have been studied by the inaugural authorities, but it is believed the President will be asked to aid in designing it.

50 Extra Firemen Asked

At present plans call for 16,000 seats in the grandstand, but if the ticket sales continue at the pace of yesterday's opening, it may be necessary to borrow stands from the World's Fair and the Ringling Brothers Circus.

Meanwhile, Chief Engineer Stephen T. Porter of the District Fire Department has requested the Civil Service Commission to assign 50 men as temporary employes of the department for service during the inauguration ceremonies.

The Nation-wide campaign for publicizing the available rooms for visitors will be handled by Curtis A. Hodges, promotion director for the Greater National Capital Committee. He said he would advise all prospective visitors to contact the housing headquarters at the Willard Hotel for their quarters. Thus, before they even come to Washington, visitors may reserve their rooms, he said.

Lyle Murray Is Buried

Funeral services were held in Arlington Cemetery yesterday for Lyle Neville Murray, pay clerk, United States Navy, who died on board the U. S. S. Quincy December 6.

Mass. Avenue Zone Change Approved

8-Story Apartment Houses Permitted In 2-Block Area

The District Zoning Commission yesterday approved a change in zoning along Massachusetts Avenue, between Twentieth and Twenty-second Streets Northwest, which will permit erection of eight-story apartment houses.

Long a subject of dispute among residents along the two blocks, the zoning change was argued last Wednesday before the commission and had been disapproved by the commission's own advisory council. Heretofore the area had been restricted to dwellings.

In approving the change of zoning, the commission sided with the arguments put up by Mrs. Alice Roosevelt Longworth, Gen. C. L. Corbin and the Misses Mary and Nellie Patten, who appeared at the hearing. The area will become a 90-foot "C" zoning.

Action on the proposal to limit future structures to 110 feet in height, as advocated by the National Capital Parks and Planning Commission, was deferred until after December 26, when the promoters of the $15,000,000 Crystal City project receive a public hearing on their proposition to change the zoning of a portion of the Dean Tract, site of the development, to permit taller structures.

Other zoning changes approved follow:

Extension of the first commercial, 40-foot "C" area, to include the east side of Twelfth Street, between Evarts Street and Rhode Island Avenue Northeast.

Residential property bounded by Benning Road, East Capitol Street and Fort Drive Northeast was zoned "A," semi-restricted, but no change was made for commercial areas in this section.

Property on the southwest corner of Twelfth Street and Florida Avenue Northeast was changed to first commercial, 60-foot "C" area.

Premises at 205-215 and 202-208 Cedar Street and 7004-7064 Eastern Avenue Northwest was changed to residential, 40-foot, "A" area.

Washington's Fire Buffs Form Association

With the activities of fire departments as their common interests, a group of Washingtonians representing all ages and walks of life have formed an organization named the Friendship Fire Association, it was announced last night. It took its name from George Washington's volunteer fire-fighting unit.

Dr. Edward R. Gookin, founder of the famous Box 52 Association of Boston, has been named president of the club. The first meeting was held at his home, 1113 Sixteenth Street Northwest.

Life Insurance Club Honors George Black

George T. Black, secretary of the Life Insurance Club of Washington, was presented last night with a desk set by the club in honor of his five years as secretary of the organization.

The presentation took place at a dinner of the club held at the Parrot Tea Room, 1701 Twentieth Street Northwest. Black has been Washington representative of the Sun Life Insurance Co. of Canada for the last 15 years.

Working for Washington

Federation Serves Capital As Council

Most Influential Organization of Citizens In Voteless District

This is the first of two articles on citizens federations which will conclude The Post's series on associations of citizens in the District.

By far the most influential body of citizens in Washington is the Federation of Citizens Associations, which serves as an informal town council for the voteless District. Membered by two representatives from each of the 65 citizens associations, it presents the views of District residents to the Commissioners and to Congress. As the voice of a sizable part of the citizenry, it is the champion of democracy, under difficulties.

The federation was organized 30 years ago as a means of unifying District sentiment and creating a strong group capable of getting results in solving civic problems. Citizens associations at the time were followed closely by Congressmen wishing to get opinions of Washington residents, but associations frequently disagreed and seldom cooperated in sponsoring city-wide improvements.

The first meeting of the federation was held April 16, 1910, in the old Chamber of Commerce Building at Twelfth and F Streets Northwest. William McK. Clayton was elected president, and for the first time since the commissioner form of government was set up here in 1878, a representative organization was set up in the District.

Its history since then fills the second and more fruitful half of the history of citizens' associations here. A perennial fight to obtain a vote for the city in national elections has formed the background for immediate and practical affairs attacked by the federation. And there has been a growing demand in recent years for local suffrage as well.

At monthly meetings in the District Building the organization tackles current problems suggested by member associations, and by sponsoring joint action has been responsible for many civic improvements, new schools, streets, lights and legislation.

On two occasions the federation had been split on matters of policy. In its early years, debate on the question of prohibition for the District nearly split the body, but resulted in recommendation of the Sheppard bill for District of Columbia prohibition. In 1917 the city went dry.

More recently, the "red rider" of 1935 caused terrific dissension. Attached to the District appropriations bill, it required teachers in Washington schools to sign statements saying they had not advocated communism. It was subsequently repealed.

First on the Federation's order of business this season is a drive centering around District zoning. Delegates aim to keep the present legal height of buildings—140 feet—from being raised, and to aid the associations in keeping residential areas from being rezoned to allow commercial establishments.

Top officers of the organization include Harry N. Stull, president; Harry S. Wender, first vice president; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, second vice president; K. P. Armstrong, treasurer, and David Babp, secretary.

Citizens Urge New Site for Abbott School

Say New York Ave. Location Would Save $300,000

Construction of the Abbott Vocational School on the "Brentwood tract" on the south side of New York Avenue near Sixth Street Northeast, rather than at Fourteenth and Upshur Streets Northwest, was urged last night at a meeting of the Stanton Park Citizens Association.

Cost of the school on the northeast site would be $300,000 less than at the Upshur Street location, members said, because the architecture would have to conform with the more expensive type of school construction in the latter section.

The unit also commended the District Commissioners for their survey of tax-exempt property

Logan-Thomas Circle

The Logan-Thomas Circle Citizens Association last night appointed a three-member committee to represent the association at the dedication of the new Second Precinct Station January 16.

Members are: Mrs. Frank M. Thompson, association president; Frank M. Thompson, and Mrs. Fred Haig.

The unit also went on record indorsing the oratorical training program of George Washington University. One of the students will address a forthcoming meeting of the association.

Benning Association

The heating plant and sanitary conditions at the Benning School were scored last night by the Benning Citizens Association in a resolution which recommended replacement of the units as "an economy." It was further urged that the school's thickly oiled floors be cleaned.

It was announced at the meeting that 15 extra street cars will be put on the westward run from the Benning-Kenilworth District line between the hours of 8 and 9 a. m., effective immediately.

O. C. Spitzer and Steven Balcerowicz were elected delegates to the Northeast Conference of Citizens Associations.

Two Robbers Take $6.85 From Cleaners

Two men escaped with $6.85 yesterday from the Arisio Cleaners, 1454 P Street Northwest, at 9:40 a. m. after threatening the clerk, Mary E. Hovermill, who told police that while one held his hand in his pocket as if he had a gun, the other took the money.

Dr. Fred Albee Gets Kappa Sigma Award At Fraternity Banquet as 'Man of the Year'

Dr. Fred H. Albee, New York orthopedic surgeon and president of the International College of Surgeons, was awarded Kappa Sigma fraternity's "Man of the Year" award at a banquet attended by more than 300 of his fraternity brothers at the Carlton Hotel last night.

Senator Warren R. Austin (Republican), of Vermont, recipient of the award last year, conferred the honor upon Dr. Albee. The leadership plaque, emblematic of the award, was presented to Putnam Cole, president of Dr. Albee's initiate chapter at Bowdoin College.

Following a brief speech of acceptance, Dr. Albee showed motion pictures of his medical career, including his performing an operation at the University of Bologna in Italy where Kappa Sigma had its European inception.

Messages were read from previous award winners, Lowell Thomas and C. R. Smith, president of American Airlines, Inc.

Guests at the dinner included Hurja, Roswell F. Magill, former Under-Secretary of the Treasury; James V. Bennett, director of Federal prisonus; Rudolph M. Evans, Assistant Secrtarey of Agriculture; Harry W. Nice, former Governor of Maryland, and former District Commissioner George E. Allen.

The event marked the seventy-first annual banquet since the founding of the fraternity.

WHITE HOUSE DANCE MUSIC. Dick Koons and his Mayflower Lounge orchestra are walking on air. For they're to play at the White House for Joan Morgenthau's debut on December 28. They'll go to the White House the minute they finish playing in the Lounge on Christmas night, join forces with their boss, Sidney of the Mayflower, and the orchestra he will lead during the earlier part of the evening. The White House engagement represents the topflight date of the season, so you'll know why the Mayflower Lounge melody lads are going around with that "dream come true" look.

Jane Winton, former Follies star, last seen in Washington in the leading role of "Irene" at the Capitol Theater, will head next week's floor show at the Shoreham . . . The Three Sophisticated Ladies are a last minute addition to this week's glowing Blue Room revue which also includes Audrey Palmer, of musical comedy, pantomimist Grace Drysdale and baritone Hal Cummings.

"HAPPY BIRTHDAY" will be played by Milt Herth's Trio for all Neptune Room customers celebrating birthdays. They'll also receive "Herthday presents," meaning autographed records made by the Herthians. Those are real presents, m'friends, for the Herth platters offer some of the most brilliant boogie-woogie extant . . . Girl singers competing for that prize plum, a permanent place with the Herth Trio, will have their first tryouts tomorrow eve. Better be on hand to encourage your favorite canary.

NICE NEWCOMERS. Harry Norman, clever guitarist often heard on the air waves, has just joined the Lounge Riviera as its strolling troubadour. He's played in big night spots all over the country, sings any number of smart li'l comedy songs. . . . That fetching little songstress, Peggy Wood, has just joined up with Helen Malcolm at the Silver Fox. A piquant pair.

ROMANCE, INCORPORATED, has entered El Patio in the persons of Freddie and May Dearborn, a couple of youngsters with a quintuple ration of charm and talent. Their "I Want to Go Home" (written by May) would be the pride of anybody's stage show and what they do to "O-Hi-O" puts life into the old stream. Away up on their private hit parade, too, are "Hawaiian Jitterbug" and a swing version of "Ciribiribin." Congratulations to Jimmy Flakas and Harry Hooley for their smartness in lassoing this pair . . . While you're at El Patio, better ask the Countess de Bournat to psychoanalyze you. La Comtesse is la expert on les complexes humaines.

Big Bill Kavakos, of Kavakos' Grill, is busy as a bee in a rose garden. He's planning a Greek relief party, also making blue prints for a monumental New Year's celebration.

NEW "TROPICANA ROOM." By Christmas there'll be a new "Tropicana Room" at Del Rio. And what a pleasant spot of jungle it's going to be! Tiny tropical huts of bamboo and attap imported from Sumatra, by Capt. Frank Buck, will line the room. Walls will be covered with Chinese straw cloth and bright brocades. There'll be a Pan-American Band playing alternately with Ray Bradford's Orchestra stationed in the Fiesta Room. Music from both bands will be piped into both rooms, providing continuous dance music in American and Latin-American styles for patrons of the Tropicana and Fiesta Rooms. The big circular bar of the cocktail lounge will be moved into the grill, as a completing change in Del Rio geography . . .

JIMMY SUMMERVILLE, head man of Hi Hat's Four M's

. . . The double-jive in Mayfair when Sammy Ferro, of Paul Kain's unit goes over the top with drums and vocal . . . The tensity in Casino Royal when Jack Schafer's trumpet notes hit the stratosphere. He just about blows his brains out twice a night . . . The magic perfection of Emil Boreo's tempo in his own creation, "March of the Wooden Soldiers" at Troika . . . The torrid zone dance rhythms of Al Spieldock's Band at Paul Young's. They always have the steam up to high pressure.

ROVING REPORTER. You're going to miss manager Bob Korn from the Cafe Caprice. He's leaving to go into an aeroplane plant. He was a mechanical engineer in the Chrysler European organization before coming to this country . . . Look out for that big "surprise" in the King Cole Room tonight. At 10 o'clock sharp . . . Psychoanlyst Guido, of the Rainbow Room, says that persons of negative personality are the hardest to analyze. They're like sheets of blank paper . . . Manager P. A. George, of the Robin Hood, used to be in the banking and brokerage business . . . The Harrington Tavern wine list looks like a de luxe Christmas card, will remind you to hurry up with your shopping . . . If you're looking for a musician on his time off, it's a good idea to page him in Dick's Grill.

REQUESTS ARE "MUST" at the Nightingale. Rodd Raffell's band plays all the new numbers hot from the griddle, but request numbers have the right of way. When the requests pile up to a dozen or so in a short time, the band plays a "request medley" so that not one is skipped.

COLORFUL INTERIORS. Symbolic silver foxes appear all over the Silver Fox, on the walls, menus and bar. A silver hedge divides the two main rooms . . . Ciro's Village has a baby volcano that exhales fire every few minutes . . . Remember the mural of the dwarf and the huge wine cask in the New Bavarian He's supposed to have drank the entire contents of the cask, according to the old story it illustrates . . . Those frivolous monkeys in Burt's Trans-Lux are the brain children of artist Barry Barretto . . . The Don Quixote Room in Madrillon is a favorite of Host Peter who was reared in such a Spanish landscape.

CINDERELLA GIRLS. Glass slippers (vinylite's the scientific name for them) are sparkling on the tootsies of Marcia Neil, songstress with Sonny James' band at Wardman, and Eileen George of the Anchor Room. Eileen vows that glass slippers are even more comfy than sports shoes. BARN DANCING is bringing down the roof at Lotus. Bill Strickland, rigged out in a big straw hat and old-time frock coat, calls the "figgers" while customers and the Lotus revue dancers prance like colts. . . . Charlotte Lamberton, the beautiful deaf-mute dancer, was last in Washington with Dave Apollon's show at the Capitol Theater, has also appeared at the Earle. . . . Al De Lage transforms a rabbit into a goldfish, silk handkerchiefs into a bedspread, a cigarette into a cob pipe. Who says the age of miracles is over?

The Gay 90's is stressing Wednesday, Friday and Saturday gala nights. Saturday is also "recording night." All guests are invited to make their own recordings, receive the records.

RHYTHM, RHYTHM, and AGAIN RHYTHM! The maddening conga that's beaten out entirely with drums at La Salle Versailles. So furious it would inspire Mickey Mouse to take on the M.-G.-M. lion . . . The smoothly woven rhythm the Shannon trio with Bob Simpson's new Cosmos Room Orchestra. It includes Grace Shannon, brother Frank Shannon and Dorothy King

Reception for Teachers

The special meeting of the Parent-Teacher Association of the Washington Lee High School tonight at the school at 8 o'clock will be featured by a reception for teachers. There will be music by the school Glee Club.

Isn't This Why You Are Constipated?

What do you eat for breakfast? Coffee, toast, maybe some eggs? What do you eat for lunch and dinner? White bread, meat, potatoes? It's little wonder you're constipated. You probably don't eat enough "bulk." And "bulk" doesn't mean the amount you eat. It's a kind of food that forms a soft "bulky" mass in the intestines and helps a movement. If this is your trouble, may we suggest a crunchy toasted cereal—Kellogg's All-Bran—for breakfast. All-Bran is a natural food, not a medicine—but it's particularly rich in "bulk." Being so, it can help you not only to get regular but to keep regular. Eat All-Bran regularly, and drink plenty of water. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

Chicago, Dec. 10.—Lobbying:

An announcement that there is a coaching job open on any major league club would cause a stampede in the lobby of the hotel which is baseball headquarters this week. Old ball players, jobless now in the only profession they know, stand about with mingled hope and misgivings.

POVICH

Oscar Melillo, who was unlucky enough to be on Oscar Vitt's side in the Cleveland rebellion last summer, was fired as a Cleveland coach along with Manager Vitt. "I guess I had it coming to me," said Melillo philosophically. "I guess I was just an old-fashioned baseball man who had the old-fashioned idea that I was supposed to work with my manager, not against him."

The figure filberts have now deduced that the ball player who will take the biggest salary cut will be Hank Greenberg. As they view it, Greenberg's salary will be slashed ninety-nine (99) per cent—the difference between the $36,000 he was drawing from the Tigers and the $360 (at $30 a month) that he will draw in the Army when his low draft number is called up.

The St. Louis Browns' bosses who for years have been an inconsequential group at the trade meetings, grateful for anything that was tossed their way, have taken on new stature. In fact, they're almost pompous, but it's understandable. The Browns have come up with a really good ball team and have players that every other club in the league want.

The Browns' owners dug up $30,000 for Pitchers Galehouse and Potemueller of the Red Sox, and they've offered to buy Rick Ferrell from Washington for cash, a commodity that the Browns seldom used to mention in any deal except when it was incoming cash. With five crack outfielders as Radcliff, Judnich, Laabs, Grace and Hoag, the Browns are in a position to drive shrewd bargains.

Joe Cronin and General Manager Eddie Collins, of the Red Sox, put in an appearance today that was exceedingly timely for Gabby Hartnett. They made Hartnett an offer to join the Red Sox at a time when Gabby was dickering over salary terms with the Giants, and the Giants, in great haste, upped their offer to Hartnett by $2,000. He signed.

At least one club here can make no mistakes in a trading way. It is the Detroit Tigers who, as champions, are forbidden to make a deal. "I came all the way from the Pacific Coast," said Manager Del Baker, "to keep my mouth shut. Somehow, I think I could have done it just as well at home."

Manager Joe McCarthy of the Yankees was being needled by Cleveland writers on his team's collapse last season when he neatly turned the tables on his hecklers.

The name of Hal Trosky came up, and McCarthy cracked: "That's one guy the Yankees never worry about. He never gives us any trouble."

The Cleveland contingent bristled. McCarthy disparaging Trosky would make for a spicy quotation.

"You mean you don't worry about Trosky when he's at bat?" they asked.

"That's right," said McCarthy. "He never got a game-winning hit off us and he never will. Sure, he gets those long hits early in the game but if its tied up in the seventh, eighth or ninth we don't worry about Trosky."

The Clevelanders were on the point of exploding with wrath at this insult to their hero, when McCarthy held up a calming hand.

"Wait a minute, let me finish. What I said still goes. We never worry about Trosky if he comes up in a pinch. We take care of him. We walk him."

Followed, a love feast.

Lew Briggs, who was traded to Brooklyn by the Cincinnati Reds, was certainly not acquired by the Dodgers on account of his run-producing abilities. He batted in only one run last year. That one, however, won a ball game. He was at bat with the bases full, the score tied in the ninth, and the count three-and-two against him. The next pitch was a low curve that almost scraped the plate and would have forced in the winning run anyway if Riggs hadn't golfed it over the second baseman's head for a single.

Washingtonians at the meeting are besieged for an explanation of what happened to the Redskins against the Bears. Taking rank with that question is this one: What happened to the Bears on the day they got licked by the Redskins, 7-3? In fact, that latter score now demands more explanation than the 73-0 licking the Redskins took.

On the Line

With CONSIDINE

New York, Dec. 10.—It was a little mystifying to read that Jake Powell was waived out of the American and National Leagues. The last time he was able to break into what was a wonderful Yankee outfield regularly, 1936, he batted .299 and then became the hot-shot of the World Series with a .455 stick average. Last year Ed Barrow told us that he'd rather have one Jake Powell around than a dozen average big leaguers, because he tried harder, shot the works every time he started, and was always in there plugging. Joe McCarthy liked him, too, and had finally straightened Jake out, domestically and financially.

CONSIDINE

Jake's industry ruined his 1940 season and, apparently, his big league career. He ran into a steel wall chasing an inconsequential line drive in an exhibition game last spring and suffered a very bad fracture of the skull. His being waived out of the big show may mean that the word has been grapevined that he will never be able to play well again, as a result of that break. If this is so, that's a terrible thing. But from the appearance of things, it looks as if this might have been one of those cases where the Yanks said to the other owners, "Pass this fellow up and we'll do the same for you some day." For when teams like the Senators refuse to waive on a spavined old guy like Danny McFayden, and claim him, one suspects that the same club or other drag-behind teams would snare the energetic Powell.

The San Francisco Seals, who got Powell, thus wind up with two of the Yanks of yesteryear, Lazzeri being the other, and under the management of the Dodger and Giant of another day, Lefty O'Doul. No wonder they call it the New York of the Golden West.

A principle concern of the owners at the winter baseball meeting, as usual, will be the draft, but this time they mean THE draft. clauses probably will be inserted in future baseball contracts nullifying bills of sale or promises of yearly salary, if the player bargained for winds up in khaki instead of flannels. Clark Griffith has made the suggestion that ball players caught in the draft be permitted to serve their year's training in two six-month hitches, after the ends of successive baseball seasons. But it isn't likely that this will be made to a motion and adopted by the other owners, who believe that the proposal would result in blasts against the industry for presuming to be indispensable.

After the Bears-Redskins debacle, Ernie Pinckert, who has been around pro ball for nigh on to a decade, wheezed, "Well, I don't think I need any more of a hint than that to get out of this game. I'm through." Several of the Bears said they felt sorry for Ray Flaherty, the Redskin coach, while they were running up the score. But apparently they didn't feel sorry enough.

We came from that massacre with Cliff Battles, the great former Redskin and now Lou Little's assistant at Columbia. "I'm sure the Bears couldn't have beaten Columbia by that score," Cliff said. "They wouldn't have beaten the Redskins by that margin either, if the Redskins had kicked more on second down. But I guess that after the score gets out of hand, there's not much do-or-die on the losing team." Battles thinks that the Bears' T formation, with a back in motion, will gain increasing favor through the colleges next year.

George Halas thinks that the Bears were able to run through the Redskin line because he pulled the Redskin defense out of shape by posting an end far out on the flank and directing his back in motion to run out the same way, before the ball was snapped. The Redskins would shift accordingly, and the Bears would run inside the uncertain tackle and guard.

We have a war bulletin from our favorite Marine, Lieut. Col. Heinie Miller, who still has time to read the sports pages, a reassuring note in these days. He is confused by these conflicting facts: "Zivic beats Armstrong for the title, Armstrong flattens Phil Furr, Furr slops Steve Mamakos, Mamakos trims Milt Aron, Aron flattens Zivic—all within a year." He adds, "The two standout national attractions are still Sammy Angott, N.B.A. champion, against Lew Jenkins for the lightweight title. Jenkins beat Lello more convincingly than Angott; Angott beat Montgomery more convincingly than Jenkins did. Also Tony Zale, N.B.A. middleweight champion, against Ken Overlin."

We're mighty glad that the Redskins got that dry field they hoped for, or that game Sunday might have resulted in a runaway.

Nats Dickering With Bosox for Roger Cramer

Sox Reported Interested In Pitchers

Harris Won't Divulge Nat Players Wanted; Washington Seeks Carey of Red Sox

By Shirley Povich

Post Staff Writer

Chicago, Dec. 11.—The Washington ball club's trading efforts turned definitely toward Boston tonight, with Roger Cramer, Red Sox outfielder, the talking point.

After Clark Griffith retired for the night, following unsuccessful negotiations with the Browns and Yankees, Manager Bucky Harris closeted himself with Red Sox officials. Long after midnight he was still in session with Owner Tom Yawkey and General Manager Eddie Collins of the Boston club.

Indications were that the deal would be a straight swap of Outfielder Gerald Walker for Cramer.

If the trade is made, the Red Sox would doubtless use Walker in another deal with the Cleveland Indians. At one point during the negotiations tonight, all three clubs—Boston, Washington and Cleveland—were discussing a three-cornered trade that could send Cramer to the Nats, Walker to Cleveland and Catcher Frankie Pytlak and Outfielder Jeff Heath of the Indians, to Boston.

Would Trade Leonard

The Red Sox need catching strength, the Nats perfer Camer to Walker, and the Indians vision Walker as an improvement of their weak hitting outfield.

Earlier in the day Washington's trading efforts turned in a new direction following the stalemating of negotiations with the Browns who had sought Rick Ferrell. The Nats' bosses talked with General Manager Ed Barrow of the Yankees.

The name of Dutch Leonard was bandied about in the Washington-New York talks and indications are that the Nats' bosses are not averse to trading Leonard, their best pitcher. He had been regarded as far removed from trading material.

Also Seeking Carey

Washington is not prepared to exchange any of its ranking pitchers for Cramer unless the Red Sox would include one or two other players in the deal. Needing infielders as they do, the Nats are presumed to be seeking Second Baseman John Carey from Boston in addition to Cramer.

The Cleveland Indians stalled the Nats' early efforts to deal with Boston by bidding for Cramer themselves. The Indians offered Catcher Frankie Pytlak in exchange, and refused to listen the Nats' pleas that it be a three-cornered deal.

Negotiations were virtually stalemated while Griffith was getting himself reelected to the vice presidency of the American League and figuring in morning and afternoon sessions in the league's council.

Every club with which Griffith and Harris have talked has unfailingly brought up the name of Cecil Travis and a Washington pitcher, but Griffith has made it known that he is considering no trade involving Travis. In the way of infielders, he is offering Jimmy Bloodworth and Jimmy Pofahl.

The day was completely devoid of any completed deals, although the newest and strongest report is that the Red Sox and Indians are nearing a trade. The Red Sox, sadly

Umpire Klem Is Retired by Senior League

Reelection of Landis As Baseball's Czar Is Assured Today

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Dec. 10.—The major leagues agreed today to the reelection of Commissioner Kenesaw Mountain Landis which will take place in a unanimous action at tomorrow's joint session of the National and American Leagues.

BILL KLEM

In addition to matters which the two circuits considered jointly, the American League designated July 8 at Detroit for the 1941 All-Star game and the National League announced that 65-year-old Bill Klem, the "great arbitrator," had been retired from active service and made supervisor of umpires.

The American League also voted to retain its rule against trading by its championship club. The National League reelected President Ford Frick for four years.

The two leagues were in session for seven hours while managers, scouts and onlookers milled around in the lobbies hoping to make trades and gossiping about nothing in particular.

The only deal of the day was transacted just at dinner time by the Cincinnati Reds and the New York Giants. It sent Outfielder Morrie Arnovich to the Giants for cash—estimated at $12,500—and exchanged Pitcher Milt Shoffner, of the Reds for Shortstop Wayne Ambler, of the Jersey City Giants of the International League, and cash. Shoffner will be placed on the Jersey City roster.

The Giants also signed Leo (Gabby) Hartnett, the big, bluff former manager of the Chicago Cubs, as player-coach, replacing Coach Travis Jackson, who retired because of ill-health.

Hartnett, happy at getting another job after spending 19 years with the Cubs, declared, "I'll be more player than coach. I think I can catch 100 games if necessary for the Giants.

In their formal meetings the major leagues also set April 14 for the opening of the 1941 season with the New York Yankees making a ceremonial appearance at Washington followed by the general getaway of all clubs the next day.

Vet Nick Cullop, Home Run Expert, To Boss Asheville

By the Associated Press

St. Louis, Dec. 10.—Nick Cullop, who has slammed 456 home runs in his 17 seasons in professional baseball—an average of slightly better than 26 a year—has been selected by the St. Louis Cardinals to manage their Piedmont League farm at Asheville in 1941.

Cullop, hefty outfielder who has campaigned effectively through the big minors and done duty with both Brooklyn and Cincinnati, will succeed Tommie West as manager at Asheville. West has been sold to Mobile of the Southeastern League.

Cullop, who will be playing manager at Asheville, hit his greatest home run stride in 1930 when he slugged 57 round trips while playing rightfield for Minneapolis in the American Association. He has been with Houston in the Texas League for the last two seasons.

Kansas Wins, 48-45

Lawrence, Kans., Dec. 10 (AP).—Kansas squeezed out a 48-to-45 victory tonight over Texas University to sweep a two-game basketball series.

Sea Gulls Surprise Eagles by 6-5 Score

Atlantic City Skaters Take Early Lead; Stave Off Washington Rush to Win Eastern League Match Before 3,000

By Jack Munhall

The Atlantic City Sea Gulls picked up where they left off last year and upset the Washington Eagles, 6-5, last night before 3,000 fans at Riverside Stadium, snapping the locals' four-match winning string while extending a streak of their own to four in a row.

Washingto twice came from behind to tie the score in a vain attempt to forestall its first home loss of the campaign, but Goalie Les Colvin, subbing for Gordon Hemming had a bad night at the nets, and the Sea Gulls clinched the victory with a splurge of five goals in the second period.

That second period set some sort of local record for prolific pointmaking, the Eagles tallying three times of their own accord to make it a total of seven goals in 20 minutes of play.

The loss was Washington's third in 14 matches and left them in first place, two games ahead of the second-place Orioles and 3½ games in front of the third-place New York Rovers.

Entering the third period confronted with a 6-4 deficit, the Eagles narrowly missed forcing the match into the season's first overtime here, but after Norman Burns had counted his second goal to bring Washington to 5-6, Goalie Lyle Porter took charge for Atlantic City.

Porter, a newcomer this year to the Sea Gulls, contributed several sparkling saves in the final five minutes of play, his individual brilliance being sufficient to offset even a penalty which left the Sea Gulls shy Harry Dick for two crucial minutes. Porter twice turned back promising shots by Hal Dewey, and then, in the last 30 seconds, when Washington withdrew Goalie Colvin and sent a third wing onto the ice, he checked a drive by Burns just inches short of the goal.

By this victory the Sea Gulls, whose ability to beat Washington last year cost the Eagles the Eastern Amateur League title, gained partial vengeance for two straight current lickings by Coach Redvers MacKenzie's men.

After reverting to their early season habit of falling behind at the start of a match, the Eagles took a 2-1 lead in a fast, well-played opening period, marked by a major penalty to Rossignol, of the Eagles.

Tom Harmon Spurns Offers To Turn Pro

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 10.—If there is any one of this year's college football players who needn't worry about a job when he is graduated next June, it's Halfback Tommy Harmon, of Michigan.

Today's developments in young Harmon's headline life took approximately the following sequence:

1. At Washington this afternoon he was drawn No. 1 in the National Pro Football League by the Chicago Bears, which gives the pro champions the right to negotiate with the Gary (Ind.) wonder boy.

2. Harmon promptly announced that, while it was an honor, it didn't "influence my decision not to play pro football." But he added a rider to the effect that "that's the way I feel about it now, anyway."

3. To emphasize this current determination, he wired Carl Storck, president of the National League, asking that his name be withdrawn from the draft list.

4. Douglas G. Hertz, who yesterday bought the New York Yankees of the rival American League, announced he'd arrange a meeting for tomorrow morning between Harmon and Donald Flamm, head of Radio Station WMCA. This meeting, Hertz said, would result in Harmon's signing a contract for a year-round radio announcer's job. The Michigan star has insisted all along radio is his chief interest.

5. Hertz added that if Harmon does reconsider his decision about pro football, he'll do his playing with the Yankees. Harmon was not immediately available for comment on this point.

All of which, apparently, means Harmon may turn out to be the one boy who can have his cake and eat it, too.

By the Associated Press

Chicago, Dec. 10.—You can make your plans now for the opening of baseball's 1941 major league season.

On April 14 the New York Yankees will play at Washington for the sport's annual ceremonial start, major league officials decided tonight. The next day the program for the big start will be:

NATIONAL LEAGUE:
St. Louis at Cincinnati.
Pittsburgh at Chicago.
Boston at Philadelphia.
New York at Brooklyn.

AMERICAN LEAGUE:
Detroit at St. Louis.
Chicago at Cleveland.
Philadelphia at New York.
Washington at Boston.

Bears' Bold Strategy Highlights Grid Draft

Chicago Gets Harmon and Flock Of All-Americas in Annual Pro Meeting in Local Hotel

By Al Hailey

Just as their power and deception on the field Sunday at Griffith Stadium left everyone asking "what happened to the Redskins," their managerial strategy yesterday left the other nine National League club owners and coaches asking "what happened to us."

Here's what did happen:

1. The Bears, with three selections in the first round to every other club's one, walked off with the most coveted prize of the meeting—the right to bargain with Tommy Harmon, Michigan's All-American halfback, for his services in 1941.

2. The Bears missed getting the Nation's No. 2 All-American, Jarrin' John Kimbrough, of Texas A. and M., only by a flip of a coin, but,

3. The Bears obtained Stanford's 225-pound fullback, Norman Standlee, on third choice, and,

4. They embellished their selections with a bevy of All-Americas and on their "official" first choice picked Don Scott, Ohio State's All-Big Ten running back.

The Chicago Cardinals, who won second choice by flipping a coin with Pittsburgh, won Kimbrough, but the Bears came out on top when each club had drawn its quota of 20 draftees.

The Redskins, who were the tenth and last club to get a chance to pick from the draft list of some 400 graduating college players, chose Michigan's greatest blocking back, Forest Evashevski, as their first selection.

The "big name" players were grabbed up in the early stages of the draft.

To the Bears, in addition to Harmon, Standlee, and Scott, went Stanford's Halfback Hugh Gallarneau, Boston College's passing star, Charley O'Rourke and Georgetown's big center, Allen Matuza.

The Cardinals came up with the second most attractive list of stars. In addition to Kimbrough, they obtained Tennessee's all-American back, Bob Foxx; Missouri's all-

By the United Press

Following is the order in which the first 10 players were picked in the National Football League's draft meeting today:

1. *Tommy Harmon, Michigan back, by Philadelphia.
2. John Kimbrough, Texas A. and M. back, by Chicago Cardinals.
3. *Norman Standlee, Stanford back, by Pittsburgh.
4. Rudy Mucha, U. of Washington center, by Cleveland.
5. James Thomason, Texas A. and M. back, by Detroit.
6. George Franck, Minnesota back, by New York.
7. George Paskvan, Wisconsin back, by Green Bay.
8. Dean McAdams, U. of Washington back, by Brooklyn.
9. Don Scott, Ohio State back, by Chicago Bears.
10. Forest Evashevski, Michigan back, by Washington.

*Harmon and Standlee both become the property of the Chicago Bears as a result of previous player deals with Philadelphia and Pittsburgh.

Western Md. Leads, 17-16, Then Slows

Georgetown Scores 16 Points in Row At Start of Second Half to Triumph

By Merrell W. Whittlesey

Georgetown University courtmen staggered through the first half of their opening home game with Western Maryland last night in Tech gym, trailing, 17-16, and then let the Terrors have it in the second period with some fancy shooting that netted a 41-29 victory.

It was the first victory in two starts for the Hilltoppers while it was the season's debut for Western Maryland.

After spending most of the first half shooting at the Western Maryland basket—and missing—Georgetown came out in the second half and before 5 minutes had elapsed scored 16 consecutive points while holding the Terrors pointless to put the game on ice.

The Terrors brought a better-than-average Western Maryland team this year, a club that may cause a lot of trouble in the Mason-Dixon Conference before the season is over. The scoring star of the Westminster team was Frank Suffern, a sophomore from Hazelton, Pa., who shot five times in the first period—and made five baskets.

Suffern Is Life Saver

When the Terrors would get behind in the first half, Suffern would drop one from mid-court to put them ahead. He personally escorted them to 6-4, 11-10 and 17-16 leads. He was held to a lone basket, however, in the second half.

Coach Elmer Ripley's half-time pep-talk certainly had its effect on his Hoyas. Buddy O'Grady dropped one to put his team ahead, Jim Kiernan made one of his six perfect baskets next and then Bill Bornheimer, the 6-foot, 5-inch sophomore center, batted two in a row in the basket for a 24-17 margin. Kiernan, Pajak, and Rizzi kept up the scoring barrage until the score reached the safe proportions of 32-17.

Kiernan and Bornheimer were the individual stars for the Hoyas. The latter was a little slow starting, but he used his height to advantage in the second half, retrieving many shots off the backboard, intercepting passes and dropping in five field goals of his own.

Second Team Goes In

Don Martin kept the Hoyas in the ball game in the first half with seven points and he added another in the final period for a 9-point total. Ripley inserted an entire second team when the score reached 32-17.

Western Maryland didn't shoot in the first half until they were set, and this procedure, compared with the wild and ineffective shooting of the Hoyas, helped them to a 15-10 lead.

Georgetown Frosh defeated American U. Jayvees, 62-34, in a preliminary.

Four Redskins Selected on All-Star Team

Four Redskins will get one more chance this year to atone in some small measure for that 73-0 defeat handed Washington by the Chicago Bears in the playoff for the world's professional championship.

Sammy Baugh, Dick Todd and Tackles Willie Wilkin and Jim Barber have been named to the pro All-Star team that meets the Bears December 29 in Los Angeles in the annual charity game there, it was announced yesterday.

What's more, the game will give Coach Flaherty a chance to experiment with a defense that will stop the Bears' powerful, deceptive "T" formation.

As coach of the losing team in the playoff, Flaherty will coach the pro All-Stars.

Flaherty's squad, picked by the National League coaches, includes four players from the New York Giants and four from the Detroit Lions—including the latter's famous Whizzer White.

To the squad of 26, New York contributes Jim Poole, end; Frank Cope, tackle; Doug Oldershaw, guard, and Mel Hein, center; Detroit's men are Harry Smith, guard, and Backs Lloyd Cardwell, Whizzer White and Cotton Price.

The lineups:

Ends—Don Hutson, Green Bay Packers; Jim Poole, New York Giants; John Shirk, Chicago Cardinals; Perry Schwartz, Brooklyn Dodgers and Don Looney, Philadelphia Eagles.

Tackles—Wee Willie Wilkins, Washington; Bruiser Kinard, Brooklyn; Frank Cope, Giants, and Jim Barber, Washington.

Guards—Dick Bassi, Philadelphia Eagles; Doug Oldershaw, Giants; Harry Smith, Detroit Lions, and Ted Livingston, Cleveland Rams.

Centers—Mel Hein, Giants, and Charles Brock, Green Bay.

Backs—Sammy Baugh, Washington; Ace Parker, Brooklyn; Lloyd Cardwell, Detroit; Whizzer White, Detroit; Fuz Manders, Brooklyn; Vic Spadaccini, Cleveland; John Drake, Cleveland; Clarke Hinkle, Green Bay; Dick Todd, Washington; Colton Price, Detroit; Merlin Condit, Pittsburgh, and Hanford Collums, Chicago Cardinals.

Brewers Face Three Games During Week

With two straight beatings on their local record this season, the Washington Brewers this week go into three games in an effort to work out the knots in their attack before crucial American Basketball League games later on.

On Thursday the local professional cage representative pairs off with the Brooklyn Celtics in Brooklyn in a league game; on Saturday they clash with the Akron (Ohio) Goodyears, of the National League, in Philadelphia, and on Sunday they return home to face the Goodyears again at Riverside Stadium.

Though only one of the battles will count on their American League record, the Brewers coach, Mack Posnack, was elated over the chance his team has of seeing more action.

"The Philadelphia Sphas, who beat us last Sunday night," he said, "have already had 15 games this year, compared to our 4. That certainly should indicate that we need more practice under fire. With our three games this week—no matter what the outcome—we'll surely be able to develop the offense we are capable of."

The Akron Goodyear, who provide opposition for two of the D. C. fives' outings this week, can hardly be termed pushovers. A power in the National League, the Goodyears boast a squad of giants with one of the most impressive records in the country. They will be making their first appearance here when they meet the Brewers Sunday.

In an effort to increase the attractiveness of his team's appearance here Sunday, Sponsor Chris Heurich, jr., announced last night that public dancing will definitely be held. Leon Brusiloff's Orchestra will furnish music, and a special substance will be spread over the Riverside floor to make the pastime more enjoyable. Other novelty acts, which have pleased unexpectedly large gatherings at games to date, will also be on the program.

Georgetown, B. C. Contribute Most to Pros

Georgetown University and Boston College contributed six men each to the National Professional Football League's annual draft to lead the Nation's "big time" football schools, it was disclosed last night.

Texas A. & M. and Minnesota, with four each, were next in order in the number of their players chosen by the 10 National League teams.

First Georgetown man to be drafted was Augie Lio, Hoya guard who was named on several All-American teams. He was the Detroit Lions' fourth pick.

In rapid order, the Bears grabbed up Al Matuza, center; Pittsburgh claimed Fullback Jim Castiglia; Philadelphia claimed Quarterback Joe McFadden, the Dodgers claimed Halfback Jules Koshlap and the Redskins obtained rights to bargain with Tackle Earle Fullilove.

If Castiglia and Lio accept their offers, it will be the first time the two have played on a different football team in eight years. The two were on the Passaic (N. J.) High School team that went undefeated during their four years there. Came to Georgetown together and hadn't been on a loosing team until the Hoyas' 19-18 loss to Boston College last month.

Boston College gave Alen Lukachick, end, and John Yauckos, tackle, to the Philadelphia Eagles; Chester Gladchuck, gigantic center, and George Karr, guard, to the Pittsburgh Steelers; Henry Toczwlowski, back, to the Brooklyn Dodgers, and Charley O'Rourke, passing star, to the Chicago Bears.

Rae and Gray, Newcomers, on Wrestling Card

Wrestling fans will not be without their two-man appetizer on tomorrow night's show featuring Milo Steinborn, the Memphis Blacksmith, and Lou Plummer, the Baltimore villain, at Turner's Arena.

Promoter Joe Turner announced he had arranged for the 510-pound team of Eddie Newman and Herbie Freeman to swap holds with a new combination composed of Tommy Rae, of Boston, and Carl Gray, of Toledo. Newman and Freeman are seeking to redeem themselves for a defeat hung on them a few Thursdays back by Warren Bockwinkle and Whitey Gorvo. Rae and Gray are clean, scientific wrestlers, while Newman and Freeman rely on their knowledge of villainy to achieve their objective.

The semiwindup may prove the show-stealer. It will find Joe Cox, the Kansas Krasher, opposed to Tiger Tasker, the bearded Alaskan, who looks like a fugitive from a barber's chair.

In a special 30-minute brawl, Cherokee Charlie, a redskin from Oklahoma, will make his bow against Paul Boesch, of the West Coast, who has won 12 straight here.

Banks May Be Favored Over Archibald Here

Former Champ Drops In Esteem for Bout At Arena Monday

Joey Archibald, the former world featherweight champion, yesterday sent word through his manager, Al Weill, that he was determined to regain his title "just for my wife's sake," and that his eight-round match at the enlarged Turner's Arena next Monday night was the first on the comeback list.

As far as Archibald's local winning streak is concerned, he doesn't have to make any comeback about that, but it is his world crown that he dropped to the National Boxing Association and Baltimore's Harry Jeffra that the Patent Leather Kid is eyeing these days as he trains at a Providence gymnasium.

Since taking a wife about eight months ago Joey has mapped himself a campaign calculated to win back the championship. The happiest person in the world, when this is achieved, will be the missus, Weill told Matchmaker Gabe Menendez yesterday.

Though Archibald's stock has dropped considerably since he last appeared here in the defense of his title 14 months ago against Jeffra at the stadium, his local record has not been hurt. For Joey has to his credit 18 straight victories here, 12 of which are technical or straight knockouts.

Archibald is due here Friday for public workouts, and it may surprise the former champion upon his arrival to learn that the local betting gentry plan to make Banks a 6-5 favorite. A canvas of ringside veterans yesterday revealed the astounding news that the colored boy, winner of 32 out of 34, is slated to go to the post in the favorite's seat, despite the fact that this will be his first headline role. Banks' manager, Smiling Billy Edwards, says Billy should be favorite, judging by the way he buffed Archibald around at will when they trained here.

A change in the six-rounder will find Dave Chacon, of Los Angeles, making his bow against El Brookman. Another four-rounder closed out finds Oscar Wright, colored flash, meeting Pedro Cisco, of Baltimore.

Minneapolis, Dec. 10 (AP).—President Mike Kelley announced today the purchase of a new first baseman, Frank Houska, from the St. Joseph Club of the Western Association, to fill the vacancy created by Phil Weintraub's announcement he would retire.

The Punch That Floored Archibald

Billy Banks, Washington's 19-year-old colored featherweight, pauses during a Huron gym workout yesterday to show Charley Pullman, a nephew of Phil Furr, the punch with which he once floored Joe Archibald in training. Banks and Archibald will meet at Turner's Arena Monday night. Pullman, a novice fighter, made a hit in the Golden Gloves bouts last week.

Hoyas to Resume Scrimmages Today for Orange Bowl Game

Main Problem Facing Georgetown Coaches Is Replacing Ailing Mike Kopcik, Star Flankmen

Georgetown University's football squad inaugurates scrimmaging at the Hilltop today as it opens serious preparation for its game with Mississippi State in Miami's Orange Bowl on New Year's afternoon.

The Hoyas previously have spent most of their time loosening up for the post-season classic, but will put plenty of punch behind their workouts hereafter.

One of the features of the workouts within the next two weeks will be the development of a starting left end to replace Mike Kopcik, regular starting choice, who will submit his injured left knee to an operation over the Christmas holidays.

In the absence of Kopcik, end and center, Coach George Murtagh will select a successor from Bill Wixted, Art Lemke, and Chris Pavich. All are closely bunched and a choice will not be made until further notice.

Y.M.C.A. Tankmen Face K.C. Tonight

One of the local Y. M. C. A.'s finest senior swimming teams in history will travel to Baltimore tonight for its first dual meet of the season against the Knights of Columbus team of that city.

Holder of the President's Cup in swimming, the Baltimore squad is expected to furnish the Y. M. C. A. some of its stiffest competition this season.

Roosevelt Loses as Chevy Chase Stages Astonishing Rally

Interhigh Champs Lose 15-3 Edge

Bethesda Tees Off On Reserves, Later On Regulars to Win 2d Straight Clash

Digging itself out of a 15-3 deficit, the fighting cage force of Bethesda-Chevy Chase High took its second triumph of the season yesterday, beating last year's interhigh champion, Roosevelt, by a 24-21 count on the latter's court.

Winners over Hyattsville by one point in their opener, the Barons appeared a hopelessly beaten club midway of the second period. They had trailed, 11-3, at the first period and Roosevelt had boosted its edge steadily to 15-3.

Then came the turning point. Rough Rider regulars were taken out to get a rest, and Bethesda went to work. By halftime it was behind only 17-10, and after three quarters it was one point away at 19-18. Roosevelt's only points in that third session were hung up by Capt. Hymie Perlo as the Barons battled the champions' first team to a standstill.

Immediately after the start of the final period Elton McClure tied the count for Bethesda on a foul committed by Dick Goodman. Duke Hashagen's two-pointer, Bobby Keene's single pointer, and another pair of points by Bob Lebling put the Barons well out front, and Roosevelt's only retaliation was a set-up shot recorded by Frank Ciango.

Hashagen and Roosevelt's George Robertson were waved out of action in the second half of the clean, but hard-fought battle. Before he left, however, Hashagen took point honors for the winners with six. Perlo had eight counters for the losers.

Gene Daly Named C. U. Cage Captain

Former Western High Star Replaces White, Now Out of School

Eugene Daly, former Western High School cage star, out to win his third letter with the Catholic University quintet, was yesterday appointed to captain the Cardinals for the coming season. Johnny White, star center and forward last season, was originally named to lead the Redbirds, but the high scoring courtman left school to accept a Government position.

Daly, a hard playing, high scorer, was graduated from Western High School in 1936. He is the first local boy ever named captain of a Catholic University basketball five. Placing third among the high scorers last season, Coach "Fod" Cotton is counting heavily on the experienced guard to spark the Redbirds this year.

A two-hour practice session with the Freshmen quintet was held yesterday as Coach Cotton prepared his team for the opening game of the season scheduled for Sunday afternoon with a strong alumni team. Three of last season's stars will be on hand to lead the alumni aggregation. They will be Carmen Pirro, ace scorer last season; Vic Miller, and Johnny White. Catholic U. defeated the alumni last season by a 36-30 count and won 33-31 the previous year.

Boxing Coach Eddie LaFond, is busily rounding his mittmen into shape for the exhibition which will be presented during the half. Three bouts will be staged with fighters in the 135, 165 and heavyweight class getting the call for action. Admission price for the double sports bill has been set at 25 cents.

Widwell Paces Revenge For Loss in First Start of Season

Revenge for a one-point loss in its opener was taken by Hyattsville High five yesterday as it smashed National Training School, 31 to 12, on the Hyattsville floor.

The first eight minutes of scrapping found the clubs knotted at 4 to 4, but Hyattsville drew quickly away as the second quarter began. By intermission it was out in front, 16 to 4, and after three quarters led by 24 to 5. National Training School's most productive period was the fourth, in which it registered seven points.

Leading scorer of the game was Hyattsville's Roland Kidwell, center, who rolled in four field goals and a foul shot, for 9 points. N. T. S.'s Seipps ran second with seven points.

Overzealous guarding of Bethesda-Chevy Chase High's Elton McClure (17) by Roosevelt's Dick Goodman here provided one of the turning points in yesterday's scholastic cage feature. McClure sank the foul shot allowed him, tying the score, and Bethesda went ahead to win, 24-21. Kerchenbaum (22), of Roosevelt, also gets in the crucial play

Gonzaga Five Routs Mounts In 1940 Debut

Mulvihill Brothers Lead Eagles 42-22 Win Over Mt. Rainier

Gonzaga's Eagles began their basketball season with a bang by defeating Mount Rainier yesterday at Gonzaga gym, 42 to 22. The Eagles were paced by Counselman and Bob Mulvihill, with 11 and 10 points, respectively, while the two Rodriguez brothers, Willie and Bennie sparked the offense of the Maryland team, accounting for 12 of their team's points.

The Mounts took the lead in the first quarter and held it into the second, making the count 10 to 6 before the Eagles' offense began to function. Mulvihill potted a long one and was followed up by two baskets in quick succession from the hands of O'Lone and Hart Downs. Bobby Dorr then sunk a long shot to make it 12-10 Mount Rainier. Mulvihill made good a pivot shot to even the count, but Nolan Downs added 4 points to give the Mounts the lead as the half ended.

As the second half began the Eagle's started a scoring spree. Three baskets in the first few moments by Bernie Nolan brought the score to 22-12.

For the rest of the quarter the lead remained substantially the same through the efforts of the Rodriguez brothers who alternated in following up an Eagle score with one of their own.

With the score standing at 28-20 the Eagle's unleashed an offense led by Counselman and Mulvihill that rung up 14 points, while allowing the Mounts only two points.

Officials See Sellout for Cotton Bowl

By the Associated Press

Dallas, Tex., Dec. 10.—The latest football gold rush struck boom proportions tonight as the Cotton Bowl New Year's Day classic ticket sale cantered toward a 46,000 capacity sellout.

Officials of the battle between Texas A. and M. and Fordham forecast complete disposition of every seat within a few days.

President Dan D. Rogers of the Cotton Bowl Athletic Association said Texas A. and M. College had been given 14,000 reserved seats for its alumni and an additional 5,000 for the cadet corps.

If the vast bowl, which can be crowded to accommodate nearly 50,000, is packed on January 1, it will be the first time since it opened many years ago when a high school grudge game was played—with admittance free. A few years ago President Roosevelt drew a 40,000 crowd into the enclosure for a 30-minute speech.

On the basis of a complete sellout, some $141,000 would be handled on the gross gate.

Alice Marble Voted No. 1 Woman Athlete

Tennis Queen Winner By Landslide; 65 of 72 Experts Choose Her

By the Associated Press

New York, Dec. 10.—Alice Marble is a girl that doesn't do things halfway.

She completely dominated her field in 1939 in winning the Wimbledon and United States tennis titles, was even more outstanding this year in repeating in the U. S. Nationals at Forest Hills and today she came through with a landslide of votes to be ranked as the Nation's No. 1 woman athlete for the second straight year.

Of the 72 sports experts throughout the country participating in the Associated Press' annual poll, 65 of them ranked the blonde court champion No. 1. The others placed her either second or third to give her a total of 216 points—the largest vote polled by a woman athlete in the ten years of the poll.

Other women competitors can be glad she has turned pro because of lack of competition among the amateurs (and $25,000) for as a play-for-pay athlete she will not have the opportunities to so dominate her field.

Miss Marble's victory gave tennis the No. 1 spot for the fourth time. Helen Jacobs won in 1933 and Helen Wills Roark in 1935.

Second place and top among the golfers went to United States Champion Betty Jameson, of San Antonio, Tex., who compiled four firsts and 89 points. Patty Berg, Minneapolis golf star who also turned pro this year and 1938's No. 1 athlete, had to be content with one first and 23 points. Babe Didrikson Zaharias, Western open golf winner, trailed Miss Berg with two firsts and 15 points. Babe won in 1936 when she starred in the Olympic track and field games.

ALICE MARBLE

Swimming, the only other sport in which a representative polled more than three votes, was topped by Marjorie Gestring. Without a first place, the West Coast diving champion received 31 points for third in the standings. Lorraine Fisher, New York breast stroke champion, was credited with nine votes and Katherine Rawls Thompson, 1937's poll winner, with four. Neither had a first place.

Western Five Opens Season, Beats Briarley

Well-Balanced Attack Wins for Locals, 36-22; Karas High Scorer

Western High School opened its basketball season at home yesterday with a 36-22 victory over Briarley Prep.

The Red Raiders displayed a nicely balanced attack with five players contributing heavily to the offense. Jimmy Karas was Western's high point getter with 11. Jerry Kavanaugh made 9, Irving Schenker, 6, and Hal Mitchell and Don Cross 5 each.

Reed, a guard, and Lodge, a forward, were the only losers able to dent the Western defense with much success, between them making 17 of Briarley's 22 points. Reed threw in 9, and Lodge 8, 4 of which were free throws.

The score at half favored Western by 13-7.

Proposed Louis, Godoy Fight Plans Hit Snag on Coast

San Francisco, Dec. 10.—Promoter Mike Jacobs' plan to stage a Joe Louis-Arturo Godoy heavyweight championship match in Los Angeles next April received a sharp setback today. John Rustigan, local member of the California Athletic Commission, said he was opposed to the match, adding:

"If Louis wants to fight in the State he is welcome, but I am against a Godoy fight. We have some good home-grown heavyweights. Louis's opponent should be chosen from Nova, the Baers (Max and Buddy), Tommy Martin, Harold Blackshear and Pat Valentino.

"Louis has already won two victories over Godoy and I see little sense in a third match."

Ace Parker to Play With Portsmouth In Charity Game

By the Associated Press

Norfolk, Va., Dec. 10.—Clarence (Ace) Parker, the No. 1 professional football player of the year, returned from the National League wars today and immediately signed a contract to perform for the Portsmouth Cubs in the Joy Fund classic with the Norfolk Shamrocks here Sunday.

Still somewhat battered and bruised after leading Brooklyn's Dodgers to second place in the Eastern Division race of the National League, the Ace expects to be ready to throw consternation into the ranks of the Shamrocks in the annual intercity postseason battle.

Orioles Schedule 24 Spring Games

Baltimore, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Baltimore Orioles International League baseball team, making plans for spring training at Haines City, Fla., next March, announced today a 24-game preseason exhibition schedule that includes four major league outfits.

The Boston Red Sox will be met in Florida and at Oriole Park here, the Detroit Tigers at Lakeland, Fla.; the Washington Nationals in a home-and-home series just before the season starts, and a combination New York Yankee-Brooklyn Dodger outfit here.

The Orioles switched from Aiken, S. C., to Haines City because of a lack of strong opponents in the Aiken area.

Blablah Captures Halltown Purse at Charles Town Track

Nears Record For Course With 1.15 4-5

Beats Randle's Queen Two Lengths, Pays $5.80; Roidef Is Third in Feature

By Walter Haight

A Staff Correspondent

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 10.—O. S. Jenning's Blablah, winner of five races last spring, came to the winner's circle today for her sixth victory of the year. The 4-year-old daughter of Economic ran her year's earnings to $4,525 by leading seven sprinters to the wire. The race was the Halltown Purse over the 6 furlongs (plus) route and Blahblah turned in time of 1:15 4-5, missing by three-fifths of a second tying the record for the course.

The filly finished two lengths in advance of Randle's Queen, owned by U. S. Randle, of Washington, and an additional half-length in front of B. Hernandez's Roidef. Fourth position went to Royal Cross, ridden by Jockey W. L. Taylor. Taylor, however, had two winners on the program, the first and last.

Blablah Takes Command

The weather was the best ever encountered here at a December meeting. A bright sun shone and many doffed overcoats. The track was fast and the betting brisk.

Jockey Charley Friedman booted Blablah to the front at once. The filly saved ground, and aside from a mild challenge on the backstretch from Randle's Queen, she had things her own way. Randle's Queen was vigorously handled from start to finish and showed an excellent effort. Roidef tried to keep up early and failed, but closed with good energy.

The first race proved an easy victory for Jockey W. L. Taylor and Glitter Girl, a 2-year-old daughter of Lucullite. She came to the wire two and a half lengths in front of H. B. Landon's Danzig. Third money went to Wenuit. The winner paid $5.80.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—GLITTER GIRL, $5.80, $3.20, $2.80; DANZIG, $11.00, $6.00; WENUIT, $3.00.

GLITTER GIRL, rated while in first flight, drove between horses to take command over NORA R. and drew out in closing test to win easily. DANZIO could not keep up early, came through on inside and closed under punishment. WENUIT was slow to begin and came with good courage at the end. ON THE BEAM was outrun early and closed ground.

SECOND RACE—About 7 furlongs. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 2:11. Off at once. Winner, W. C. Bell's b. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BOB JUNIOR, $32.60, $12.40, $8.80; WESTLY, $12.00, $6.40; CANROCK, $4.80.

BOB JUNIOR, off in first flight, responded when placed to drive to wear down WESTLY and was kept under pressure to end. WESTLY had speed to assume command at first turn, set good pace, but could not resist winner and was best of others. CANROCK was in thick of contention early and weakened gradually in stretch run. BEACON QUEEN lacked early speed, saved ground to improve position and was beaten off.

THIRD RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $500; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place same. Went to post 2:40½. Off 2:41½. Winner, A. S. Bowman's ch. g. Two-dollar mutuels paid—NAVIGATION, $5.80, $3.60, $3.00; GARDEN POOL, $4.40, $3.40; BROOMORIA, $4.20.

NAVIGATION, first away, drew out on GARDEN POOL in early stages and opened long lead in stretch run to win easily. GARDEN POOL was closest to pace from beginning and was easily best of others. BROOMORIA lacked early speed and came gamely under hard riding in closing stages. CLOCK WINDER worked way to contention and tired.

Daily Double, BOB JUNIOR and NAVIGATION, Paid $17

FOURTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $400; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won easily; place driving. Went to post 3:09. Off at once. Winner, Mrs. H. Two-dollar mutuels paid—BLOX, $10.60, $4.80, $3.20; DOCTOR'S NURSE, $4.80, $3.20; CRIMSON, $3.20.

BLOX, under stout restraint while racing closest to DOCTOR'S NURSE, rallied gamely when placed to drive and drew out to win easily. DOCTOR'S NURSE, first away, saved ground while setting pace, but could not resist winner. CRIMSON, slow to begin, came out for racing room, moved up menacingly and huns through stretch drive. CURVES had speed in spots.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $600; claiming. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won driving; place same. Went to post 3:37½. Off at once. Winner, Mrs. W. Two-dollar mutuels paid—COUNTY CORK, $8.00, $4.60, $3.80; IMPERIAL JONES, $9.00, $4.60; HOT MAN, $6.00.

COUNTY CORK, rated when closest to pace of SCHLEY GOREE, wore down latter to take command and held away thereafter and was shaken up approaching wire. IMPERIAL JONES, shut off badly in opening half, came around horses to improve position and closed with bold rush. HOT MAN could not keep up early, came to inside in final test and closed willingly. KAMPORT worked way to contention and hung thereafter.

SIXTH RACE—Charles Town course. Purse, $800. The Halltown. For 3-year-olds and upward. Start good from gate. Won ridden out; place driving. Went to post 4:06. Off 4:06½. Winner, O. S. Jennings' b. f. Each summer for the past five years the Chesapeake Bay Fishing Fair has been the highlight of the season's fishing activities. The start was made at Tilghmans back in 1936; then Solomons, Rock Hall, Annapolis, and last, Crisfield.

At each meeting many anglers became acquainted with new fishing grounds — liked them, and have gone back time and time again. They are unequivocally in favor of the smaller places, however, and for that reason it is real news that North Beach will be the locale of the sixth Annual Chesapeake Bay Fishing Fair.

It is a central point to reach most of the best fishing grounds in the upper bay, and being on the western shore will be easier of access for the great numbers of Washington and Baltimore anglers. Add to that the promise of the North Beach City Fathers to make it the biggest fair yet, and it looks as through fishermen have something to look forward to for next year.

Another contest, just as old in number of years, several months closer, and always interesting but with none of the showmanship that characterizes those held at Palm Beach and Miami, is noted because this year Fort Lauderdale really holds fine promise for an interesting tournament.

That idea is not gleaned from a detailed program, but due to the fact they have gone to two of the prime movers in the Miami Tournaments, which last winter drew entries from 166,000 anglers. Tommy Aitken and Erl Roman know fishes, fishermen and fishing contests from the ground up. With their advice and backing the Fort Lauderdale Tournament will get out of the hit or miss class without fail.

Possible spawning and nursery areas for striped bass along the Atlantic Coast from New Jersey to southern New England have been surveyed this fall by William C. Neville, biologist of Middle Atlantic Fisheries of the Fish and Wildlife Service, with the help of numerous individuals, including commercial and sports fishermen, and the conservation departments of several States. This survey is a continuation of a study of the spawning grounds of the striped bass started last year, and will indicate whether protection of adult fish within certain territorial waters will result in increased abundance through successful local spawning.

A survey of considerable scope on the striped bass and its migrations was made several years ago. From it certain recommendations as to size limits were made, in the hope that the various States concerned could get together. In those States north of us some reasonable regulations were arrived at, but not in Maryland, where the "rock" is a food fish pure and simple, and legally, and illegally, fished throughout the entire year—with a minimum size limit which never gives many fish a chance to spawn, and a maximum limit that serves no real good.

Capital Store Sales Up 15% In November

Volume in 11 Months Gains 9.7% Over Same 1939 Period

Department store sales in Washington were 15.1 per cent larger in November than in the same month last year, according to the monthly report of the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond. Cumulative sales for the six reporting stores for the first 11 months were 9.7 per cent greater than in the same period last year.

Sales in the 56 stores reporting in the Fifth Federal Reserve District were 14 per cent larger in November than in the same 1939 month, and 10 per cent more in the first 11 months than in the like 1939 period.

Eight stores in Baltimore reported an 11.5 per cent sales gain in November over the corresponding 1939 month, and a 10 per cent comparative increase in the first 11 months. Three stores in Richmond showed a 12.8 per cent gain in November, and a 9.7 per cent increase in the first 11 months.

Burlington Issue Offered

A banking group headed by Lehman Brothers is offering today 80,000 shares of Burlington Mills Corporation cumulative convertible preferred stock, $2.75 series, without par value, at $53 a share.

Net proceeds will be used for effecting improvements and additions to present plants, the purchase of equipment, the acquisition of additional plant facilities, and to provide additional working capital. Of the expenditures, it is estimated that approximately $400,000 will be spent for improvements and additions to present plants, about $875,000 for the purchase of looms and approximately $580,000 for the purchase of spindles, hosiery machinery and other equipment.

Other members of the offering group are Commercial Investment Trust, Inc.; Wertheim & Co., A. G. Becker & Co., Inc.; Union Securities Corporation, and R. S. Dickson & Co., Inc.

C. L. U. Hears Cogswell

Holders of life insurance policies should be warned against placing them in safety deposit boxes, members of the Washington Chapter of the Chartered Life Underwriters Association were told Monday night.

Theodore Cogswell, register of wills, told the underwriters at their session in the Cosmos Club, that delays in the settlement of insurance claims have been experienced here because the contracts were in safety deposit boxes. Mr. Cogswell pointed out that under the present law when a man dies his safety deposit box is ordered sealed. As a result, he said, there is an unnecessary delay while a court order is received opening the boxes.

Mr. Cogswell also discussed wills and the administration of estates. Hicks Baldwin, president of the underwriters group, presided.

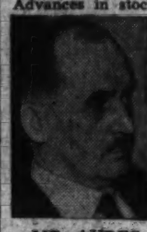
Ayres Sees Boom on Way, Higher Labor Price; Bares 'Secret Weapon' of Nazis as Hard Work

Cleveland, Dec. 10.—Economist Leonard P. Ayers today drew this picture of 1941 business prospects—

A boom on its way. Rises in the price of labor. Advances in stocks, but no big bull market. No "inflationary" increases in living costs. Depression conditions in farm regions that depend upon exports.



MR. AYRES

Col. Ayers made these predictions in his annual business forecast for the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce. The forecast drew especial attention from his listeners this year because Col. Ayers recently was recalled to active War Department duty—as chief statistical officer.

Germany's "secret weapon," he said, is hard work.

"We cannot win without it, but with it we can win," he added. "If we bring to our task of rearmament all the energy and cooperation of which we are capable we can succeed in it."

The most important lesson to be learned from Canada, the economist observed, is that—

"Preparedness must take first place; all other activities must be subordinated."

Discussing the prospective "boom," Col. Ayres said:

"It can last for a long time. . . . We are going to have a boom because so much money is going to be spent so fast that the boom is inevitable.

"Industrial workers in the heavy industries will soon be fully employed, and earning good wages. The sure prospect under those conditions is that those workers are going to spend most of their earnings for the things that they and their families want.

"The result will be that before the middle of next year we shall see both the heavy industries and the light industries fully employed, and striving to increase their productive capacities."

But the boom will be "specialized," Col. Ayers warned:

"The industrial regions that produce munitions will be prosperous, and so will the tidewater communities where ships are built. At the same time real or near depression will probably persist in agricultural regions which formerly sold important parts of their production to the countries of Europe. . . .

"The cost of building must advance. . . . One price that is already visibly advancing is the price of labor, and it is clear that further increases are on the way.

"Under ordinary circumstances . . . we should soon see important advances in the cost of living . . . but these are not ordinary circumstances. Under present conditions we need not fear that we shall experience in 1941 the kind of inflationary price increases that result in large and sudden advances in the cost of living.

"Stock prices will probably have a generally rising trend in 1941, for they are now abnormally low in relationship to the earnings of corporations. It seems unlikely that there will be a prolonged or enthusiastic bull market for stocks, because investors are wary of the existing high taxes, and anticipate that coming taxes will be still higher."

Steel Shipments For November Best Since 1916

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Shipments of finished steel products by United States Steel Corporation subsidiaries totaled 1,425,352 net tons, highest for any November since the record tonnage of 1,567,000 was shipped that month in 1916.

Although just short of the record, the total represented a decline of 147,056 tons from 1,572,408 in October but was 19,147 ahead of 1,406,205 net tons in November last year.

A spokesman for the big steel producer said the contraction was the result of smaller shipments abroad because of diversion of shipping by the British, though not smaller orders, and also the pressure of domestic demand. Holidays also lessened the number of working hours as compared with October.

Shipments for the first 11 months increased to 13,431,487 tons from 10,308,147 in the comparable 1939 period.

Hardware Volume Gains in October

Special Dispatch to The Post

New York, Dec. 11.—Sales of both wholesale hardware distributors and independent retail hardware dealers showed good gains in October, Hardware Age will report tomorrow in its semimonthly market summary.

Based on reports from 1,581 independent hardware stores in all parts of the country, the average gain was 6 per cent, comparing October with the same month last year. The increase was 9 per cent over the volume in September, 1940. Total sales for the reporting stores were $8,780,077 in October, 1940; $8,296,563 in October, 1939, and $8,050,430 in September, 1940.

U. S. Steel Aide Heads Standards Federation

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—R. E. Zimmerman, vice president of United States Steel Corporation, today was elected president of the American Standards Association. He succeeded Edmund A. Prentis, of the construction firm of Spencer, White & Prentis, who was president of the association for the past two years.

The American Standrads Association is a federation of national groups which promotes standardization in the changes of government, industry, labor and consumption.

Oil Output Increases

Tulsa, Okla., Dec. 10 (AP).—Daily crude oil production in the United States increased 276,275 barrels to 3,602,000 for the week ended December 7, the Oil and Gas Journal said today.

Foreign Exchange

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—The Canadian dollar dropped 11 of a cent to 86 United States cents today in one of the widest swings in weeks.

Foreign exchange brokers said the dip was probably due to an increased supply of dominion funds. The market recently has been absorbing around $25,000 to $30,000 Canadian dollars daily. When this amount is exceeded, the price is vulnerable.

The free Argentine peso rose .03 of a cent at 23.69 cents and slight gains were posted for the Portuguese escudo at 4.01 cents and the German free mark at a nominal price of 40.07 cents.

Closing rates follow (Great Britain in dollars, others in cents):

Official Canadian control board rates for United States dollars; buying, 10 per cent premium; selling, 11 per cent premium, equivalent to discounts on Canadian dollars in New York of buying 9.91 per cent, selling 9.09 per cent.

Canadian dollar in New York open market 14 per cent discount or 86.00 United States cents.

Gen. Motors Names Personnel Head

Detroit, Dec. 10 (AP).—Changes in duties of five executives of General Motors Corporation were announced today by C. E. Wilson, acting president of the corporation.

B. D. Kunkle, formerly vice president in charge of manufacturing, has been named a vice president in charge of personnel. He will have complete control of all labor relations for General Motors.

Replacing Kunkle as head of the manufacturing division is Floyd O. Tanner, a vice president who has been in charge of personnel.

W. C. Williams, jr., formerly assistant to Kunkle, is to become vice president in charge of the accessory division.

L. C. Goad, at present general manager of the AC sparkplug division at Flint, is to be transferred to Detroit as assistant to Williams.

A. W. Steudel Heads Sherwin-Williams

Cleveland, Dec. 10 (AP).—Arthur W. Steudel, who in 1908 went to work as office boy for the Sherwin-Williams Co., became today, at 48, the president of the giant paint company.

He succeeds George A. Martin, who at 75 takes over the chairmanship of the Sherwin-Williams board, a new position. Under Martin the company last year did a business of more than $100,000,000, largest in its history.

Acreage Goal Same But AAA Changes Payment Rates

The Agricultural Adjustment Administration announced yesterday the 1941 acreage goal for all soil-depleting crops would be between 270,000,000 and 285,000,000 acres, the same as for 1940; but said payment rites would be changed slightly to place greater emphasis on soil-building practices.

Payments will be contingent on the appropriation of $500,000,000 for this purpose by the next Congress.

Government Bonds Reach Record Highs

Prospect of No More Tax-Exempt Loans Shrinks Offerings

New York, Dec. 10.—United States Government bonds today blazed a new trail to the highest price levels in history.

On a turnover of but $180,000, par value, on the stock exchange—but considerably more in over-the-counter markets—prices of virtually all maturities of Treasury loans went up from 2/32 to 19/32 of a point, placing every one of them at the highest peak since issued.

Reluctance of holders to sell except at rising quotations was traced by brokers to the Washington statement of Treasury Secretary Morgenthau that $500,000,000 of fully taxable Government notes would be sold shortly. This, in the opinion of many experts, would probably pave the way for Congressional action to remove the tax-exempt feature of all Government loans henceforth sold. If this were done, State, county and municipal bonds would be vitally affected, since most of them also are wholly or partly tax exempt.

An indication of the prevailing opinion concerning bonds of this classification was seen in the rise of around a point in New York City Transit 3s on heavy sales. Over-the-counter dealers reported brisk business in a long list of well-known State and city bonds at rising prices.

Corporate issues, especially the high-priced group, followed the Governments to higher levels, but the movement was not uniform. Ahead fractions to a point or so were, among others, Union Pacific 3½s at 100¾, Western Union 5s at 77, Erie first 4s at 80 and Goodrich 4¼s at 105½.

Unchanged to lower issues included Alleghany stamped 5s, Cuba Northern Railroad 5½s, North Western 4¾s, Pennsylvania 4½s and Missouri-Kansas-Texas 5s.

London Stocks

London, Dec. 10 (AP).—Brighter news from the middle eastern battlefront stimulated new support in the securities market today and prices closed with gains well in the majority.

A high spot of dealings was the strength in leading oils under leadership of Anglo-Iranian. British government bonds rose an outside of ¼ point. Activity increased in the foreign list, with rising trends displayed by the Greek 7 per cent refugee loan, Chinese customs issues and Chinese railway bonds.

Industrials stocks steadied after recent weakness and small gains dotted the list. Kaffirs responded to local and Cape Town support and selected coppers inched ahead.

New York Dry Goods

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Quiet trading prevailed in the cotton goods section today and prices remained unchanged. Prices for spot rayon goods showed a slight easing tendency, but operators expect an early pickup in sales. Silk goods continued quiet. Buying continues to expand in women's woolen piece goods at full asking prices.

List Recedes Slightly on Tax Selling; Scattered Specialties Edge Forward

New York, Dec. 10.—Buyers concentrated on a handful of specialties in today's stock market and left many leaders struggling at slightly lower levels.

Faint rallying signs appeared at the start but these evaporated in many cases as the session proceeded. Quotations improved moderately in the final hour.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .1 of a point at 44. Dealings were negligible most of the time and transfers of 610,095 shares compared with 632,335 yesterday.

The war news and Hitler's speech failed as speculative inspirations, brokers said. Light but persistent year-end tax selling received the principal blame for the spotty performance of the list. Business developments were more encouraging than otherwise although even here there were thoughts of a nearby seasonal let-down in the recovery swing.

Declines of fractions to a point or so were pinned on U. S. Steel, Chrysler, U. S. Rubber, J. I. Case, Douglas Aircraft, Eastern Kodak, American Can, International Nickel, J. C. Penny, Du Pont, N. Y. Central, and International Paper common and preferred.

N. Y. Shipbuilding, American Shipbuilding and Newport News Shipbuilding turned up on further prospects of big British orders to replace ocean war casualties. Ahead also were Coca Cola, Alleghany prior preferred, General Motors, Allied Chemical, Johns-Manville and Kennecott. Chesapeake & Ohio was up ⅛ at a new 1940 top.

Among items receiving market attention were: United States Steel reported November shipments were the largest for any like month since 1916, but under October due to lessened exports and shorter working hours; New York City department store sales last week showed a tapering off in year-to-year improvement; two stock exchange seats sold for $40,000 and $36,000 versus the last previous sale for $33,000 which equaled the lowest price since 1899.

Commodities were irregularly higher. Wheat at Chicago was up ¼ to ¾ of a cent a bushel and corn gained ⅝ to 1⅛. Cotton was off 5 to 15 cents a bale.

In the curb modest advances were registered for Humble Oil, Creole Petroleum, Bath Iron Works and Phoenix securities. Aluminum, Ltd., conceded a point and lesser losses were suffered by Bell Aircraft, Electric Bond & Share, Lake Shore and Pittsburgh Plate Glass. The volume here was around 146,000 shares against 142,000 Monday.

TVA Awards Contract for Big Explosive Plant

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 10 (AP).—The Tennessee Valley Authority announced today the award of a contract to the Stone & Webster Engineering Corporation, of New York City, to design adn supervise construction of a synthetic ammonia plant at Wilson Dam, Ala., for use in the manufacture of high explosives.

Construction will be financed by $6,500,000 of War Department appropriations to be transfered to the TVA.

The Ammonia plant, replacing the obsolete war-time cyanamide process, will be located in a reconditioned portion of the old nitrate plant No. 2 at Muscle Shoals. The new plant will be capable of producing daily 300 tons of ammonium nitrate, one of the basic ingredients of high explosives.

TVA said approximately 500 employes would be needed during construction of the plant and about 750 when it is operating at capacity. Actual plant construction will be done by the TVA's own force.

Portugal Again Ships Gold Here

By the Associated Press.

The Commerce Department disclosed yesterday that shipments of gold again were being received from Portugal. Recent stoppages had created speculation in financial circles that some impending war developments might have been responsible.

Because of the British blockade, Portugal is virtually the only place from which gold belonging to continental European nations can be shipped to the United States. In the week ended December 4, the department said, gold from Portugal amounted to $1,458,177.

It was part of $30,409,597 received from all countries. This total was about $21,000,000 larger than the preceding week.

Cotton Futures

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Late sales of 10,000 bales of cotton futures by a professional trader depressed prices 1 to 4 points, at which levels the market closed.

Some brokers thought the offerings represented liquidation of long holdings because of the market's recent inability to get much beyond 10¼ cents a pound for March. Increased hedging and Southern selling have appeared around that price, the market reflected quiet conditions in cotton goods and Southern spot markets.

Worth Street cloth brokers again reported small business. Prices remained firm, however, at recently established high levels.

Bears Draw Tom Harmon In Draft

PROS, from Page 27.

American forward passer, Paul Christman, and Marquette's all-American center, Ray Apolskis.

New York's Giants obtained the right to bargain for Minnesota's great all-American back, George Franck. They also drew the names of Pennsylvania's Frank Reagan and Fordham's Len Eshmont.

But despite the drawings, there remains the long and tedious tasks of working out contracts and persuading the college boys to enter the play-for-pay ranks.

Harmon threw a monkey-wrench into the machinery when he telegraphed President Carl L. Storck, of the National League, he wouldn't play for the Bears. But the Bear management was unconcerned. They stated they are not thinking of offering Harmon anything such as a $20,000 contract and that they will not start bargaining with him until he is graduated in June.

With the "big name" players gone early, Coach Ray Flaherty concentrated on beef and brawn in his selections, picking five tackles, six ends, seven backs, a guard and a center.

Flaherty Is Happy

"We have had scouts out for some time, and I think that if we can get 12 of 20 men we have drafted, we'll be doing well," the Redskin coach said.

At the conclusion of the draft meeting, Flaherty said he was pleased with the outcome and announced he had obtained the services of a 21st man—a 252-pound tackle.

The tackle, James Bryant, former Gonzaga University star, was not on the draft list but was signed by the Redskins last fall in a secret move, Flaherty said.

With the exception of Evashevski, who cleared the way for the majority of Harmon's great runs this fall which made Tommy the Nation's No. 1 college player, the Redskins' draftees are not in the "big name" ranks.

Flaherty's second choice was Fred Davis, 246-pound tackle from Alabama. Ed Cifers, 206-pound end from Tennessee, and Al Kruger, who caught the pass that beat Duke in the Rose Bowl for Southern California in 1990, 200-pound end, were the third and fourth choices.

As some sort of an affront to the Bears, the Redskins claimed bargaining rights with Joe Osmanski. Holy Cross backfield star said to be better than his brother, Bill, who romped through the 'Skins so much in Sunday's game.

The Redskins also claimed rights to Georgetown's Earle Fullilove.

As the draft meeting was adjourned last night by President Storck, the groans and moans of coaches who hadn't fared so well were at every hand.

They had been "scooped" by the greatest piece of strategy ever pulled in a national league draft meeting. And back of it all was President-Coach George Halas, of the Bears.

Through player trades in which he sent unwanted stars to Philadelphia and Pittsburgh in trades negotiated last summer, Halas had obtained the right to those two clubs' first choices in the 1940 draft unbeknownst to league officials.

In the Philadelphia deal he sent four players to the Eagles in return for George McAfee and Philadelphia's first choice, and in the Steeler deal he sent Billy Patterson and another player in exchange for Pittsburgh's first choice this year.

His strategy was based on the fact that the teams are placed on the draft list in reverse order to their standings at the end of the season, the lowest choosing first and so on.

Philadelphia was the last-place club and had first choice. Pittsburgh finished next to last in a tie with the Chicago Cardinals, otherwise Halas would have had the first two choices in the draft.

When the club owners finally realized what happened, they went to work and by unanimous consent passed a rule which will forbid such occurrences in the future. In the 1941 draft no club may sell or trade its first and second choices until a full playing season is over.

Sea Gulls Beat Eagles, 6-5, Here

for drawing blood with a high stick.

Rossignol and Harry Dick, of the Seagulls, used their sticks for a bit of jousting late in the period, and Rossignol, failing to catch the spirit of fun, laid his foe's head wide open above the right temple.

For whacking Dick, Rossignol drew a 5-minute penalty, while the victim was fined 2 minutes, a sentence served for him by Teammate Wilf Lamieux while he went to the dressing room to get patched up.

Webster established Atlantic City in a 1-0 lead at 4:42, with the aid of Livingston's pass. Action was quick but there was no more scoring then until almost ten minutes later when Mailley tied the count for the Eagles on a double pass from Burns and MacBeth, who is one of Washington's most underrated performers.

Little more than a minute later the Eagles shot ahead when MacBeth passed to Burns, Washington's leading scorer, and the former Atlantic City star beat Goalie Lyle Porter.

The Washington defense fell into pieces in the second period and the Sea Gulls fitted the parts together for a 6-4 lead.

For a while, midway of the session, it appeared as though the Eagles were going to do themselves some good when, despite the fact they were shy one player, they overcame a 4-2 deficit and tied the score. But after that Atlantic City rammed home a pair of long shots which took Goalie Colvin unawares and the Eagles were a demoralized lot as they left the ice for intermission.

Advantage Faded

Atlantic City wasted little time in rearranging the first period score which found Washington ahead at 2-1. Fasano was on the shooting end of a nifty play in which Pozzo and Webtser collaborated at 4:15. Quickly the Sea Gulls forged into the lead for the first time when at 6:32, Prokop grabbed a loose puck at mid-ice and feinted Colvin into an error at the net.

Pozzo then broke away for a second successive unassisted point after intercepting a Washington pass around center ice, and the Sea Gulls held a 4-2 advantage. When Dewey was sent to the penalty box for 2 minutes, Washington appeared to be in a desperate position.

But, paradoxically, the Eagles played their best hockey of the period during the time Dewey was in the box, thwarting many Sea Gull charges, and then stealing away the play by dint of superb poke checking by Rossignol. The defensive work of McTeer and Burns also was prominent in the comeback in which Washington tied the count at 4-4 on goals by Courteau, assisted by Rossignol, at 10:47, and Dewey, who tallied at 13:17, or almost immediately after returning to the game.

Jurges Enters Hospital For General Checkup

New York, Dec. 10 (AP).—Billy Jurges, New York Giants shortstop, is in Colombia Presbyterian Hospital for a general checkup as the result of being hit on the head by a pitched ball last June.

Hospital officials refused to discuss the case but in Chicago, Manager Bill Terry said he had ordered Jurges to undergo an examination so he would know just how he stands for a shortstop next year.

Inventor Offers Rocket Motor To Give U. S. Air Supremacy

Device Provides Plane With Thrust of 4,000 Horsepower

By Devon Francis
Associated Press Staff Writer

New York, Dec. 10.—An inventor exhibited a rocket motor at New York University today which, he said, may revolutionize warplane speeds and give the United States world air supremacy.

The Army has accepted the device as a subject for further experiment.

The engineer-inventor, 50-year-old E. B. Myers, of New York, said he would "not be surprised" to see an American warplane equipped with such a motor within a year, but conceded that his motor had not actually been tested in flight.

This is what he said his motor would do:

Used as a secondary power source on a standard Martin bomber, it would reduce the takeoff time by 38 per cent, and, employed in the same way on one of the Army's four-engine bombers, would increase the bomb load by 57.7 per cent. It could be used ultimately as the sole source of power for warplanes. As an auxiliary power plant it would increase the top speed at sea level of the Curtiss Hawk pursuit from 302 to 471 miles an hour and that of the four-engine bomber from 265 to 337 miles an hour.

The motor exhibited a cylinder into which a mixture of nitrous oxide and carbon disulphide is shot and discharged by electricity, weighed only 148 pounds and developed a "thrust" of 4,000 horsepower, Myers said.

It differs from the ordinary rocket motor in that the cylinder develops a series of explosions, like a gasoline engine, instead of continuous combustion. That reduces detonation and cooling problems, Myers explained.

Rocket power comes from what is known as "jet reaction." Gases are discharged from a cylinder at enormous speed—5,000 to 6,000 feet a second. As the gases are pushed backward, they push equally hard on the front walls of the combustion chamber.

Fastened to an airplane, that thrust would drive the machine forward. As an index to the speed possibilities in rocket propulsion, even high speed planes travel at only 500 feet a second.

Announcing—A NEW LOAN PLAN
LOAN OFFICES!

The AETNA FINANCE CO., a National Institution, announces the opening of its two new offices conveniently located to serve you best. Aetna's policy of liberal credit requirements, together with fast, confidential service, has made thousands of friends over the past 20 years.

Emergency Loans

A new plan, timely as the National Defense Program. Money for most any emergency when you need cash in a hurry. Just your own signature required. It's easy to qualify.

Signature Loans
$10 to $300

Our only requirement is that you are working steadily. No co-signers necessary. Just sign your name and get the cash you need quickly—without red tape.

Auto Loans
$10 to $300

On most any make or model car. Wife's signature or cosigners not necessary. If your payments are too high, we can cut them as much as one-half—and advance more cash immediately. 15-minute service.

If your car isn't paid for, you can get a SECOND loan without refinancing or extra charges. Save money at AETNA.

The Post Radio Time Table

2 p. m., WMAL—H. W. Prentis, jr., president of the National Association of Manufacturers, delivers the keynote address of his organization's annual convention in New York.

7:30, WRC—Theodore Roosevelt's career as a fighter, both at San Juan Hill and in the White House, has been dramatized for Cavalcade of America by Bob Richards, who wrote the screenplay of 'The Ramparts We Watch.'

8, WFMD—This two-hour program will not be heard locally for the very good reason that it's A. S. C. A. P.'s first super bomb of the broadcasters in the current music battle. Irving Berlin, George M. Cohan, Oscar Hammerstein 2d, Ferde Grofe and an endless parade of the country's songwriters have descended upon the home-town of "The Star Spangled Banner's" author, Francis Scott Key. The occasion is the signing of an A. S. C. A. P. contract by WFMD and that station's entrance to the night airing field. WFMD broadcasts on 500 watts and 900 kilocycles.

8, WJSV—Viola Brothers Shore and Louis Solomon have written a drama on reckless driving for Edward G. Robinson and Oana Munson of Big Town.

8, WMAL—Only one newcomer for the Quiz Kids tonight. He's an "A" student whose charting of out-of-the-way places on the globe have made him a geographical whiz.

8:30, WRC—The Duke of Paducah, Whitey Ford, celebrates his second N. B. C. anniversary on the Plantation Party.

9, WMAL—Lord Lothian, the British Ambassador, makes a half-hour talk.

10:15, WOL—With both eyes on world conflict, Mutual continues its five minutes of the latest news from Selective Service headquarters by Stephen McCormick; this is followed by ten minutes of news from the British capital by John Steele, the web's European chief-of-staff.

"Your Hit Parade," which you hear every Saturday night over WJSV and the Columbia Network every Saturday, marches right into the Army next month.

With Jerry Lester, the rising young comedian, as master of ceremonies, with Dean Janis as vocalist, and with a different name band each week, a regular portion of "Your Hit Parade" will originate in the various Army training camps throughout the country under the new plans.

This insert into the regular pattern of the CBS "Hit Parade" broadcasts will be what is popularly known in the theater world as an extra added attraction. For the current cast of "Hit Parade" stars—Barry Wood, Bea Wain and Mark Warnow and his orchestra—will continue to be heard with the ten top songs of the week from one of CBS's radio theaters in New York.

In addition to their part of the broadcast, the "Hit Parade" unit touring through the camps is to present an elaborate stage show for the soldiers, sailors or marines—whomever they happen to be visiting.

In addition to Lester, Miss Janis and the name band, the entertainers will include Dancer Floria Vestoff and the magician, Gali Gali. Miss Vestoff is a tapster who recently has appeared for a dozen weeks on the Astor Roof with Tommy Dorsey's Orchestra. Miss Janis formerly was soloist with Hal Kemp's Orchestra.

Ted Long, who used to be program director at WJSV, is managing the portion of the "Hit Parade" that'll be in the Army now.

Funeral Is Held For Samuel Stern, District Cellist

Funeral services for Samuel Stern, 37, cellist with the National Symphony Orchestra, were held yesterday at the Danzansky funeral home, 3501 Fourteenth Street Northwest. He was buried in Arlington Cemetery.

Mr. Stern died Monday in Hamilton, Ontario, where the orchestra was on tour. He was stricken with leukemia Friday. Mrs. Stern, notified of his illness, left their home at 631 K Street Northwest, and was at his bedside when he died.

A native of Indiana, Mr. Stern came to Baltimore as a boy to attend the Peabody Institute. In 1932 he joined the National Symphony Orchestra, but left at the end of the season to play with the United States Navy Band. Last summer he joined the symphony again.

Besides his wife, he leaves three children, Marvin, 9; Jere, 7, and Beatrice, 5; three brothers, Abe Stern, of Baltimore; Ben Stern, of Pittsburgh, and Frank Miller, a half-brother, of New York, and his mother, Mrs. Leah Miller.

TERRY AND THE PIRATES — Clink Clothes — BY MILTON CANIFF

SEE, DR. PING, YOU MEAN YOU ARE THE BLUE TIGER WHO IS CAUSING THE INVADER SO MUCH TROUBLE?
AH, THE GOLDEN ONE'S ADMIRATION IS PLEASING! ALWAYS I HAVE BEEN THE DIGNIFIED PROFESSOR —NEVER HAD ANY FUN!....
...NOW I CAN GO ABOUT PLAYING AT DANGEROUS GAMES! I AM SO OLD IT DOESN'T MATTER IF I AM SHOT... I WILL HAVE HAD MY FLING!
TUSH, LITTLE BLOSSOM! IT IS DISCOMFITTING TO PLAY THE HERO'S ROLE!
BUT, DR. PING, WHY DO YOU TELL US THIS? AREN'T YOU AFRAID WE'LL GIVE YOU AWAY TO THE INVADER?
WE WHO WAGE UNDERCOVER WAR HAVE A QUICK GRAPEVINE SYSTEM! WE HAVE HEARD OF THE GIRL WHO CHANGED PLACES WITH THE DRAGON LADY, SO THE LEADER COULD JOIN HER TROOPS... AND YOU, LITTLE HU SHEE, ARE STILL WEARING THE UNIFORM OF TEMPLE ROCK PRISON!

MARY WORTH'S FAMILY — BY DALE ALLEN

GOOD! (BETTER TAKE THE MOTHER OUT. GOVERNOR BLACKSTON ..THIS MIGHT BE.. PAINFUL!)
I HAVE NEVER SEEN A MORE HEROIC ACT, AUNT MARY..SLIM, A STRANGER, LEAPING IN TO TAKE THE BULLET LEACH MEANT FOR ME!
SLIM WAS SO GRATEFUL TO YOU FOR CLEARING HIS NAME, JOHN!
YOU MUST BE VERY PROUD OF HIM!
I AM..AND, SOMEHOW, SINFUL AS IT SOUNDS, I SEEM TO BE GLAD HE DID IT!
ALL HIS LIFE I'VE WANTED TO BE PROUD OF HIM..BUT HE WOULDN'T LET ME..MAYBE IT'S WICKED, SELFISH PRIDE I FEEL NOW.. I DON'T KNOW..
WILL YOU STEP IN HERE, MRS. WORTH?
